Mulcahy, 2013-05-01 President Obama has on a number of occasions rejected policies that have been tried and do not work Legislation such as No Child Left Behind and policies such as Race to the Top are neither effective nor based on sound research Educational policy making is now more than ever the preserve of politicians advocacy foundations and lobbyists parading as corporate leaders Teachers have little voice their role is merely to be held responsible for policies foisted upon them In Transforming Schools Alternative Perspectives on School Reform our aim is to provide alternative perspectives to the dead end educational policies by which our governments have become consumed We turn the spotlight on a select range of topics that have become the focus of concern and we consider the implications for school improvement These topics include school reform in general the achievement gap literacy standardized assessment social justice and ecojustice aesthetic and moral education and general education The Educated Person

Donal G. Mulcahy, 2008 Liberal education has long been a fascination for scholars in a variety of disciplines and is closely associated with the idea of the educated person Seen at one time as a matter for colleges and universities over the years it has become central to the debate surrounding general education in high school and even the earlier grades Yet so many and varied are the uses of the term liberal education that the question arises of whether and how the idea is any longer a useful or helpful construct In what way might it speak helpfully to educational challenges we face today In what ways does it still speak helpfully to educational challenges we face today In what ways might it be a guide as we search for a better way forward These are the central questions that are addressed in this book In doing so the positions of three theorists John Henry Newman Mortimer J Adler and Jane Roland Martin who have written about liberal education in a compelling way and from different perspectives are selected for close analysis The analysis is built upon to fashion a new ideal of the educated person and a new theory of liberal education Curriculum Leadership Allan A. Reinventing Public Education Paul Hill, Lawrence C. Pierce, James W. Guthrie, 2009-02-15 A heated debate is raging over our nation's public schools and how they should be reformed with proposals ranging from imposing national standards to replacing public education altogether with a voucher system for private schools Combining decades of experience in education the authors propose an innovative approach to solving the problems of our school system and find a middle ground between these extremes Reinventing Public Education shows how contracting would radically change the way we operate our schools while keeping them public and accessible to all and making them better able to meet standards of achievement and equity Using public funds local school boards would select private providers to operate individual schools under formal contracts specifying the type and quality of instruction In a hands on concrete fashion the authors provide a thorough explanation of the pros and cons of school contracting and how it would work in practice They show how contracting would free local school boards from operating schools so they can focus on improving educational policy how it would allow parents to choose the best school for their children and finally how it would ensure that schools are held accountable and academic standards are met While retaining a strong public role in education contracting enables schools to be more imaginative adaptable and suited to the needs of children and families In presenting an alternative vision for America s schools Reinventing Public Education is too important to be ignored Rethinking America's Correctional Policies Anne S. Douds,Eileen M. Ahlin,2017-06-02 Commonsense Choices from Uncommon Voices Rethinking America s Correctional Policies brings together the experiences of men who served time in prison with contemporary research on correctional policy This work combines a voyeuristic desire to observe evil and the consequences of the system of punishment with detached consideration of what those stories can tell us about who we are as a nation and how we treat those who have betrayed the social trust The authors simultaneously examine first person accounts of inmate experiences with the correctional system and what actually works in operation to promote the rehabilitative and restorative models of justice so many of our policymakers espouse Each chapter opens with a vignette a recollection of an event or series of events about an inmate s experience during the various phases of correctional processing These first hand accounts have been collected from men who served time in prison These men s stories are examined in their own right then extrapolated to a broader analysis of the underlying social and policy issues to which that vignette speaks All chapters follow the same structure a opening vignette about a former inmate b analysis which includes i identification of the underlying issue ii reflection and iii extrapolation to a larger policy issue and c recommendations from the field for enacting practice and crafting policy more responsive to the identified issue Developing a Quality Curriculum Allan A. Glatthorn,2004-02-17 n this concise well organized guide to developing high quality school curricula Glatthorn blends sound research initiatives and trends with his practical experience as a curriculum consultant to more than one hundred school systems Glatthorn believes that shared leadership and responsibility are essential to achieve quality Curriculum development should involve a collaborative process that includes input from the state district leaders school administrators classroom teachers and parents From Organizing and Planning for Curriculum Work to Conducting a Curriculum Audit to Ensure Quality Developing a Quality Curriculum is a valuable resource for understanding and practicing sound curriculum development Rethinking the History of American Education W.
