trade and foreign aid to economic development and he presents a long discussion of the Alliance for Progress its history its purposes its accomplishments and its failures Campos's philosophy regarding the role of the state in economic development and other questions emerges clearly from these pithy essays The valid distinction I see on the basis of my analysis of men and things is between pragmatic or functional nationalists and romantic or temperamental nationalists he writes The latter confuse intention with results They start with enthusiasm and end in fanaticism this being according to Santayana the art of redoubling efforts after losing sight of objectives Many romantic nationalists though they do not confess it favor the dangerous purgery of revolution The pragmatic nationalist seeks to operate within the frame of democratic institutions and prefers reform to revolution As to myself I shall continue considering myself a pragmatic nationalist I renounce the temptation of mobilizing resentment in order to gain the authority to plan development I would rather strengthen the national entrepreneur than merely antagonize the foreigner I would want the state not to do what it cannot do in order to do what it should do I prefer to love my own country rather than to hate the others

Industry, the State, and Public Policy in Mexico Dale Story, 2014-08-19 The industrialization process in Mexico began before that of any other nation in Latin America except Argentina with the most rapid expansion of new industrial firms occurring in the 1930s and 1940s and import substitution in capital goods evident as early as the late 1930s Though Mexico's trade relations have always been dependent on the United States successive Mexican presidents in the postwar period attempted to control the penetration of foreign capital into Mexican markets In Industry the State and Public Policy in Mexico Dale Story recognizing the significance of the Mexican industrial sector analyzes the political and economic role of industrial entrepreneurs in postwar Mexico He uses two original data sets industrial production data for 1929 1983 and a survey of the political attitudes of leaders of the two most important industrial organizations in Mexico to address two major theoretical arguments relating to Latin American development the meaning of late and dependent development and the nature of the authoritarian state Story accepts the general relevance of these themes to Mexico but asserts that the country is an important variant of both With regard to the authoritarian thesis the Mexican authoritarian state has demonstrated some crucial distinctions especially between popular and elite sectors The incorporation of the popular sector groups has closely fit the characteristics of authoritarianism but the elite sectors have operated fairly independently of state controls and the government has employed incentives or inducements to try to win their cooperation In short industrialists have performed important functions not only in accumulating capital and organizing economic enterprises but also by bringing together the forces of social change Industrial entrepreneurs have emerged as a major force influencing the politics of growth and the public policy arena has become a primary focus of attention for industrialists since the end of World War II
