

The background of the cover is a photograph of an industrial facility, likely a refinery or chemical plant. It features several tall, cylindrical smokestacks or distillation columns, some with ladders and platforms. A large, curved industrial tank is visible on the left side. The scene is lit with a warm, yellowish light, possibly from the sun or industrial lamps, creating a hazy atmosphere.

Selfs Punishment:

Self's Punishment Bernhard Schlink, Walter Popp, 2007-12-18 As a young man Gerhard Self served as a Nazi prosecutor After the war he was barred from the judicial system and so became a private investigator He has never however forgotten his complicity in evil Hired by a childhood friend the aging Self searches for a prankish hacker who s invaded the computer system of a Rhineland chemical plant But his investigation leads to murder and from there to the charnel house of Germany s past where the secrets of powerful corporations lie among the bones of numberless dead What ensues is a taut psychologically complex and densely atmospheric moral thriller featuring a shrewd self mocking protagonist

Self-Defense, Necessity, and Punishment Uwe Steinhoff, 2019-10-08 This book offers a philosophical analysis of the moral and legal justifications for the use of force While the book focuses on the ethics self defense it also explores its relation to lesser evil justifications public authority the justification of punishment and the ethics of war Steinhoff s account of the moral use of force covers a wide range of topics including the nature of justification in general the precise elements of different justifications the logic of claim and liberty rights and of rights forfeiture the value of human life and its limits and the principles of reciprocity and precaution While the author s analysis is primarily philosophical it is informed by a metaethical stance that also places heavy emphasis on existing law and legal scholarship In doing so the book appeals to widely shared moral intuitions precepts and concepts grounded in criminal law Self Defense Necessity and Punishment offers the most comprehensive and systematic account of the ethics of self defense It will be of interest to scholars and graduate students working in applied ethics and moral philosophy philosophy of law and political philosophy Punishment as

Societal-defense Phillip Montague, 1995 People punished by law are treated in ways that we consider immoral in other contexts In Punishment as Societal Defense Phillip Montague develops a new theory of punishment that instead of justifying it on the basis of deterrence or retribution constructs it as analogous to individual self defense If people are justified in defending themselves against wrongful aggression Montague argues the same principles of distributive justice underlie punishment as societal defense School Discipline and Self-Discipline George G. Bear, 2010-06-03 How can schools create safe well supervised classroom environments while also teaching students skills for managing their behavior on their own This invaluable guide presents a framework for achieving both of these crucial goals It shows how to balance external reinforcements such as positive behavior supports with social emotional learning interventions Evidence based techniques are provided for targeting the cognitive and emotional processes that underlie self discipline both in classroom instruction and when correcting problem behavior Describing how to weave the techniques together into a comprehensive schoolwide disciplinary approach the book includes over a dozen reproducible forms checklists and assessment tools The large size format facilitates photocopying This book is in The Guilford Practical Intervention in the Schools Series edited by Sandra M Chafouleas Punishment and Ethics J. Ryberg, J. Corlett, 2010-10-20 A collection of original contributions by philosophers working in the ethics of punishment gathering new perspectives on various challenging topics including punishment and forgiveness dignity discrimination public opinion torture rehabilitation and restitution Making Amends Linda Radzik,2009-02-02 Can wrongs be righted Can we make up for our misdeeds or does the impossibility of changing the past mean that we remain permanently guilty While atonement is traditionally considered a theological topic Making Amends uses the resources of secular moral philosophy to explore the possibility of correcting the wrongs we do to one another Philosophers generally approach the problem of past wrongdoing from the point of view of either a judge or a victim They assume that wrongdoing can only be resolved through punishment or forgiveness But this book explores the responses that wrongdoers can and should make to their own misdeeds responses such as apology repentance reparations and self punishment Making Amends explores the possibility of atonement in a broad spectrum of contexts from cases of relatively minor wrongs in personal relationships to crimes to the historical injustices of our political and religious communities It argues that wrongdoers often have the ability to earn redemption within the moral community Making Amends defends a theory of atonement that emphasizes the rebuilding of respect and trust among victims communities and wrongdoers The ideal of reconciliation enables us to explain the value of repentance without restricting our interest to the wrongdoer's character to account for the power of reparations without placing a dollar value on dignity to justify the suffering of guilt without falling into a simplistic endorsement of retribution and to insist on the moral responsibility of wrongdoing groups without treating their members unfairly The Origins of Self Martin P. J. Edwardes,2019-07-22 The Origins of Self explores the role that selfhood plays in defining human society and each human individual in that society It considers the genetic and cultural origins of self the role that self plays in socialisation and language and the types of self we generate in our individual journeys to and through adulthood Edwardes argues that other awareness is a relatively early evolutionary development present throughout the primate clade and perhaps beyond but self awareness is a product of the sharing of social models something only humans appear to do The self of which we are aware is not something innate within us it is a model of our self produced as a response to the models of us offered to us by other people Edwardes proposes that human construction of selfhood involves seven different types of self All but one of them are internally generated models and the only non model the actual self is completely hidden from conscious awareness We rely on others to tell us about our self and even to let us know we are a self Logical Self-defense Ralph Henry Johnson,J. Anthony Blair,2006 Classic work once again available Offers step by step guidelines for identifying and analyzing arguments It outlines a theory of good argument to use for purposes of evaluating and constructing arguments It contains guidelines for constructing arguments and for preparing and writing essays or briefs Special methods for interpreting and assessing longer arguments are provided It gives guidelines to help filter out the more reliable information from newspapers and television news Offers an array of devices to deal with the tricks and deceits of so much of today's advertising Helps students improve their ability to recognize interpret and evaluate arguments and to formulate clear well organized arguments themselves Secondary and college students debate coaches classroom instructors community active people

P. Kaufman,2009-01-01 In Justified Killing Whitley R P Kaufman argues that none of the leading theories adequately explains why it is permissible even to kill an innocent attacker in self defense given the basic moral prohibition against killing the innocent Kaufman suggests that such an explanation can be found in the traditional Doctrine of Double Effect according to which self defense is justified because the intention of the defender is to protect himself rather than harm the attacker Attention and Self-Regulation C. S. Carver,M. F. Scheier,2012-12-06 Seek simplicity and distrust it Alfred North Whitehead It will become all too clear that an ability to see patterns in behavior an ability that some might feel proud of can lead more easily to a wrong description than a right one William T Powers The goal of the theorist the scholar is to take a collection of observations of the world and perceive order in them This process necessarily imposes an artificial simplicity upon those observations That is specific observations are weighed differently from each other whenever a theoretical account is abstracted from raw experiences Some observed events are misunderstood or distorted others are seen as representing random fluctuations and are ignored and yet others are viewed as centrally important This abstraction and oversimplification of reality is inevitable in theory construction Moreover the abstracted vision builds upon itself That is as a structure begins to emerge from continued observation the structure itself guides the search for new information The result is a construction that is more elaborate than what existed before but it still is usually simpler than reality It is important for scholars to believe in the value of their task and in the general correctness of the vision that guides their work This commitment and the hope of progress that follows from it make it possible to continue even when the work is difficult and slow Self-Leadership Christopher P. Honor and Revenge: A Theory of Punishment Whitley R.P. Kaufman, 2012-08-28 This book addresses the problem of justifying the institution of criminal punishment It examines the paradox of retribution the fact that we cannot seem to reject the intuition that punishment is morally required and yet we cannot even after two thousand years of philosophical debate find a morally legitimate basis for inflicting harm on wrongdoers The book comes at a time when a new abolitionist movement has arisen a movement that argues that we should give up the search for justification and accept that punishment is morally unjustifiable and should be discontinued immediately This book however proposes a new approach to the retributive theory of punishment arguing that it should be understood in its traditional formulation that has been long forgotten or dismissed that punishment is essentially a defense of the honor of the victim Properly understood this can give us the possibility of a legitimate moral justification for the institution of punishment

Narcissism and the Self R.
