When the books arrived, he lost himself in the old adventures. Yet as he flicked through the pages, there was another story being written. In the margins of each book were the scribbles of the little boy who had once owned them: a little boy by the name of Terence John Prendergast. Terence wrote jokes and hints for adventurers following the same stories as him. More troubling among the notes were intimations of a tormented childhood, of the boys and teachers who bullied him, of the things he hated about himself and had to improve, of his thoughts of suicide and his desperate need to find friends, to be liked, and to find somebody anybody to confide in. THE BOY IN THE BOOK is Nathan's poignant recreation of the discovery of the fragments of Terence Prendergast's diary, his quest to find the lost boy and the friendship that resulted from their first meeting. In doing so, Nathan is forced to examine his own childhood, and as his relationship with Terence deepens, he begins to believe that the two men are not so different and to reflect on the darkness that can exist in childhood. American Motorcyclist, 2002-03 American Motorcyclist magazine, the official journal of the American Motorcyclist Association, tells the stories of the people who make motorcycling the sport that it is. The study shows how women's literature has inscribed itself into the American discourse of the Whitmanesque open road, or more generally, the freedom of the road. Women writers have participated in this powerful American myth yet at the same time also have rejected that myth as fundamentally based on gendered and racial ethnic hierarchies and power structures and modified it in the process of writing back to it The book analyzes stories about female runaways outlaws questers adventurers kidnapees biker chicks travelling saleswomen and picaras and makes theoretical observations on the debates regarding discourses of spatiality and mobility debates which have defined the so called spatial turn in the humanities The analytical concept of transdifference is introduced to theorize the dissonant plurality of social and cultural affiliations as well as the narrative tensions produced by such pluralities in order to better understand the textual worlds of women s multiple belongings as they are present in these writings Roads of Her Own is thus not only situated in the broader context of a constructivist cultural studies but also by discussing narrative mobility under the sign of gender combines insights from social theory and philosophy feminist cultural geography and literary studies Key names and concepts Doreen Massey Rosi Braidotti Literary Studies Spatial Turn Gendered Space and Mobility Nomadism Road writing Transdifference American Culture Popular Culture Women s Literature after the Second Wave Quest Picara
