history Surviving in Venice Marco Marino, 2025-01-11 The Republic of Venice was built in an environment that was conceptually and physically hostile to man the lagoon In this particular environment of unstable terrain continually subject to rising and falling tides with an extremely high level of brackish humidity no possibility of obtaining food and no drinkable water Venice grew and prospered for more than one thousand six hundred years The example of Venice as it was built is an exemplary model of how a society can adapt to living and thriving in adverse environmental and climatic conditions The positive methods and behaviour of Venetian labour in the historic city is still relevant today and can point to new strategies for future societies Indeed this model fundamentally based on mutual help and problem solving should be studied and analysed to develop new conceptual foundations for contemporary and future urban development The book presents an architectural description of a good practice system for urban design based on the unique and historic city of Venice

Patronage and Italian Renaissance Sculpture David J. Drogin, 2017-07-05. The first book to be dedicated to the topic. Patronage and Italian Renaissance Sculpture reappraises the creative and intellectual roles of sculptor and patron. The volume surveys artistic production from the Trecento to the Cinquecento in Rome, Pisa, Florence, Bologna, and Venice. Using a broad range of approaches, the essayists question the traditional concept of authorship in Italian Renaissance sculpture, setting each work of art firmly into a complex socio-historical context. Emphasizing the role of the patron, the collection reassesses the artistic production of such luminaries as Michelangelo, Donatello, and Giambologna, as well as lesser-known sculptors. Contributors shed new light on the collaborations that shaped Renaissance sculpture and its reception.

In limine. Storie di una comunità ai margini della laguna Sauro Gelichi, Silvia Cadamuro, Alessandra Cianciosi, 2018-06-06. The volume contains a brief overview of the panels, texts, and images presented in the research and excavations carried out from 2011 to the present at the archaeological site of Antiche Mura di Jesolo. In limine, a poem by Eugenio Montale, introduces the collection. Ossi di Seppia, the title and the poem itself, seem pertinent to synthesize the sense of the archaeological project on the ancient Equilo, of which the first results are published in this volume. In limine, the signification of the threshold indicates a point of passage, a boundary, and in our case, metaphorically, it highlights the difference between the past and the present, the archaeological site where the inert matter of the narrative is located. Here, in limine, is also a physical space, precise, that of the area of the Antiche Mura, a place also tangible of collective memory. A place, like today, at the margins. If the ancient Equilo was a settlement on the unstable boundary between sea and lagoon, the modern Jesolo, which has inherited the name, has left behind the ruins of its memory, leaving them outside the inhabited center, at the point where the city becomes a landscape. The ruins of the ancient cathedral remain, the reliquary of the community, like a sort of garden where a dead thicket of memories of the new Montale. The archaeologists have searched in time to recover those memories and that past with patience and effort. So the project, born some years ago on the initiative of the Department of Humanistic Studies of Ca' Foscari University of Venice, is not just the last act of a journey that began in the mid-20th century with the excavations in the area of the cathedral and the nearby site of the church of San Mauro. The contributions that are published in this volume tell and synthesize the results of the last years of excavations. The interconnection between the various strategies of investigation has allowed us to propose a historical reconstruction of the site, in its entirety, original and surprising.

La Fenice Reconstructed, 1996-2003 Leonardo Ciacci, 2003. The book dedicated to the reconstruction of the theater. It took seven years and six months of work, three bids, four different companies, which in turn took over the reins of the situation. Leonardo Ciacci has collected all these voices and has given life to a story that goes beyond the simple technical project. Not only are all the construction phases described, but the problems and themes that have tormented the protagonists of the site. An original photographic campaign by Francesco Allegretto documents the initial conditions of the destroyed building, the
