Guardians of Islam Kathryn A. Miller, 2008-10-09 Muslim enclaves within non Islamic polities are commonly believed to have been beleaguered communities undergoing relentless cultural and religious decline Cut off from the Islamic world these Muslim groups it is assumed passively yielded to political social and economic forces of assimilation and acculturation before finally accepting Christian dogma Kathryn A Miller radically reconceptualizes what she calls the exclave experience of medieval Muslim minorities By focusing on the legal scholars faqihs of fifteenth century Aragonese Muslim communities and translating little known and newly discovered texts she unearths a sustained effort to connect with Muslim coreligionaries and preserve practice and belief in the face of Christian influences Devoted to securing and disseminating Islamic knowledge these local authorities intervened in Christian courts on behalf of Muslims provided Arabic translations and taught and advised other Muslims Miller follows the activities of the faqihs their dialogue with Islamic authorities in nearby Muslim polities their engagement with Islamic texts and their pursuit of traditional ideals of faith She demonstrates that these local scholars played a critical role as cultural mediators creating scholarly networks and communal solidarity despite living in an environment dominated by Christianity

Time and the Astrolabe in the Canterbury Tales

Marijane Osborn, 2002 Marijane Osborn demonstrates that Chaucer structured the Canterbury Tales after the astrolabe an Arabic Islamic time keeping device Chaucer's fascination with this device also accounts for the sense of time and astronomy in the Tales
