Shakespeare, Midlife, and Generativity Karl F. Zender, 2008-12-01 The life expectancy in Shakespearean times averaged only about twenty five to thirty five years but those who survived the illnesses of infancy and childhood could look forward to a long life with nearly the same level of confidence as someone living now But even so long ago some faced conflicts in their middle and later years that remain familiar today In Shakespeare Midlife and Generativity Karl F Zender explores William Shakespeare's depictions of middle age by examining the relationships between middle aged parents mainly fathers and their children in five of his greatest plays He finds that the middle aged characters in King Lear Macbeth Antony and Cleopatra The Winter's Tale and The Tempest much like their modern counterparts experience a fear of aging and debility Representations of middle age occur throughout the Shakespearean canon in forms ranging from Jaques seven ages speech in As You Like It to the emphasis almost an obsession in many plays on relations between the generations Lear Zender shows tries to forestall the approach of old age with a fantasy of literal rebirth in his relationship with Cordelia Macbeth depicts an even more urgent struggle against midlife decline while in Antony and Cleopatra Shakespeare portrays two characters in midlife crisis who attempt to redefine their identities by memorializing their former status and power now lost Drawing on Erik Erikson's theory of generativity a midlife shift from advancing one's own career to aiding a younger generation Zender explores the difficulties Shakespeare's characters face as they transfer power and authority to their children and others in the next generation Paying careful attention to the plays moral and ethical implications he demonstrates how Shakespeare's innovative depiction of the midlife experience focuses on internal psychological understanding rather than external actions such as ceremony and ritual
