Liminal Zones Kim Trevathan,2013-05-30 After the death of his paddling companion a German shepherd labrador retriever mix named Jasper Kim Trevathan began a series of solitary upstream kayaking quests in search of what he calls liminal zones transitional areas where dammed reservoirs give way to the current of the rivers that feed them For four years he scoured the rivers and lakes of America where environmentally damaging and now decaying man made structures have transformed the waterways In this thoughtful work he details his upriver adventures describing the ecological and aesthetic differences between a dammed river and a free flowing river and exploring the implications of what liminal zones represent a reassertion of pure unadulterated nature over engineered bodies of water Trevathan began by exploring the rivers and creeks of his childhood the Blood River and Clarks River in western Kentucky He soon ventured out to the Wolf River the Big South Fork of the Cumberland and other waterways in Tennessee In 2008 he looped around the country with trips to Indiana s Tippecanoe River Montana s Clearwater River Oregon s Deschutes and Rogue Rivers and Colorado s Dolores River as well as adventures on such southeastern rivers as the Edisto the Tellico and the Nantahala To Trevathan paddling upstream became a sort of religion with a vaporous deity that kept him searching Each excursion yielded something unexpected from a near drowning in the Rogue River to a mysterious fog bank that arose across the Nantahala at midday Throughout Liminal Zones Trevathan considers what makes certain places special why some are set aside and protected why others are not and how free flowing streams remain valuable to our culture our history and our physical and spiritual health This contemplative chronicle of his journeys by water reveals discoveries as varied and complex as the rivers themselves Report of the Rivers and Lakes Commission on the Illinois River and Its Bottom Lands John Watson Alvord, Charles Baker Burdick, Illinois. Rivers and Lakes Commission, 1915 Fresh Water Jennifer Bosveld, 2002 Alaska Natural Gas Transportation System: San Francisco United States. EIS Task Force, 1976 Camp Lejeune Proposed Expansion and Realignment, Onslow County, 1991 Ancient Monuments in the Countryside Timothy Darvill, 2014-02-15 Much of England s rich archaeological heritage lies in the countryside Many monuments such as barrows hillforts and Roman villas are familiar features to the landscape while other sites lie buried or only partly visible These remains are the result of the impact on the landscape of the countless generations of people who have lived worked and died within it The cumulative effect is the landscape we know today in which the historical dimension is an integral component of the valued whole and an important part of what most people in England are increasingly concerned to see protected and conserved The archaeological heritage however is a finite and fragile resource and much of it has been lost in the last two decades as a result of increasing pressures on farming industry and commerce to maximise the return on investment in the land The conservation of what remains therefore needs to be given urgent consideration This report has three main goals First it aims to present the background to the recognition investigation and management of the archaeological resource Second it attempts to review what is known of the resource the threats currently posed to it and the ways in which it can be exploited and conserved Finally it looks towards the development and promotion of a secure future for ancient monuments in the countryside The National Geographic Magazine, 1905 Indexes kept up to date with supplements Water and Development The World Bank, 2010-06-30 Development patterns increasing population pressure and the demand for better livelihoods in many parts of the globe all contribute to a steadily deepening global water crisis Development redirects consumes and pollutes water It also causes changes in the state of natural water reservoirs directly by draining aquifers and indirectly by melting glaciers and the polar ice caps Maintaining a sustainable relationship between water and development requires that current needs be balanced against the needs of future generations The development community has transformed and broadened its approach to water since the 1980s As stresses on the quality and availability of water have increased donors have begun to move toward more comprehensive approaches that seek to integrate water into development in other sectors This evaluation examines the full scope of the World Bank s lending and grant support for water activities More than 30 background papers prepared for the evaluation have analyzed Bank lending by thematic area and by activity type IDA and IBRD the Bank have supported countries in many water related sectors The evaluation by definition is retrospective but it identifies changes that will be necessary going forward including those related to strengthening institutions and increasing financial sustainability Lessons and results from nearly 2 000 loans and credits and work with 142 countries are identified
