Physical and Cultural Space in Pre-Industrial Europe Marko Lamberg, Marko Hakanen, Janne Haikari, 2011-01-11 Written by 19 scholars of history archaeology and ethnology this book takes a multidisciplinary approach to European spaces of the past and the human agents within them Prior to the Industrial Era the geography of Europe posed problems but also offered possibilities for its people Distances created obstacles to communication and state formation but at the same time inhabitants and officials in peripheral areas gained room to pursue more independent action allowing unique customs to flourish Focusing on northern Europe this history answers how early modern Europeans rulers officials aristocrats scholars priests and commoners perceived utilized and organized the space around them

Erikson, Eskimos & Columbus James Robert Enterline, 2003-05-01 This revealing analysis of Medieval cartography and native American travel upends conventional narratives about discovering the New World For generations American schools have taught children that Christopher Columbus discovered America in 1492 But evidence shows that Leif Erikson set foot on the continent centuries earlier As debate continues over which explorer deserves the credit early maps of North America suggest that we may be asking the wrong questions How did medieval Europeans have such specific geographic knowledge of North America a land even their most daring adventurers had not yet discovered In Erikson Eskimos and Columbus James Robert Enterline presents new evidence that traces this knowledge to the cartographic skills of indigenous people of the high Arctic who he contends provided the basis for medieval maps of large parts of North America Drawing on an exhaustive chronological survey of pre Columbian maps including the controversial Yale Vinland Map this book boldly challenges conventional accounts of Europe s discovery of the New World
