Analyzing Media James W. Chesebro, Dale A. Bertelsen, 1998-10-01 For the past 25 years critics of communication have focused on the content and form of verbal and nonverbal communication while for the most part neglecting what traditionally has been considered a technical rather than a critical issue the impact of how messages are produced or formatted in the various media Topics such as the sexual and violent content of television and films the meaning of pornography and the persuasive efforts of advertisers largely have been examined with the use of social science methodologies that ignore the behavioral and message generating implications of specific media systems themselves Filling a significant void in the literature this volume eschews the notion of communication technologies as neutral conduits and instead depicts them as active and creative determinants of meaning In doing so it offers an illuminating examination of the dynamic relationships among communication cognition and social organization Providing a framework for the chapters that follow the first section of the book presents a history of human communication from a technological perspective explores the integral role of communication technologies in everyday life and isolates the ways in which criticism can function as an assessment system Three specific technological cultures that define human communication are identified the oral the literate and the electronic The authors identify structural features and discuss the social implications of each They also provide descriptions interpretations and evaluations of these technological cultures and show how criticism changes when the media of transmission is taken into account The book concludes with a cogent discussion of a range of topics surrounding media criticism such as its pedagogical implications how multiple selves can exist in a world of varied communication technologies the integration of communication technologies and how media studies should be incorporated into the disc

Image, Reality and Media Construction Fengmin Yan, 2019-09-24 This book explores how news media construct social issues and events and thereby convey certain perceptions within the scope of framing theory By operationalizing media framing as a process of interpretation through defining problem diagnosing causes making moral judgments and suggesting solutions the book proposes a systematic and transparent approach to images in news discourse. Based on a frame analysis it examines how German news media framed a list of China related issues and events and thereby conveyed particular beliefs and opinions on this country. Moreover it investigates whether there were dominant patterns of interpretation and the extent to which diverse views were evident by comparing two major daily newspapers with opposite political orientations the FAZ and the taz. Motivated by the relationship between image and reality the book explores image formation and persistence from media construction of meaning and human cognitive complexity in perceiving others. Media select certain issues and events and then interpret them from particular perspectives. A variety of professional and non professional factors behind news making may result in biased representations. In addition from a social psychological perspective inaccurate perceptions of foreign cultures may arise from categorical thinking, biased processing of stimulus information, intergroup conflicts of interest and in group favoritism. Accordingly whether media coverage deviates from reality is not the main concern of this book; instead it emphasizes the underlying logics upon which the conclusions and judgments were drawn. It therefore contributes to a rational understanding of Western discourse and holds practical implications for both Chinese public diplomacy and a more constructive role of news media in promoting the understanding of others.

The Irony of Regulatory Reform Robert Britt Horwitz, 1989. This study examines the history of telecommunications both telephone and broadcast with particular reference to attempts to regulate these media in the USA.

Talking Politics William A. Gamson, 1992-08-28. Those who analyze public opinion have long contended that the average citizen is incapable of recounting consistently even the most rudimentary facts about current politics; that the little the average person does know is taken strictly from what the media report with no critical reflection and that the consequence is a polity that is ill prepared for democratic governance. And yet social movements comprised by and large of average citizens have been a prominent feature of the American political scene throughout American history and have experienced a resurgence. William Gamson asks how is it that so many people become active in movements if they are so uninterested and badly informed about issues. The conclusion he reaches in this book is a striking refutation of the common wisdom about the public's inability to reason about politics.

Attitude Structure and Function Anthony R. Pratkanis, Steven J. Breckler, Anthony G. Greenwald, 2014-03-18. Utilizing new wave research including new psychological theories, new statistical techniques and a stronger methodology, this collection unites a diversity of recent research perspectives on attitudes and the psychological functions of an attitude. The objective of the editors was to bring together the bits and pieces of validated data into one systematic and adequate set of general principles leading to the view of attitudes as predictions. As the volume reformulates old concepts, explores new angles and seeks a relationship among various sub areas, it also shows improvements in the sophistication of research designs and methodologies, the specifications of variables and the precision in defining concepts.

An Ecological Perspective on Human Communication Theory Jo Ruth Liska, Gary Cronkhite, 1995. AN ECOLOGICAL PERSPECTIVE ON HUMAN COMMUNICATION THEORY introduces communication students to both research and theory at an undergraduate level and avoids extensive discussion of philosophical and epistemological issues The ecological interdisciplinary approach synthesizes information from diverse fields including anthropology biology linguistics psychology and sociology A student manual at the back of the book includes activities discussion questions recommended readings and videos The Influentials Gabriel Weimann, 1994-01-01

Although opinion leadership has been the subject of numerous studies in areas ranging from politics to fashion and in many societies and cultures The Influentials represents the first systematic analysis of the concept It offers a multidisciplinary presentation of the definitions typologies methods and findings of opinion leadership from its early formulation through the emergence of the first empirical evidence to the most recent research Weimann examines opinion leadership and personal influence in a number of areas including marketing public opinion and elections education fashion science agriculture and health care He also examines the growing criticism of the model based on theoretical and empirical weaknesses of the original concept and evaluates for the first time modifications that have emerged including a new measure the PS Scale and its testing and application The final chapters for the first time link opinion leadership with the important theoretical and research tradition of agenda setting Discourse as Social Interaction Teun Adrianus van Dijk, 1997-02-01

How do people engage in and competently manage discourse and interaction with others Whether in informal everyday conversations or professional dialogues people do things while they are speaking or writing Focusing on the fundamental interactional social political and cultural functions of text and talk this comprehensive volume shows that discourse is not merely form and meaning but also action This social dimension of discourse is further highlighted by examining the role of social identity and group membership such as those based on gender race and ethnicity How do members of various groups typically speak among each other and how do they communicate with people of other groups or cultures What is the role of discourse in the perpetuation of sexism or racism Several chapters use critical discourse analysis to examine the reproduction of social power dominance and inequality and special attention is paid to political and corporate discourse Other contributions show that the complex interplay of the forms meanings and actions of discourse both shape and are shaped by culture
