Politics Of Design In French Colonial Urbanism:

The Politics of Design in French Colonial Urbanism Gwendolyn Wright,1991 Politics and culture are at once semi autonomous and intertwined Nowhere is this more revealingly illustrated than in urban design a field that encompasses architecture and social life traditions and modernization Here aesthetic goals and political intentions meet sometimes in collaboration sometimes in conflict Here the formal qualities of art confront the complexities of history When urban design policies are implemented they reveal underlying aesthetic cultural and political dilemmas with startling clarity Gwendolyn Wright focuses on three French colonies Indochina Morocco and Madagascar that were the most discussed most often photographed and most admired showpieces of the French empire in the early twentieth century She explores how urban policy and design fit into the French colonial policy of association a strategy that accepted even encouraged cultural differences while it promoted modern urban improvements that would foster economic development for Western investors Wright shows how these colonial cities evolved tracing the distinctive nature of each locale under French imperialism She also relates these cities to the larger category of French architecture and urbanism showing how consistently the French tried to resolve certain stylistic and policy problems they faced at home and abroad With the advice of architects and sociologists art historians and geographers colonial administrators sought to exert greater control over such matters as family life and working conditions industrial growth and cultural memory The issues Wright confronts the potent implications of traditional norms cultural continuity modernization and radical urban experiments still challenge us today

Decolonization and African Society Frederick Cooper,1996-08-28 This detailed and authoritative volume changes our conceptions of imperial and African history Frederick Cooper gathers a vast range of archival sources in French and English to achieve a truly comparative study of colonial policy toward the recruitment control and institutionalization of African labor forces from the mid 1930s when the labor question was first posed to the late 1950s when decolonization was well under way Professor Cooper explores colonial conceptions of the African worker and shows how African trade union and political leaders used the new language of social change to claim equality and a share of power This helped to persuade European officials that the modern Africa they imagined was unaffordable Britain and France could not reshape African society As they left the continent the question was how they had affected the ways in which Africans could reorganize society themselves
