Mayas Children:

Maya Children Karen KRAMER, Karen Kramer, 2009-06-30 Among the Maya of Xculoc an isolated farming village in the lowland forests of the Yucatan peninsula children contribute to household production in considerable ways Thus this village the subject of anthropologist Karen Kramer s study affords a remarkable opportunity for understanding the economics of childhood in a pre modern agricultural setting Drawing on a range of theoretical perspectives and extensive data gathered over many years Kramer interprets the form value and consequences of children s labor in this maize based culture She looks directly at family size and birth spacing as they figure in the economics of families and she considers the timing of children s economic contributions and their role in underwriting the cost of large families Kramer s findings in particular that the children of Xculoc begin to produce more than they consume long before they marry and leave home have a number of interesting implications for the study of family reproductive decisions and parent offspring conflict and for debates within anthropology over children s contributions in hunter gatherer versus agricultural societies With its theoretical breadth and its detail on crop yields reproductive histories diet work scheduling and agricultural production this book sets a new standard for measuring and interpreting child productivity in a subsistence farming community Maya's Children

Knowing Their Place? Identity and Space in Children's Literature Terri Doughty, Dawn Thompson, 2011-12-14

Traditionally in the West children were expected to know their place but what does this comprise in a contemporary globalized world? Does it mean to continue to accept subordination to those larger and more powerful? Does it mean to espouse unthinkingly a notion of national identity? Or is it about gaining an awareness of the ways in which identity is derived from a sense of place? Where individuals are situated matters as much if not more than it ever has. In children's literature the physical places and psychological spaces inhabited by children and young adults are also key elements in the developing identity formation of characters and through engagement of readers too. The contributors to this collection map a broad range of historical and present day workings of this process exploring indigeneity and place tracing the intertwining of place and identity in diasporic literature analyzing the relationship of the child to the natural world and studying the role of fantastic spaces in children's construction of the self. They address fresh topics and texts ranging from the indigenization of the Gothic by Canadian mixed blood Anishinabe writer Drew Hayden Taylor to the lesser known children's books of George Mackay Brown to eco feminist analysis of contemporary verse novels. The essays on more canonical texts such as Peter Pan and the Harry Potter series provide new angles from which to revision them. Readers of this collection will gain understanding of the complex interactions of place space and identity in children's literature. Essays in this book will appeal to those interested in Children's Literature Aboriginal Studies Environmentalism and literature and Fantasy literature.

Maya Goes To Mars - Early Reader - Children's Picture Books Isabel Stokes, John Davidson, Mendon Cottage Books, 2016-10-09
Maya Goes To Mars Early Reader Children's Picture Books There Was a Woman Domino Renee Perez, 2008-07-01
How is it that there are so many lloronas? A haunting figure of Mexican oral and literary traditions La Llorona permeates the consciousness of her folk community. From a ghost who haunts the riverbank to a murderous mother condemned to wander the earth after killing her own children in an act of revenge or grief the Weeping Woman has evolved within Chican imaginations across centuries yet no truly comprehensive examination of her impact existed until now. Tracing La Llorona from ancient oral tradition to her appearance in contemporary material culture There Was a Woman delves into the intriguing transformations of this provocative icon. From La Llorona's roots in legend to the revisions of her story and her exaltation as a symbol of resistance Domino Renee Perez illuminates her many permutations as seductress hag demon or pitiful woman Perez draws on more than two hundred artifacts to provide vivid representations of the ways in which these perceived identities are woven from abstract notions such as morality or nationalism and from concrete often misunderstood concepts from advertising to television and literature The result is a rich and intricate survey of a powerful figure who continues to be reconfigured

Genocide in Contemporary Children's and Young Adult Literature Jane Gangi, 2014-03-14 This book studies children's and young adult literature of genocide since 1945 considering issues of representation and using postcolonial theory to provide both literary analysis and implications for educating the young Many of the authors visited accurately and authentically portray the genocide about which they write others perpetuate stereotypes or otherwise distort demean or oversimplify In this focus on young people's literature of specific genocides Gangi profiles and critiques works on the Cambodian genocide 1975-1979 the Iraqi Kurds 1988 the Maya of Guatemala 1981-1983 Bosnia Kosovo and Srebrenica 1990s Rwanda 1994 and Darfur 2003 present In addition to critical analysis each chapter also provides historical background based on the work of prominent genocide scholars To conduct research for the book Gangi traveled to Bosnia engaged in conversation with young people from Rwanda and spoke with scholars who had traveled to or lived in Guatemala and Cambodia This book analyses the ways contemporary children typically ages ten and up are engaged in the study of genocide and addresses the ways in which child survivors who have witnessed genocide are helped by literature that mirrors their experiences
