Tourism and Foreign Direct Investment H. Cristina Jönsson, 2022-03-02 This is the first volume to examine and shed significant light on the issues, challenges and prospects presented by foreign direct investment (FDI) in tourism, a topic of increasing relevance in light of the COVID-19 pandemic and economic consequences. This book addresses the need to examine the TFDI phenomenon considering resilient tourism development approaches and includes discussion on impacts of a rapidly evolving global pandemic on tourism. Recognising that its impact on tourism has only just begun, the book includes early estimates of the damage to the tourism economy and TFDI over 2020 and beyond. It considers how the COVID-19 pandemic may change society, the economy and tourism, and how some of the key research needs to understand these changes and contribute to a more sustainable post pandemic tourism sector. Through a collection of chapters focusing on principles, practices and a diverse range of destination case studies, the book considers TFDI from the economic, social and environmental and regulatory perspectives. Thus, the book will advance understanding of the positive and negative impacts of TFDI as well as how emerging problems and wider implications for local economies and communities can be managed more sustainably while also discussing the transformative opportunities offered by TFDI regarding key economic, social and environmental issues. This will be essential reading for upper level students and researchers in the field of tourism development.

Competitiveness Strategy in Developing Countries Ganeshan Wignaraja, 2003-10-04 Globalization and structural adjustment offer many opportunities for export orientated industrialization in developing economies. As a group, competitiveness in the developing countries has improved, but while East Asian economies have had rapid export growth and technological upgrades, South Asian and African economies have lagged behind. Old structures, institutions, behavioural patterns and public policies are ill adapted to deal with the challenges posed by technological change and economic liberalization. Consequently, there is an urgent need for change in government and private sector attitudes and strategies. This volume seeks to generalise the lessons across developing country and enterprise cases and sheds light on which trade and industrial strategies and instruments work best and which do not work in relation to manufacturing competitiveness.

Handbook on Trade and Development Oliver Morrissey, Ricardo A. López, Kishor Sharma, 2015-05-29 This timely Handbook comprehensively explores the complex relationships between trade and economic performance in developing countries, illustrating that it is not trade per se that is important, but the context at the firm, country and regional level in which trade occurs.

Population — Development — Environment J. Baguant, Wolfgang Lutz, C. Prinz, F.L. Toth, A.B. Wils, 2013-06-29 Because the number of options is often limited, small island states tend to find it uncommonly difficult to strike a balance between population, environment and development. Relatively high population density and small land areas without much in the way of natural resources do not provide the best of circumstances for improving the living conditions of the population especially a fast growing one. The result is often stunted economic development and environmental stress both on land and offshore. The developments in the island state of Mauritius over the past 30 years however can serve as an inspiration and illustration of how extremely adverse conditions can be overcome. In the early 1960s Mauritius was trying to cope with rapid population growth, extreme poverty and grim economic prospects. Population density was 324 inhabitants per km², total fertility was 5.7 and GNP per capita was less than 200. In 1990 the situation in Mauritius was radically different. Although population density had increased to 527 inhabitants per km², total fertility had dropped to 2.0 and GNP per capita had increased to 2,310. Economic stagnation had been replaced by steady growth and full employment and environmental problems were being addressed as issues of high priority.

Aviation and Tourism Anne Graham, Andreas Papatheodorou, Peter Forsyth, 2016-04-08. Transport is an essential element of tourism providing the vital link between the tourist generating areas and destinations. Good accessibility which is determined by the transport services provided is a fundamental condition for the development of any tourist destination. Moreover the transport industry can be a major beneficiary of tourism because of the additional passenger demand that may be generated. Aviation is an increasingly important mode of transport for tourism markets. Whilst geography has meant that in modern times air travel has always been the dominant mode for long distance travel and much international tourism moves towards deregulation and in particular the emergence of the low cost carrier sector have also increased aviation's significance for short and medium haul tourism trips. Thus developments in aviation can have very major implications for many leisure and business tourism markets. However the characteristics and needs of leisure travellers are generally so very different from business travellers that this necessitates a separate consideration of these markets if a detailed understanding of the relationship with aviation is to be gained. In spite of the obvious closeness between the aviation and tourism industries there are very few specialist texts on this subject. Most tourism focused books consider aviation as just one component of the tourism industry which needs to be discussed whereas aviation specialist texts rarely concentrate on just leisure travel. In addition there is very little literature that gives a detailed appreciation of the complexities and potential conflicts associated with the development of coherent and effective aviation and tourism policies. Therefore it is the aim of this book to fill this important gap which exists with a comprehensive in depth study of the relationship between aviation and leisure travel. The book deals exclusively with issues related to the relationship between aviation and leisure travel. It does this with an analysis of the theoretical concepts relevant to the subject area combined with a detailed investigation of current practice within the aviation and tourism industries. Each chapter is illustrated with case study material that will reinforce the understanding of the issues that are being examined.
