Smethurst, 2013-02-21 This book explores the ramifications of understanding the similarities and differences between the tragedies of Euripides and Sophocles and realistic Japanese noh First it looks at the relationship of Aristotle's definition of tragedy to the tragedies he favored Next his definition is applied to realistic noh in order to show how they do and do not conform to his definition In the third and fourth chapters the focus moves to those junctures in the dramas that Aristotle considered crucial to a complex plot recognitions and sudden reversals and shows how they are presented in performance Chapter 3 examines the climactic moments of realistic noh and demonstrates that it is at precisely these moments that a third actor becomes involved in the dialogue or that an actor in various ways steps out of character Chapter 4 explores how plays by Euripides and Sophocles deal with critical turns in the plot as Aristotle defined it It is not by an actor stepping out of character but by the playwright's involvement of the third actor in the dialogue The argument of this book reveals a similar symbiosis between plot and performance in both dramatic forms By looking at noh through the lens of Aristotle and two Greek tragedies that he favored the book uncovers first an Aristotelian plot structure in realistic noh and the relationship between the crucial points in the plot and its performance and on the Greek side looking at the tragedies through the lens of noh suggests a hitherto unnoticed relationship between the structure of the tragedies and their performance that is the involvement of the third actor at the climactic moments of the plot This observation helps to account for Aristotle's view that tragedy be limited to three actors Irwin Allen Television Productions, 1964-1970 Jon Abbott, 2015-06-14 Before establishing himself as the master of disaster with the 1970s films The Poseidon Adventure and The Towering Inferno Irwin Allen created four of television's most exciting and enduring science fiction series Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea Lost in Space The Time Tunnel and Land of the Giants These 1960s series were full of Allen's favorite tricks techniques and characteristic touches and influenced other productions from the original Star Trek forward Every science fiction show owes something to Allen yet none has equaled his series pace excitement or originality This detailed examination and documentation of the premise and origin of the four shows offers an objective evaluation of every episode and demonstrates that when Irwin Allen's television episodes were good they were great and when they were bad they were still terrific fun
