Families Under Stress

Benjamin R. Karney,John S. Crown,2007 Recent demands on the military have raised concerns about the impact of extended deployments on military marriages To evaluate this impact the authors draw on marital status data in service personnel records to estimate trends in marriage and marital dissolution between 1996 and 2005 and the specific effects of time deployed to Afghanistan and Iraq on subsequent risk of ending a marriage The results generally run counter to expectations Although rates of marital dissolution have increased since 2001 for most services and components they had declined in the five years prior to 2001 As a result marital dissolution rates across the services and components are currently similar to those observed in 1996 when the demands on the military were measurably lower In most cases service members who were deployed had a lower risk of subsequently ending their marriages than service members who did not deploy or deployed fewer days
