Students Changing Schools Cynthia Taines, 2007 An UnCommon Theory of School Change Kevin Fahey, Angela Breidenstein, Jacy Ippolito, Frances Hensley, 2019-04-19 This is a book for activists and educators who not only think schools need to be improved but are also fiercely committed to their reinvention and hopeful that it can be achieved A School Changes Jerrold E. Kemp, 1995 Small Change Tina Kelley, Robin Willner, Educational Priorities Panel (New York, N.Y.), New York Interface Development Project, 1988 Guiding School Change Frances O'Connell Rust, Helen Freidus, 2001 Drawn from the real life and work of practitioners committed to change this narrative sheds light on the role and work of change agents

Listening to Urban Kids Bruce L. Wilson, Dick Corbett, 2001-01-11 Independent researchers interview urban middle school students to get their impressions of the teachers that help them to succeed in schools

Context and Change H. Dickson Corbett, Joseph J. D'Amico, 1987 Changing the Traditional School Paradigm Eden L. Goldberg, 2005 Transforming School Cultures Martin L Maehr, Carol Midgley, 1996-07-28 Revised from the 1993 Essentials of Pulp and Papermaking to account for the fact that it was being used as an industry reference as well as a teaching tool Most of the chapters have been little changed but new material is added on paper chemistry and optical properties wood and fiber anatomy paper use and processing equipment A guide for troubleshooting pumps is also included The first third serves as a textbook for beginning students and the rest provides detailed information on specific topics relating to the production and use of paper Annotation copyright by Book News Inc Portland OR Changing Schools, a School Community Officer Perspective, 1991 The Struggle for Change Marvin Wideen, Ivy Pye, 1994 Barriers to Change Barbara J. Falsey, 1988 This dissertation is a case study of an educational program serving low income minority students in an inner city public high school The program involves an experiential curriculum that is based on Outward Bound It is an elective program that is jointly planned and implemented by the high school and a small non profit organization dedicated to outdoor education and educational reform The program involves both classroom work and a series of outdoor activities These activities include rock climbing camping and canoeing The formal goals of the program are to raise students self esteem to improve students school attendance and to improve students academic performance Although this study began as an evaluation of program effects on student outcomes it evolved into an analysis of the reform process itself The historical roots of the program s design and ideology are described and the ways in which the organizational context in which it is implemented creates tensions in and obstacles to the realization of the program model are discussed and analyzed The research design involved both qualitative and quantitative methods These include a a year and a half of participant observation in the classroom on trips with the students and in meetings at both the school and the non profit organization b

surveys of and interviews with students at the beginning and end of their participation in the program and 3 an analysis of students official school records The quantitative analysis of students self esteem and school performance suggests that the program has only very modest measurable effects on students The program has however indirect and unanticipated benefits not only for the students but for the school the teachers and the staff of the non profit organization as well In the face of the obstacles that the reformers encounter these benefits sustain the commitment of the staffs at the two organizations and the enthusiasm of the students The study demonstrates the difficulties that exist in attempting to implement and study in a contemporary urban high school a program which grew out of a very different time and context Leaves v vi Resources for Social [sic] Change II Simon Wittes, University of Michigan.
