

Understanding Budgeting

- Democracy and Budgeting
 - Many politicians “spend” money to buy votes.
 - With many groups and people asking for government assistance, the budgets get bigger.
 - Some politicians compete by trying not to spend money.
 - People like government programs, but they really don't want to pay for them, thus there are deficits & the public debt.

Politics Programs And Budgets A Reader In Government Budgeting:

Politics, Programs, and Budgets James Warren Davis, 1969 Policy and Politics in State Budgeting Kurt M.

Thurmaier, Katherine G. Willoughby, 2014-12-18 States are the key to contemporary government reform efforts in the United States but we know very little about their relative effectiveness at resource allocation and their actual capacity to absorb additional fiscal and managerial responsibilities This path breaking study examines state budget offices as institutional actors with special attentio to the role of budget examiners Drawing on empirical findings from field studies of eleven states in the American heartland the authors demonstrate how budgeting at the state level has become more policy oriented requiring complex decision making by budget analysts The incrementalist model of budgetary decision making thus gives way to a multiple rationalities model The authors illustrate the decision making model with the story of two office examiners who have distinctly different orientations as they begin their work and contrast the different decision nationalities that come into play for them at different points in a typical budget cycle The book includes a comprehensive bibliography of historical and modern writings on state budgeting operations activities and decision making state budgeting cycles and the state level policy development process Contemporary Japanese Budget Politics John Creighton Campbell, 1977 International

The Politics of Public Budgeting Irene S. Rubin, 2016-09-22 Public budgeting is inherently political In The Politics of Public Budgeting author Irene S Rubin lays out the actors involved interest groups public officials legislators and the public and shines a light on how these groups who each have their own goals are able to bargain and barter their way to a resolution The new Eighth Edition examines the budgeting process over time and sets issues like the federal deficit and health care expenditures in political and comparative context As in previous editions the book also draws on examples from all levels of government and emphasizes the relationships among them By carefully analyzing each strand of the decision making process Rubin shows the extraordinary cooperation involved in passing a budget and achieving accountability

Priorities in Nuclear Technology Irvin C. Bupp, 2019-03-29 Originally published in 1988 This book considers why some public policies succeed and others do not It looks at the entrepreneurial process that creates public policies and examines whether they prosper or falter because of their political consequences The programs and personnel of the Atomic Energy Commission are the empirical foundation for these arguments The data generated by that agency s annual budget making cycles collected over time and organised by program are used as evidence to test some propositions about policy formation within the executive branch of government The author s concern is with questions of where and how priorities are established in a complex institutional environment To answer the more fundamental causal question of why some programs prosper while others wither or die use is made of more historical analysis and comparison of the fortunes of several of AEC's efforts to develop applied nuclear technology Routledge Library Editions: Energy Resources Various, 2021-06-23 Reissuing works originally published between 1961 and 1990 this set of 12 books offers a selection of scholarship on the history of natural resources Many of the titles discuss the nuclear power debate from various angles while others look at coal or resources and energy in the third world Defense Management Journal, 1970 Dictionary Catalog of the Department Library United States.
