

The background of the entire cover is a high-magnification scanning electron micrograph (SEM) of human cells. The image shows a complex, three-dimensional network of cellular structures, including what appears to be a large, flat, spread-out cell in the upper right and several smaller, more rounded cells below it. The surface of the cells is highly textured with various ridges, grooves, and fine filaments. The color scheme is a monochromatic blue, with lighter shades highlighting the raised areas and darker shades in the recesses, giving a sense of depth and topography.
