American Monthly Review of Reviews Albert Shaw,1902 American Monthly Review of Reviews ,1902 The American Monthly Review of Reviews ,1902 Founded Upon the Seas Walter Oakeshott, The United States Catalog ,1925 The English Renaissance, Orientalism, and the Idea of Asia D. Johanyak,W. Lim,2010-03-29 This unique collection of essays examines the complex significations of Asia in the literary and cultural production of Early Modern England Contributors come from a range of backgrounds to bring a range of perspectives to this topic Machines as the Measure of Men Michael Adas,2015-06-04 Over the past five centuries advances in Western understanding of and control over the material world have strongly influenced European responses to non Western peoples and cultures In Machines as the Measure of Men Michael Adas explores the ways in which European perceptions of their scientific and technological superiority shaped their interactions with people overseas Adopting a broad comparative perspective he analyzes European responses to the cultures of sub Saharan Africa India and China cultures that they judged to represent lower levels of material mastery and social organization Beginning with the early decades of overseas expansion in the sixteenth century Adas traces the impact of scientific and technological advances on European attitudes toward Asians and Africans and on their policies for dealing with colonized societies He concentrates on British and French thinking in the nineteenth century when he maintains scientific and technological measures of human worth played a critical role in shaping arguments for the notion of racial supremacy and the civilizing mission ideology which were used to justify Europe s domination of the globe Finally he examines the reasons why many Europeans grew dissatisfied with and even rejected this gauge of human worth after World War I and explains why it has remained important to Americans Showing how the scientific and industrial revolutions contributed to the development of European imperialist ideologies Machines as the Measure of Men highlights the cultural factors that have nurtured disdain for non Western accomplishments and value systems It also indicates how these attitudes in shaping policies that restricted the diffusion of scientific knowledge have perpetuated themselves and contributed significantly to chronic underdevelopment throughout the developing world Adas s far reaching and provocative book will be compelling reading for all who are concerned about the history of Western imperialism and its legacies First published to wide acclaim in 1989 Machines as the Measure of Men is now available in a new edition that features a preface by the author that discusses how subsequent developments in gender and race studies as well as global technology and politics enter into conversation with his original arguments The Publisher, 1905 Marlowe's "Dr. Faustus" and "Tamburlaine" Johannes H. Birringer, 1984 Within the context of Elizabethan critical theories on tragic drama and more generally on form and content style rhetoric and moral meaning in theatrical performance Marlowe's major plays raise important questions about the possibility of innovation in poetics and dramaturgy on a stage which was hardly prepared to sustain the subversive self display of the new Marlovian hero After discussing two recent approaches v Balthasar Derrida to the definition of orthodoxy and theology in drama Birringer examines the forms of ethical challenge inscribed within the Tamburlaine plays and Dr Faustus Detailed analyses of the performance dynamics and dramatic styles in Marlowe's plays also help to clarify their particular status in relation to contemporary theatre practice and especially Shakespearean drama

Art in Theory Paul Wood, Leon Wainwright, Charles Harrison, 2020-12-11 A ground breaking new anthology in the Art in Theory series offering an examination of the changing relationships between the West and the wider world in the field of art and material culture Art in Theory The West in the World is a ground breaking anthology that comprehensively examines the relationship of Western art to the art and material culture of the wider world Editors Paul Wood and Leon Wainwright have included 370 texts some of which appear in English for the first time The anthologized texts are presented in eight chronological parts which are then subdivided into key themes appropriate to each historical era The majority of the texts are representations of changing ideas about the cultures of the world by European artists and intellectuals but increasingly as the modern period develops and especially as colonialism is challenged a variety of dissenting voices begin to claim their space and a counter narrative to western hegemony develops Over half the book is devoted to 20th and 21st century materials though the book's unique selling point is the way it relates the modern globalization of art to much longer cultural histories As well as the anthologized material Art in Theory The West in the World contains A general introduction discussing the scope of the collection Introductory essays to each of the eight parts outlining the main themes in their historical contexts Individual introductions to each text explaining how they relate to the wider theoretical and political currents of their time Intended for a wide audience the book is essential reading for students on courses in art and art history It will also be useful to specialists in the field of art history and readers with a general interest in the culture and politics of the modern world
