The Villa of the Mysteries in Pompeii Elaine K. Gazda, 2000 This is a catalogue of an exhibition by the Kelsey Museum at the University of Michigan which focused on a cycle of frescoes found in 1990 at the well known villa on the outskirts of ancient Pompeii Probably painted around 60 BC the cycle depicts young women probably being initiated into the cult of Bacchus Dionysus in preparation for marriage The catalogue presents a number of objects connected with the villa as well as the reconstruction watercolours commissioned by Francis Willey Kelsey founder of the museum from Maria Barosso an artist working in Rome at the time of the frescoes discovery Even more interesting are the ten essays that precede the artefacts which focus on women and cult in the art of Roman Italy and have been developed out of a research group led by Gazda

Fazio, Lawrence Wodehouse, 2003 The Roman architect and engineer Vitruvius declared firmitas utilitas and venustas firmness commodity and delight to be the three essential attributes of architecture These qualities are brilliantly explored in this book which uniquely comprises both a detailed survey of Western architecture including Pre Columbian America and an introduction to architecture from the Middle East India Russia China and Japan The text encourages readers to examine closely the pragmatic innovative and aesthetic attributes of buildings and to imagine how these would have been praised or criticized by contemporary observers Artistic economic environmental political social and technological contexts are discussed so as to determine the extent to which buildings met the needs of clients society at large and future generations Library of Congress Subject Headings

The Material Life of Roman Slaves Sandra R. Joshel, Lauren Hackworth Petersen, 2015-10-01 The Material Life of Roman Slaves is a major contribution to scholarly debates on the archaeology of Roman slavery. Rather than regarding slaves as irretrievable in archaeological remains, the book takes the archaeological record as a key form of evidence for reconstructing slaves' lives and experiences. Interweaving literature, law, and material evidence, the book searches for ways to see slaves in the various contexts to make them visible where evidence tells us they were in fact present. Part of this project involves understanding how slaves seem irretrievable in the archaeological record and how they are often actively, if unwittingly, left out of guidebooks and scholarly literature. Individual chapters explore the dichotomy between visibility and invisibility and between appearance and disappearance in four physical and social locations: urban houses, city streets, and neighborhoods; workshops and villas.

Greek and Roman art and general Roman civilization history and culture Mosaics of the Greek and Roman World

Katherine M. D. Dunbabin, 1999 This book provides a comprehensive account of mosaics in the ancient world from the early pebble mosaics of Greece to the pavements of Christian churches in the East Separate chapters in Part I cover the principal regions of the Roman Empire in turn in order to bring out the distinctive characteristics of their mosaic workshops Questions of technique and production of the role of mosaics in architecture and of their social functions and implications are treated in Part II The book discusses both well known works and recent finds and balances consideration of exceptional masterpieces against standard workshop production Two main lines of approach are followed throughout first the role of mosaics as a significant art form which over an unbroken span illuminates the evolution of pictorial style better than any comparable surviving medium and secondly their character as works of artisan production closely linked to their architectural context
