Mother The Great Revolutionary Novel:

The Russian Revolutionary Novel Richard Freeborn, 1985-02-28 Professor Freeborn's book is an attempt to identify and define the evolution of a particular kind of novel in Russian and Soviet literature the revolutionary novel This genre is a uniquely Russian phenomenon and one that is of central importance in Russian literature The study begins with a consideration of Turgenev's masterpiece Fathers and Children and traces the evolution of the revolutionary novel through to its most important development a century later in Pasternak's Doctor Zhivago and the emergence of a dissident literature in the Soviet Union Professor Freeborn examines the particular phases of the genre's development and in particular the development after 1917 the early fiction which explored the relationship between revolution and instinct such as Pilnyak's The Naked Year the first attempts at mythmaking in Leonov's The Badgers and Furmanov's Chapayev the next phase in which novelists turned to the investigation of ideas exemplified most notably by Zamyatin's We the resumption of the classical approach in such works as Olesha's Envy which explore the interaction between the individual and society and finally the appearance of the revolutionary epic in Gorky's The Life of Klim Samgin Sholokhov's Quiet Flows the Don and Alexey Tolstoy's The Road to Calvary Professor Freeborn also examines the way this kind of novel has undergone change in response to revolutionary change and he shows how an important feature of this process has been the implicit assumption that the revolutionary novel is distinguished by its right to pass an objective independent judgement on revolution and the revolutionary image of man This is a comprehensive and challenging study of a uniquely Russian tradition of writing which draws on a great range of novels many of them little known in the West As with other titles in this series all quotations have been translated

Despite the Soviet regime's claim of being opposed to any religious heritage this book reveals how Stalinist cinema drew on Russian religious tradition and culture in the creation of cinematic representations of Soviet women during WWII. Further, the book shows how the adoption of Russian cultural and religious heritage in Soviet war cinema served Stalinist collective identity construction policies and state citizen relations. In so doing, this study contributes to a range of fields within Russian and Soviet studies including gender studies, cinema studies, Soviet modernity and the study of identity construction and state-nation relations. Whilst this book is aimed at researchers and academics, it provides a supplementary source for undergraduate and postgraduate students of Soviet Russian studies.

Mother Maxim Gorky, 2015-03-28. Alexei Maximovich Peshkov (28 March 1868 – 18 June 1936), primarily known as Maxim Gorky, was a Russian and Soviet writer, a founder of the Socialist Realism literary method and a political activist. Gorky was born in Nizhny Novgorod and became an orphan at the age of eleven. Gorky was brought up by his grandmother. In 1880, at the age of twelve, he ran away from home. After an attempt at suicide in December 1887, he travelled on foot across the Russian Empire for five years, changing jobs and accumulating impressions, used later in his writing. As a journalist working for provincial newspapers, he wrote under the pseudonym Jehudiel Khlamida. The name is suggestive of cloak and dagger by the similarity to the Greek chlamys (cloak). He began using the pseudonym Gorky (from literally bitter) in 1892 while working in Tiflis for the newspaper The Caucasus. The name reflected his simmering anger about life in Russia and a determination to speak the bitter truth. Gorky's first book, Essays and Stories, in 1898, enjoyed a sensational success, and his career as a writer began. Gorky wrote incessantly, viewing literature less as an aesthetic practice, though he worked hard on style and form, than as a moral and political act that could change the world. He described the lives of people in the lowest strata and on the margins of society, revealing their hardships, humiliations and brutalisation, but also their inward spark of humanity. Gorky's reputation grew as a unique literary voice from the bottom strata of society and as a fervent advocate of Russia's social, political and cultural transformation. By 1899, he was openly associating with the emerging Marxist social democratic movement, which helped make him a celebrity among both the intelligentsia and the growing numbers of conscious workers. At the heart of all his work was a belief in the inherent worth and potential of the human person, incarnate. In his writing, he counterposed individuals aware of their natural dignity and inspired by energy and will with people who succumb to the degrading conditions of life around them. Both his writings and his letters reveal a restless man a frequent self description struggling to resolve contradictory feelings of faith and scepticism love of life and disgust at the vulgarity and pettiness of the human world God's Horse and The Atheists' School Wilhelm Dichter,2012-02-29 Normal 0 false false false EN US X NONE X NONE God s Horse 1996 and The Atheists School 1999 Wilhelm Dichter s novelistic memoirs are both striking for their spare precise prose and for the fullness with which they inhabit the perspectives of respectively a young boy trying to survive the Holocaust in hiding and an adolescent in the turbulent world of post war Poland The books openly address a rarely documented phenomenon a Jew who having escaped death in Nazi occupied Poland ascends into the upper echelons of Polish society as a committed Communist After the war the narrator becomes the stepson of a rising star in the petroleum ministry He tries to gain acceptance by becoming a propagandist but he can t help wondering if those who constantly warn of a renewal of Jewish persecution may be right
