Nature Landscape And People Since The Second World War:

Nature, Landscape and People Since the Second World War T. Christopher Smout, 2001 In June 1999 a conference to celebrate the half century of the 1949 National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act was hosted by the Royal Society of Edinburgh Upon this legislation rested the establishment of National Parks in England and Wales and of the Nature Conservancy throughout Great Britain The papers gathered here all by major players on the scene look back over fifty years of countryside management and nature conservation assess the current situation and look forward to prospects for the future They range from consideration of the origins of the 1949 Act to recalling major incidents and pressures such as the toxic chemical scares of the 1960s the pressures from post war forestry and the problems of managing the rising tide of countryside recreation The changing nature of ecology is examined along with public attitudes to the environment The book concludes with a series of forward looks relating to the natural world in Britain and our enjoyment of it in the 21st century

An Environmental History of the UK Defence Estate, 1945 to the Present Marianna Dudley, 2012-05-03 This book brings to attention the history of places that have traditionally remained under the radar in discussions of war and the environment through site based studies of five training areas in southwest England and Wales Salisbury Plain Lulworth Dartmoor Sennybridge and Castlemartin At these sites the big events of the twentieth century are written into landscapes that absorb their impact and reflect change in intriguing ways Here however environment is more than a canvas on which historical forces play out it has an agency of its own as the depiction of the surprising nature and robust habitats of the training areas recognises An Environmental History of the UK Defence Estate 1945 to the Present critically examines the gradual greening of the MoD as it developed policies of military environmentalism It includes the histories of the ghost villages created by forced evictions and charts the rise and fall of anti military protest movements It depicts heated confrontations mass trespasses and demands for public access alongside conservation work and training activities situating the human histories of these sites within their environmental history and taking the reader behind the barbed wire in the first study of its kind Changing Times Martin Chick, 2020 A study of the main changes in the British economy from 1951 focussing on nationalisation and privatisation unemployment funding of the NHS and education deindustrialisation and Britain's changing industrial structure taxation inequality environmental change and policy and the UK's changing relationship with the EEC and the European Union Conflicts in Conservation Stephen M. Redpath, R. J. Gutiérrez, Kevin A. Wood, Juliette C. Young, 2015-05-07 Conflicts over the conservation of biodiversity are increasing and are serious obstacles to wildlife conservation efforts worldwide Changing patterns in land use over exploitation pollution climate change and the threat posed by invasive species all challenge the way we currently maintain and protect biodiversity from the local management of single species to the international management of resources Integrating approaches from different academic disciplines policy makers and practitioners this volume offers a radically new cross disciplinary multi scale approach to deal with conflicts Groundbreaking strategies for conservation are analysed and a large section of the book is devoted to exploring case studies of conflict from around the world Aimed primarily at academics researchers and students from disciplines relating to conservation ecology natural resources management and environmental governance this book will be equally valuable to conservation NGOs and practitioners and the policy community at national and international levels

The New Dimensions of the European Landscapes R.H.G Jongman, 2005-05-09 The European Landscape is under stress of changing land use and a changing attitude of its users Globalization the disappearance of the iron curtain and the recent EU enlargement to 25 countries have changed the economic and environmental dimensions of Europe Europe is changing its face from a western and eastern part to one European Union and to fast connections between its centres of activity The rural and cultural heritage of Europe has to be adapted to cope with this change However its landscape is worth to be conserved as well because it represents the European history in the same way as castles and churches It even more represents the history of the common people because it has been the tradition of the rural population that made these landscapes It cannot be prevented that Europe is changing and it is good that Europe adapts to the new dimensions of the world We in Europe have to define what we think is important and what must be conserved what can be adapted to be used for new functions and what can be abolished because it has no value These decisions will determine the new dimensions of the European landscapes The Frontis Workshop on the New Dimensions of the European Landscape was held on 10-12 June 2002 Wageningen University and Research Centre organized this workshop aiming to develop visions on the landscape in Europe its development and design in the future and to strengthen the international network in landscape planning

European

Landscapes in Transition Teresa Pinto-Correia, Jørgen Primdahl, Bas Pedroli, 2018-01-25 European rural landscapes as we experience them today are the result of ongoing processes and interactions between nature and society. These are changing fast; the future landscapes will be different from those we know currently. Written for academics, policy makers and practitioners, this book is the first to explore the complex histories of rural landscapes in Europe as a basis for their sound governance in the future. Tensions between the needs of agricultural spaces driven by economic incentives and a variety of non-agricultural functions are explored to demonstrate current challenges and the shortfalls in the policies that address them. Using inspiring case studies that highlight the roles of regional agents and communities, the authors go further than the usual analyses to illustrate the importance of local context. Written by experts currently working to revitalise the rural landscapes of Europe, the text concludes with suggestions for improving landscape policy and planning practice. The Oxford Handbook of Law, Regulation and Technology Roger Brownsword, Eloise Scotford, Karen Yeung, 2017 The variety, pace and power of technological innovations that have emerged in the 21st Century have been breathtaking. These technological developments, which include advances in networked information and communications, biotechnology, neurotechnology, nanotechnology, robotics and environmental engineering technology, have raised a number of vital and complex questions. Although these technologies have the potential to generate positive transformation and help address grand societal challenges, the novelty associated with technological innovation has also been accompanied by anxieties about their risks and destabilizing effects. Is there a potential harm to human health or the environment? What are the ethical implications? Do these innovations erode or antagonize values such as human dignity, privacy, democracy or other norms underpinning existing bodies of law and regulation? These technological developments have therefore spawned a nascent but growing body of law and technology scholarship broadly concerned with exploring the legal, social and ethical dimensions of technological innovation. This handbook collates the many and varied strands of this scholarship, focusing broadly across a range of new and emerging technology and a vast array of social and policy sectors through which leading scholars in the field interrogate the interfaces between law, emerging technology and regulation. Structured in five parts, the handbook I establishes the collection of essays within existing scholarship concerned with law and technology as well as regulatory governance; II explores the relationship between technology development by focusing on core concepts and values which technological developments implicate; III studies the challenges for law in responding to the emergence of new technologies, examining how legal norms, doctrine and institutions have been shaped, challenged and destabilized by technology and even how technologies have been shaped by legal regimes; IV provides a critical exploration of the implications of technological innovation, examining the ways in which technological innovation has generated challenges for regulators in the governance of technological development and the implications of employing new technologies as an instrument of regulatory governance; V explores various interfaces between law, regulatory governance and new technologies across a range of key social domains.

Nature's Spectacle John Sheail, 2014-06-17 National parks have always been an emotive and iconic symbol ever since the first parks of the modern era were created in the mid nineteenth century This book based on original research delves deeply into their character and significance and the larger context in which they developed The book celebrates the deserved attractiveness of the parks as wilderness or spectacle to millions of visitors but also emphasises how there was nothing inevitable self sustaining or without cost in their magnificence and accessibility Those early parks were a powerful unifying force as national playgrounds especially as motor transport democratised their use However they also provoked bitter conflict in their dispossession of local communities and perhaps deliberate segregation of people from scenery and wildlife That first century of national parks which concluded with the significant break of the Second World War and the subsequent development of more international approaches to conservation left an uncertain legacy It was a fragile foundation from which to build what became an integral part of today s conservation movement
