Mining in Latin America Kalowatie Deonandan, Michael L. Dougherty, 2016-07-15 The last two decades have witnessed a dramatic expansion and intensification of mineral resource exploitation and development across the global south especially in Latin America This shift has brought mining more visibly into global public debates and spurred a great deal of controversy and conflict This volume assembles new scholarship that provides critical perspectives on these issues The book marshals original empirical work from leading social scientists in a variety of disciplines to address a range of questions about the practices of mining companies on the ground the impacts of mining on host communities and the responses to mining from communities civil society and states The book further explores the global and international causes consequences and innovations of this new era of mining activity in Latin America Key issues include the role of Canadian mining companies and their investment in the region and to a lesser extent the role of Chinese mining capital Several chapters take a regional perspective while others are based on empirical data from specific countries including Bolivia Brazil El Salvador Guatemala and Peru

International Organizations Clive Archer, 2001 The third edition of Clive Archer's widely used textbook continues to provide students with an introduction to international organisations exploring their increasing significance in the modern international political systems

Affectedness And Participation In International Institutions Jan Sändig, Jochen von Bernstorff, Andreas Hasenclever, 2020-06-09 Affectedness and Participation in International Institutions looks at the growing involvement of affected persons in global politics such as young climate activists indigenous movements and persons affected by HIV AIDS Since the early 2000s international organisations within various policy areas have increasingly recognised and involved affected persons organisations This has promised to address long standing legitimacy and democracy deficits of international policy making and norm setting Yet the powerful do not easily cede the terrain Some major states classic NGOs and intergovernmental organisations seek to curtail the influence of the newcomers The authors within this collection study these contestations from an interdisciplinary political science and international law perspective Based on evidence from a broad range of policy areas we address some of the crucial questions What does it mean to be affected How can affected groups meaningfully participate in international negotiations Whose voices do still remain excluded Ultimately the authors chart whether the rising involvement of the most affected will re shape global politics and social struggles on the ground Taking a dual political science and international law perspective Affectedness and Participation in International Institutions will be of great interest to scholars of civil society in global governance international law and international institutions This book was originally published as a special issue of Third World Thematics

Committee on Government Operations, 1977 International Organisations Clive Archer, 2002-09-11 This widely used textbook continues to provide students with an introduction to International Organisations exploring their rise their development in the 20th century and accounting for their significance in the modern international political and economic system The third edition has been fully revised and updated continues to offer a unique concise yet comprehensive approach giving students an accessible and manageable introduction to this core part of International Relations offers authoritative guides to further reading

International Law from Below Balakrishnan Rajagopal, 2003-11-06 The emergence of transnational social movements as major actors in international politics as witnessed in Seattle in 1999 and elsewhere has sent shockwaves through the international system Many questions have arisen about the legitimacy coherence and efficiency of the international order in the light of the challenges posed by social movements This book offers a fundamental critique of twentieth century international law from the perspective of Third World social movements It examines in detail the growth of two key components of modern international law international institutions and human rights in the context of changing historical patterns of Third World resistance Using a historical and interdisciplinary approach Rajagopal presents compelling evidence challenging debates on the evolution of norms and institutions the meaning and nature of the Third World as well as the political economy of its involvement in the international system

The Battle for International Law Jochen von Bernstorff, Philipp Dann, 2019-10-22 This volume provides the first comprehensive analysis of international legal debates between 1955 and 1975 related to the formal decolonization process It is during this era couched between classic European imperialism and a new form of US led Western hegemony that fundamental legal debates took place over a new international legal order for a decolonised world The book argues that this era presents in essence a battle a battle that was fought out in particular over the premises and principles of international law by diplomats lawyers and scholars In a moment of relative weakness of European powers newly independent states and international lawyers from the South fundamentally challenged traditional Western perceptions of international legal structures engaging in fundamental controversies over a new international law. The legal outcomes of this battle have shaped the world we live in today. Contributions from a global set of authors cover contemporary debates on concepts central to the time such as self-determination, sources and concessions, non-intervention, wars of national liberation, multinational corporations and the law of the sea. They also discuss influential institutions such as the United Nations, International Court of Justice and World Bank. The volume also incorporates contemporary regional approaches to international law in the decolonization era and portraits of important scholars from the Global South.

U.S. Foreign Policy and the Third World--agenda 1985-86 John Williamson Sewell, 1985

Human Rights and Development in International Law Tahmina Karimova, 2016-04-28 This book addresses the legal issues raised by the interaction between human rights and development in contemporary international law. In particular, it charts the parameters of international law that states have to take into account in order to protect human rights in the process of development. In doing so, it departs from traditional analyses where human rights are mainly considered as a political dimension of development. Rather, the book suggests focusing on human rights as a system of international norms establishing minimum standards of protection of individuals and minimum standards applicable in all circumstances on what is essential for a dignified existence. The various dimensions covered in the book include the discourse on human rights and development, interrelationship, particularly opinio juris and the practice of states on the question of international assistance and cooperation in human rights law under legal regimes such as international humanitarian law and emerging rules in the area of protection of persons in the event of disasters, the extraterritorial scope of economic, social and cultural rights, treaties and legal principles on the respect for human rights in externally designed and planned development activities. Analysis of these topics sheds light on the question of whether international law as it stands today addresses most of the issues concerning the protection of human rights in the development process.

Rich Country Interests and Third World Development Robert Cassen, Richard Jolly, John W. Sewell, Robert Wood, 2025-04-01 First published in 1982, Rich Country Interests and Third World Development adds breadth and specificity to the exploration of the interests in Third World development of eleven rich countries: the United States, Canada, Japan, Australia, the United Kingdom, the Federal Republic of Germany, The Netherlands, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, and France. The authors analyze a spectrum of Northern economic, political and security interests in development in the South. They also examine how national experiences, political traditions, humanistic values and changing attitudes have influenced perceptions of and relationships with Third World countries over three decades of dramatic change in the North-South environment. This book helps lay a foundation for negotiated solutions to North-South issues by offering a greater appreciation of differences as well as commonalities in interests both among and within industrial and developing countries. An overview chapter points to issues broader than those raised in the country studies and addresses a critical question: On what terms is it in the interests of the North and South to pursue and fashion interdependence between them in the 1980s      The Making of Global International Relations Amitav Acharya, Barry Buzan, 2019-02-14 This book presents a challenge to the discipline of international relations IR to rethink itself in the light of both its own modern origins and the two centuries of world history that have shaped it By tracking the development of thinking about IR and the practice of world politics this book shows how they relate to each other across five time periods from nineteenth century colonialism through two world wars the Cold War and decolonization to twenty first century globalization It gives equal weight to both the neglected voices and histories of the Global South and the traditionally dominant perspectives of the West showing how they have moved from nearly complete separation to the beginnings of significant integration The authors argue that IR needs to continue this globalizing movement if it is to cope with the rapidly emerging post Western world order with its more diffuse distribution of wealth power and cultural authority      Economic Development in the Third World Michael P. Todaro, 1977 Textbook on economic development in developing countries discusses underdevelopment in the third world and problems of poverty unemployment income distribution and relevant economic theory and stresses interdependence of the world economy as regards food energy natural resources technology etc Diagrams glossary of terminology graphs references and statistical tables
