Politics In A Museum:

Exhibiting Cultures Ivan Karp, 1991-05-17 Debating the practices of museums galleries and festivals Exhibiting Cultures probes the often politically charged relationships among aesthetics contexts and implicit assumptions that govern how art and artifacts are displayed and understood The contributors museum directors curators and scholars in art history folklore history and anthropology represent a variety of stances on the role of museums and their function as intermediaries between the makers of art or artifacts and the eventual viewers

The Politics of Display Sharon Macdonald, 2010-10-05 The assumption that museum exhibitions particularly those concerned with science and technology are somehow neutral and impartial is today being challenged both in the public arena and in the academy The Politics of Display brings together studies of contemporary and historical exhibitions and contends that exhibitions are never and never have been above politics Rather technologies of display and ideas about science and objectivity are mobilized to tell stories of progress citizenship racial and national difference The display of the Enola Gay the aircraft which dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima is a well known case in point The Politics of Display charts the changing relationship between displays and their audience and analyzes the consequent shift in styles of representation towards interactive multimedia and reflexive modes of display The Politics of Display brings together an array of international scholars in the disciplines of sociology anthropology and history Examples are taken from exhibitions of science technology and industry anthropology geology natural history and medicine and locations include the United States of America Australia the United Kingdom France the Netherlands and Spain This book is an excellent contribution to debates about the politics of public culture It will be of interest to students of sociology anthropology cultural studies museum studies and science studies

2016 Andrea Fraser, 2018-05-11 Both institutional critique and reference work documenting the intersection of politics in the form of political donations and art museums 2016 in Museums Money and Politics examines the intersection of electoral politics and private nonprofit art institutions in the United States at a pivotal historical moment In a massive volume that is both institutional critique and reference work the artist Andrea Fraser documents the reported political contributions made by trustees of more than 125 art museums representing every state in the nation in the 2016 election cycle With campaigning that featured attacks on vulnerable populations the vilification of the media and cultural elites and calls to curtail civil rights and liberties the 2016 election cycle and its aftermath transformed national politics It was also the most expensive election in American history with over 64 billion raised for presidential and congressional races combined More than half of this money came from just a few hundred people many of whom also support cultural institutions and serve on their boards 2016 is organized like a telephone book Contribution data is laid out alphabetically by name of donor With this and other data filling more than 900 pages the book offers a material representation of scale of the interface between cultural philanthropy and campaign finance in America It also provides an unparalleled resource for exploring the politics of the museum world 2016 includes an afterword

by Jamie Stevens the former curator and head of programs at CCA Wattis Institute for Contemporary Arts in San Francisco who traces the book's development an introduction by Andrea Fraser elaborating on the links connecting cultural philanthropy campaign finance and plutocracy a section on each museum represented and a section including data summaries and additional data The book presents a powerful argument that supporting the arts must involve more than giving donations to museums it must also include defending the values social structures and political institutions of an open tolerant just and equitable society Copublished by Westreich Wagner Publications the CCA Wattis Institute for Contemporary Arts and the MIT Press

Museums and Sites of Persuasion Joyce Apsel, Amy Sodaro, 2019-10-14

Museums and Sites of Persuasion examines the concept of museums and memory sites as locations that attempt to promote human rights democracy and peace Demonstrating that such sites have the potential to act as powerful spaces of persuasion or contestation the book also shows that there are perils in the selective memory and history that they present Examining a range of museums memorials and exhibits in places as varied as Burundi Denmark Georgia Kosovo Mexico Peru Vietnam and the US this volume demonstrates how they represent and try to come to terms with difficult histories As sites of persuasion the contributors to this book argue their public goal is to use memory and education about the past to provide moral lessons to visitors that will encourage a more democratic and peaceful future However the case studies also demonstrate how political economic and social realities often undermine this lofty goal raising questions about how these sites of persuasion actually function on a daily basis Straddling several interdisciplinary fields of research and study Museums and Sites of Persuasion will be essential reading for those working in the fields of museum studies memory studies and genocide studies It will also be essential reading for museum practitioners and anyone engaged in the study of history sociology political science anthropology and art history Chapter 3 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 license

Exhibiting Cultures Rockefeller Foundation, 1991

Bringing together museum directors curators and scholars in art history folklore history and anthropology Exhibiting Cultures engages in debate over meaning and representation that have accompanied and driven museums efforts regarding multiculturalism The contributors represent a variety of stances on the role of museums and their function as intermediaries between the makers of art or artifacts and the eventual viewers The Political Museum Theopisti Stylianou-Lambert, Alexandra Bounia, 2016-12-01 This engaging volume reveals how politics permeates all facets of museum practice particularly in regions of political conflict In these settings museums can be extraordinarily influential for shaping identity and collective memory and for peace building Using key Cypriot archaeological historical ethnographic and art museums as examples this book provides a multifaceted and deeper understanding of how politics conflict national agendas and individual initiatives can shape museums and their narratives discusses how these forces contribute to the creation of and conflict over national community and personal identities examines how museums use inclusion and exclusion in their collections exhibitions objects and interpretive material as a way of selectively constructing collective memories This book will be an important resource for museum professionals as well as scholars interested in the effects of politics on museums and interpretations of the past Politics in Prints University of Oregon. Museum of Art, Brenda Abney, 1991 Museums 2000 Patrick Boylan, 2005-09-26 Museum and art galleries have never been so much in the news as they have been over the past decade Yet public focus at both professional and non specialist levels has been remarkable for what has been accidentally or deliberately left out of recent debates Moving beyond the narrow issues of professional practice Museums 2000 probes the political economic and cultural realities which affect museums today Because the contributors are drawn from the museum profession and the wider political academic and business community worldwide the book is truly international reflecting the issues which affect all museums

Politics in a Museum James Miller, 2002-06-30 How and why has the city of Florence one of the great treasure houses of western civilization been reduced to little more than a Renaissance Disneyland for tourists Florence once a center of national intellectual creativity has become a city with two separate lives Its historic center caters to and profits from tourists while the periphery houses a population that endures overcrowding decaying infrastructure and an exorbitant cost of living In Politics in a Museum James Miller investigates Florence's losing struggle with modern times He traces the city's story from its bloody liberation in 1944 through a reconstruction led by Communist and Catholic saints the flood of 1966 the booms and busts of the 1970s 1980s and 1990s In the process Miller provides an analysis of the defects of Italy's national political system as well as a meticulous reconstruction of the men and events that have placed Florence alongside Venice in the unenviable status of museum city Politics and the Museum of the American Indian Roland W. Force, 1999

Making Histories in Transport Museums Colin Divall, Andrew Scott, 2001-11-01 This book is the first in 30 years to take transport museums seriously as vehicles for the making of public histories Drawing upon many years experience of visiting and working in transport museums around the world the authors argue that the sector's historical roots are more complex than is usually thought Written from a multidisciplinary perspective but firmly rooted in the practice of making public histories this book brings the study of transport museums firmly into the mainstream of academic and professional
