River Towna:

River Towns of the Delaware Water Gap Don Dorflinger, Marietta Dorflinger, 2009-03-16 As early as 1829 Antoine Dutot saw potential for a profitable resort industry at the Delaware Water Gap and began construction of the first Kittatinny House overlooking the Delaware River After the arrival of the Delaware Lackawanna and Western Railroad in 1856 other hostelrys of various sizes and appointments followed and were soon filled each summer with happy vacationers from New York City and Philadelphia Residents of surrounding villages on both sides of the Delaware River also shared the seasonal wealth of this natural playground yet they still managed to make a living during the rest of the year River Towns of the Delaware Water Gap salutes the grand hotels their diminutive little sisters and the people who ran them or lived in the gap and its neighboring river towns Small Town Pleasures Dean Klinkenberg, 2017-10 Small towns along the Mississippi River are great places to visit especially at those times when we don't want to deal with the hassles of visiting bigger cities This book features 27 small towns along the Mississippi River from Minnesota to Louisiana Small is the key word each one has a population under 10 000 people and the smallest community has just 66 permanent residents In each community you'll enjoy Historic architecture Outdoor recreation Great river views Friendly people Take a walk along the river Get a piece of pie Find a tavern and share a drink with the folks who live there Have a conversation Above all enjoy the slower pace But be warned this type of travel is terribly addictive The River Towns of Connecticut Charles McLean Andrews, 1889 Union County River Towns Jeannette Lasansky, 2011 High ridges and lush valleys teeming with natural resources abutted Union County's river towns of Allenwood White Deer New Columbia West Milton and Winfield Creeks emptying into the Susquehanna River connected gristmills and communities like Spring Garden to their river neighbors Narrow gauge railroad lines brought excursions from White Deer to Tea Springs and men and lumber to operations run by lumber barons The Reading Railroad ran beside the Susquehanna but other lines crossed it establishing West Milton as a railroad hub Central Oak Heights and Devitt's Camp perched above West Milton Allenwood and Spring Garden while groves and islands at the river's edge were dotted with rustic camps In the mid 20th century a new Route 15 altered most of these towns' streetscapes as World War II took the town of Alvira and area farmlands by eminent domain for explosives production Through vintage photographs Union County River Towns chronicles the rich history and evolution of this former frontier land The River Towns of Connecticut Charles McLean Andrews, 1991-01-01 The River Towns of Connecticut: A Study of Wethersfield Charles McLean Andrews, 2022-10-26 This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work Scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved reproduced and made generally available to the public We appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you

Sunbelt/Frostbelt Janet Rothenberg Pack, 2005-03-02 Metropolitan growth and development results from a complex mix of factors Consumer preferences growth and geographical shifts in population increasing incomes market restructuring quality of schools and location of affordable housing are just a few that play a critical role Other important influences include state and local interactions historical circumstances and the natural topography of a metropolitan area Federal and state policies taken together set the rules of the development game that tend to facilitate economic decentralization the concentration of poverty and greater fiscal and racial disparities between communities In Sunbelt Frostbelt Janet Rothenberg Pack and her contributors examine the role of market forces and government policies in shaping growth and development patterns in major metropolitan areas The findings are a result of a multiyear project analyzing five different locales two sunbelt metro areas Los Angeles and Phoenix and three in northern climes Pittsburgh Chicago and Philadelphia Through its intensive study of these areas the book offers a deep understanding of the federal policies and diverse market forces that have affected urban development patterns in the last few decades Despite the diversity of the cities the contributors find remarkable similarities in the problems they face Urban sprawl and spatial inequality are among the common challenges attributable to market forces and public policies Despite the many similarities the book finds important differences in the extent of the problems and recommends numerous policies for remedying them It concludes by examining how these different sunbelt and frostbelt metro areas have attempted to adopt policy reforms that address their unique growth challenges Contributors include a team of researchers from Arizona State University Peter Dreier Occidental College Robert E Gleeson Northern Illinois University Joseph Gyourko Univ
