Natural History Of Selborne 1788:

Natural History ,1919 Natural History and Antiquities of Selborne Gilbert White,1876 Early American Nature Writers Daniel Patterson,2007-11-30 At a time when the environment is of growing concern to students and general readers nature writing is especially meaningful This book profiles the literary careers of 52 early American nature writers such as John James Audubon Ralph Waldo Emerson Caroline Stansbury Kirkland Thomas Jefferson Henry David Thoreau and Mabel Osgood Wright Each entry is written by an expert contributor and discusses the writer s life and works Entries close with primary and secondary bibliographies and the encyclopedia ends with suggestions for further reading Global warming pollution and other issues have made the environment a topic of constant discussion these days Many environmental concerns were treated by early American nature writers who recognized the beauty of the natural world in an age of commercial expansion Some of the most famous writers of the 18th and 19th centuries wrote about nature and their works are stylistic masterpieces At a time when students are being encouraged to read and write about nonfiction these masterworks of early American nature writing are all the more important This book gives students and general readers a welcome introduction to early American nature writers Enlightenment Travel and British Identities Mary-Ann Constantine,Nigel Leask,2017-04-15 Weaving together science history antiquarianism and art this stimulating collection of essays amply demonstrates Thomas Pennant s centrality to a broad range of British Enlightenment debates and discourses especially those relating to Britain s so called Celtic Fringe At the same time it underscores the epistemological importance of travel and travel writing in the late eighteenth century Carl Thompson Senior Lecturer in English St Mary s University UK

Writing About Animals in the Age of Revolution Jane Spencer,2020-06-10 What did British people in the late eighteenth century think and feel about their relationship to nonhuman animals This book shows how an appreciation of human animal similarity and a literature of compassion for animals developed in the same years during which radical thinkers were first basing political demands on the concept of natural and universal human rights Some people began to conceptualise animal rights as an extension of the rights of man and woman But because oppressed people had to insist on their own separation from animals in order to claim the right to a full share in human privileges the relationship between human and animal rights was fraught and complex This book examines that relationship in chapters covering the abolition movement early feminism and the political reform movement Donkeys pigs apes and many other literary animals became central metaphors within political discourse fought over in the struggle for rights and freedoms while at the same time more and more writers became interested in exploring the experiences of animals themselves We learn how children s writers pioneered narrative techniques for representing animal subjectivity and how the anti cruelty campaign of the early 1800s drew on the legacy of 1790s radicalism Coleridge Wordsworth Clare Southey Blake Wollstonecraft Equiano Dorothy Kilner Thomas Spence Mary Hays Ignatius Sancho Anna Letitia Barbauld John Oswald John Lawrence and Thomas Erskine are just a few of the writers considered Along with other canonical and non canonical writers of many disciplines they placed nonhuman animals at the heart of British literature in the age of the French Revolution The Routledge Research Companion to Nineteenth-Century British Literature and Science John Holmes, Sharon Ruston, 2017-05-18 Tracing the continuities and trends in the complex relationship between literature and science in the long nineteenth century this companion provides scholars with a comprehensive authoritative and up to date foundation for research in this field In intellectual material and social terms the transformation undergone by Western culture over the period was unprecedented Many of these changes were grounded in the growth of science Yet science was not a cultural monolith then any more than it is now and its development was shaped by competing world views To cover the full range of literary engagements with science in the nineteenth century this companion consists of twenty seven chapters by experts in the field which explore crucial social and intellectual contexts for the interactions between literature and science how science affected different genres of writing and the importance of individual scientific disciplines and concepts within literary culture Each chapter has its own extensive bibliography The volume as a whole is rounded out with a synoptic introduction by the editors and an afterword by the eminent historian of nineteenth century science Bernard Lightman Captain Cook's Merchant Ships Stephen Baines, 2015-08-03 While the story of Endeavour is widely written about Captain Cook sailed in or with eight ships which began their lives as merchant ships This detailed illustrated history tells the story of these ships and the people who sailed in them In placing these ships and people in the personal political social financial scientific and religious contexts of their times this book provides a readable and comprehensible account of the long Eighteenth Century Often using contemporary sources this gripping account fills a gap in Cook history and attempts to catch something of that exciting violent gossipy but largely untaught and unknown period through which these vessels and their people sailed literally and figuratively between the old world and the new The Outline of Science: Psychic science John Arthur Thomson, 1922

Gerard Manley Hopkins Angus Easson, 2010-12-14 Hopkins was an experimental and idiosyncratic writer whose work remains important for any student of Victorian literature This guidebook offers extensive introductory comments on the contexts critical history and interpretations of his work Part of the Routledge Guides to Literature series this volume cross references thoroughly between sections and presents useful suggestions for further reading Animal Rights Hilda Kean, 1998-08-01 In the late twentieth century animals are news Parliamentary debates protests against fox hunting and television programs like Animal Hospital all focus on the way in which we treat animals and on what that says about our own humanity As vegetarianism becomes ever more popular and animal experimentation more controversial it is time to trace the background to contemporary debates and to situate them in a broader historical context Hilda Kean looks at the cultural and social role of animals from 1800 to the present at the way in which visual images and myths captured the popular imagination and encouraged sympathy for animals and outrage at their exploitation From early campaigns against the beating of cattle and ill treatment of horses to concern for dogs in war and cats in laboratories she explores the relationship between popular images and public debate and action She also illustrates how interest in animal rights and welfare was closely aligned with campaigns for political and social reform by feminists radicals and socialists A thoughtful effective and well written book The Scotsman It could hardly be more timely and its wonderful material is bound to provoke reflection The Independent A work of great interest Sunday Telegraph Lively impressively researched and well written a book that is timely and valuable Times Literary Supplement A pleasing balance of anecdote and analysis Times Higher Educational Supplement
