

Notes toward a Politics of Location (1984)

I am to speak these words in Europe, but I have been searching for them in the United States of America. A few years ago I would have spoken of the common oppression of women, the gathering movement of women around the globe, the hidden history of women's resistance and bonding, the failure of all previous politics to recognize the universal shadow of patriarchy, the belief that women now, in a time of rising consciousness and global emergency, may join across all national and cultural boundaries to create a society free of domination, in which "sexuality, politics, . . . work, . . . intimacy . . . thinking itself will be transformed."¹

I would have spoken these words as a feminist who "happened" to be a white United States citizen, conscious of my government's proven capacity for violence and arrogance of power, but as self-separated from that government, quoting

Talk given at the First Summer School of Critical Semiotics, Conference on Women, Feminist Identity and Society in the 1980s, Utrecht, Holland, June 1, 1984. Different versions of this talk were given at Cornell University for the Women's Studies Research Seminar, and at the Burger Lectures, Pacific Oaks College, Pasadena, California.

without second thought Virginia Woolf's statement in Three Guineas that "as a woman I have no country. As a woman I want no country. As a woman my country is the whole world."

This is not what I come here to say in 1984. I come here with notes but without absolute conclusions. This is not a sign of loss of faith or hope. These notes are the marks of a struggle to keep moving, a struggle for accountability.²

Beginning to write, then getting up. Stopped by the movements of a huge early bumblebee which has somehow gotten inside this house and is reeling, bumping, stunning itself against windowpanes and sills. I open the front door and speak to it, trying to attract it outside. It is looking for what it needs, just as I am, and, like me, it has gotten trapped in a place where it cannot fulfill its own life. I could open the jar of honey on the kitchen counter, and perhaps it would take honey from that jar; but its life process, its work, its mode of being cannot be fulfilled inside this house.

And I, too, have been bumping my way against glassy panes, falling half-stunned, gathering myself up and crawling, then again taking off, searching.

I don't hear the bumblebee any more, and I leave the front door. I sit down and pick up a secondhand, faintly annotated student copy of Marx's The German Ideology, which "happens" to be lying on the table.

I will speak these words in Europe, but I am having to search for them in the United States of North America. When I was ten or eleven, early in World War II, a girlfriend and I used to write each other letters which we addressed like this:

Politics Of Location:

The Politics of Location Andrew Kirby, 2015-12-14 This book originally published in 1982 begins with an examination of space and its role in the process of public provision and collective consumption Variations in provision are linked to the Weberian notion of social status and political struggles over consumption and externality issues Health care and education are considered in spatial contexts and the whole basis of the electoral system is also discussed together with geographic underpinnings In each case emphasis is placed on the jurisdictional organization of space by public bodies The author examines the various examples of spatial cleavages in which political events are redirected by issues such as nuclear power airport location road construction and urban renewal Music, National Identity and the Politics of Location Vanessa

Knights, 2016-04-29 How are national identities constructed and articulated through music Popular music has long been associated with political dissent and the nation state has consistently demonstrated a determination to seek out and procure for itself a stake in the management of its popular musics Similarly popular musics have been used from the ground up as sites for both populist and popular critiques of nationalist sentiment from the position of both a globalizing and a local vernacular culture The contributions in this book arrive at a critical moment in the development of the study of national cultures and musicology The book ranges from considerations of the ideological focus of cultural nationalism through to analyses of musical hybridity and musical articulations of other kinds of identities at odds with national identity The processes of global homogenization are thereby shown to have brought about a transitional crisis for national cultural identities the evolution of these identities particularly with reference to the concept of authenticity in music is situated within broader debates on power political economy and constructions of the self Theorizations of practice are employed after the manner of Bourdieu Gramsci Goffman Gadamer Habermas Bhabha Lacan and Žižek Each contribution acts as a case study to characterize the strategies through which differing modes of musical discourse engage critique or obscure discourses on national identity The studies include discussions of musical representations of Irishness the relationship between Afropop and World Music Norwegian club music the revival of traditional music in Serbia resistance to cultural homogeneity in Brazil contemporary Uyghur song in Northwest China rap and race in French society technobanda from the barrios of Los Angeles and Spanish Moroccan rai In this way the book seeks to characterize the ideological configurations that help to activate and sustain hegemonic amb

The Discursive Politics of Gender Equality Emanuela Lombardo, Petra Meier, Mieke Verloo, 2009-06-02 This book explores the discursive constructions of gender equality and the implications of these understandings in a broad range of policy fields Using gender equality as a prime example a number of internationally renowned scholars offer a new vocabulary to identify and study processes of the reduction amplification shifting or freezing of meaning The main aim of the book is to understand the dynamics and to reflect on the consequences of such discursive politics in recent policy making on gender equality It explores both the potential opportunities that are opened up for the promotion of equality through discursive politics and the limitations they impose Distinctive features of the volume include chapters covering a range of case studies in Europe the USA and the Asia region tackling contemporary political debates on equality new insights of relevance to public policy practices such as gender mainstreaming with theorizing on intersecting inequalities The Discursive Politics of Gender Equality will be of interest to students and scholars of political science public policy comparative politics gender and women studies Place and the Politics of Identity Michael Keith, Steve

Pile, 2004-11-23 In the last two decades new political subjects have been created through the actions of the new social movements often by asserting the unfixed and overdetermined character of identity Further in attempting to avoid essentialism people have frequently looked to their territorial roots to establish their constituency A cultural politics of resistance as exemplified by Black politics feminism and gay liberation has developed struggles to turn sites of oppression and discrimination into spaces of resistance This book collects together perspectives which challenge received notions of geography which are in danger of becoming anachronisms without a language to articulate the new space of resistance the new politics of identity Writing Women's Communities Cynthia G. The Politics of Writing Islam Mahmut Mutman, 2013-11-21 The Politics of Writing Islam provides a much needed critique of existing forms of studying writing and representing Islam in the West Through critiquing ethnographic literary critical psychoanalytic and theological discourses the author reveals the problematic underlying cultural and theoretical presuppositions Mutman demonstrates how their approach reflects the socially politically and economically unequal relationship between the West and Islam While offering a critical insight into concepts such as writing power post colonialism difference and otherness on a theoretical level Mutman reveals a different perspective on Islam by emphasizing its living everyday and embodied aspects in dynamic relation with the outside world in contrast to the stereotyped authoritarian and backward religion characterized by an omnipotent God Throughout Mutman develops an approach to culture as an embodied everyday living and ever changing practice He argues that Islam should be perceived precisely in this way that is as an open heterogeneous interpretive multiple and worldly belief system within the Abrahamic tradition of ethical monotheism and as one that is contested within as well as outside its own culture

Politics of Parousia Tat-siong Liew, 2021-08-30 This volume moves literary criticism of the Gospels further into the socio political struggle for liberation particularly into the realm of colonial postcolonial discourse Taking seriously the thought that Mark's Gospel was written under Roman colonization and using inter con textuality as an underlying theory it examines the relation between Mark's story of Jesus and colonial politics especially Mark's emphasis on the parousia and his constructions of colonial subjects. It argues that Mark's apocalyptic simultaneously resists and reinscribes colonial ideology in terms of three subject positions and subject matters: authority, agency, and gender. Juxtaposing apocalyptic and politics, dissidence and duplication, as well as Chinese American narratives and the Markan text, this volume seeks to rethink our struggle for social change and the relationship between cultural politics and Gospel studies.

The Power of Geography (RLE Social & Cultural Geography) Jennifer Wolch, Michael Dear, 2014-01-23 This book illuminates the profound influence of geography on everyday life. Concentrating on the realm of social reproduction, gender, family, education, culture, and tradition, race, ethnicity, the contributors provide both an articulation of a theory of territory and reproduction and concrete empirical analyses of the evolution of social practices in particular places. At the core of the book's contribution is the concept of society as a time-space fabric upon which are engraved the processes of political, economic, and socio-cultural life. A second distinctive feature of the book is its substantive focus on the relation between territory and social practice. Thirdly, it represents a significant step in the redefinition of the research agenda in human geography.

The Politics of Diversity in Music Education Alexis Anja Kallio, Heidi Westerlund, Sidsel Karlsen, Kathryn Marsh, Eva Sæther, 2021-03-19 This open access book examines the political structures and processes that frame and produce understandings of diversity in and through music education. Recent surges in nationalist, fundamentalist, protectionist, and separatist tendencies highlight the imperative for music education to extend beyond nominal policy agendas or wholly celebratory diversity discourses. Bringing together high-level theorisation of the ways in which music education upholds or unsettles understandings of society and empirical analyses of the complex situations that arise when negotiating diversity in practice, the chapters in this volume explore the politics of inquiry in research, examine music teachers' navigations of the shifting political landscapes of society and state, extend conceptualisations of diversity in music education beyond familiar boundaries, and critically consider the implications of diversity for music education leadership. Diversity is thus not approached as a label applied to certain individuals or musical repertoires but as socially organized difference produced and manifest in various ways as part of everyday relations and interactions. This compelling collection serves as an invitation to ongoing reflexive inquiry to deliberate the politics of diversity in a fast-changing and pluralist world and together work towards more informed and ethically sound understandings of how diversity in music education policy, practice, and research is framed and conditioned both locally and globally.

The Politics of Belonging Nira Yuval-Davis, 2011-11-04 This is an in-depth examination of a slippery and contradictory subject. Knowledge alone is not enough for this type of project. It takes breaking out of narrow conceptual cages and unsettling what we think of as stable meanings. The author brings all of this to life in often unforgettable ways. Saskia Sassen, Professor, Columbia University. National identities were once taken largely for granted in social science. Now they are part of an even more complex politics of belonging that challenges both public affairs and the categories of social science Nira Yuval Davis offers a nuanced account that will be important for scholars and all those concerned with contemporary politics Craig Calhoun Director LSE This is a cutting edge investigation of the challenging debates around belonging and the politics of belonging Alongside the hegemonic forms of citizenship and nationalism which have tended to dominate our recent political and social history Nira Yuval Davis examines alternative contemporary political projects of belonging constructed around the notions of religion cosmopolitanism and the feminist ethics of care The book also explores the effects of globalization mass migration the rise of both fundamentalist and human rights movements on such politics of belonging as well as some of its racialized and gendered dimensions A special space is given to the various feminist political movements that have been engaged as part of or in resistance to the political projects of belonging Yuval Davis deconstructs notions of national and ethnic and interrogates the effects that different political projects of belonging have on members of these collectivities who are differentially located socially economically and politically Silent Cinema and the Politics of Space Jennifer M. Bean, Anupama Kapse, Laura Horak, 2014-04-02 In this cross cultural history of narrative cinema and media from the 1910s to the 1930s leading and emergent scholars explore the transnational crossings and exchanges that occurred in early cinema between the two world wars Drawing on film archives from around the world this volume advances the premise that silent cinema freely crossed national borders and linguistic thresholds in ways that became far less possible after the emergence of sound These essays address important questions about the uneven forces geographic economic political psychological textual and experiential that underscore a non linear approach to film history The messiness of film history as demonstrated here opens a new realm of inquiry into unexpected political social and aesthetic crossings of silent cinema
