

FEDERALISM AND THE FEDERAL IDEA

SELF RULE SHARED RULE: FEDERAL SOLUTIONS TO THE MIDDLE EAST CONFLICT and FEDERATION AND POLITICAL INTEGRATION

Both volumes edited by Daniel G. Elazar [Turtledove Publishing, London, 1979].

Both of these volumes were recently published under the auspices of the Jerusalem Institute for Federal Studies. This Institute, under the leadership of Prof. Daniel G. Elazar engages in research on questions concerning federalism and the application of the federal idea to the solution of international and national problems.

These books are the first in a new series which is intended to develop awareness to the potentialities of federalism, in this country, and perhaps also abroad. It was natural, therefore, that they be devoted to a general discussion of federalism on the one hand, and to the examination of the possibilities of federal solutions to the Middle East conflict on the other.

The volume entitled Self Rule Shared Rule is a distillation of the proceedings of a conference devoted to consideration of federal solutions for the Israel-Arab conflict. The conference convened from January 30 to February 2, 1978. The dates are quite relevant and explain why the volume is lacking an important dimension, i.e., the discussion of the autonomy issue relative to federalism. The conference was held after President Sadat's visit to Jerusalem but before the Camp David Agreements, although the Begin plan was already known and is even recalled by Louis Guttman in his survey.

The colloquium was opened with Prof. Elazar's excellent general survey examining the background of the possible federal approaches. It is completed by an excellent appendix, prepared by D. Elazar and I. Shakrensky, describing almost all the variations for a solution of the Palestine question. This appendix will certainly be a most welcome working document to researchers in this field.

The colloquium was divided into two parts: a discussion of the Arab-Israeli conflict, with special reference to the Palestine question, and a discussion of foreign attempts to solve multi-national (or multi-ethnic) situations.

The contributions and the discussions are not of equal standard and quality. Some are truly excellent and will certainly be consulted frequently; others are more superficial. Unfortunately, there is an absence of real "papers", dealing with the major questions. The contributions are generally short, followed by discussions. I would have preferred in-depth contributions followed by discussions rather than a more "impressionistic" form of discussion.
