New Forces at Work in Refining D. J. Peterson, Sergej Mahnovski, 2003 Reports the results of discussions with representatives of refining firms technologies and services providers research institutions and other organizations on current and future trends in the U S refining industry Discussants were generally optimistic about the future of the industry but were concerned about the effects of environmental regulations They recommended that the Department of Energy assume a more prominent policy role on refining and fuels issues

Impact of Environmental Regulations on Oil Refining , Lifeblood Matthew T. Huber, 2013-08-01 If our oil addiction is so bad for us why don t we kick the habit Looking beyond the usual culprits Big Oil petro states and the strategists of empire Lifeblood finds a deeper and more complex explanation in everyday practices of oil consumption in American culture Those practices Matthew T Huber suggests have in fact been instrumental in shaping the broader cultural politics of American capitalism How did gasoline and countless other petroleum products become so central to our notions of the American way of life Huber traces the answer from the 1930s through the oil shocks of the 1970s to our present predicament revealing that oil s role in defining popular culture extends far beyond material connections between oil suburbia and automobility He shows how oil powered a cultural politics of entrepreneurial life the very American idea that life itself is a product of individual entrepreneurial capacities In so doing he uses oil to retell American political history from the triumph of New Deal liberalism to the rise of the New Right from oil s celebration as the lifeblood of postwar capitalism to increasing anxieties over oil addiction Lifeblood rethinks debates surrounding energy and capitalism neoliberalism and nature and the importance of suburbanization in the rightward shift in American politics Today Huber tells us as crises attributable to oil intensify a populist clamoring for cheap energy has less to do with American excess than with the eroding conditions of life under neoliberalism

Bartis, G.

Torrance Flint, 2007 Researchers at the Energy Institute of Pennsylvania State University Penn State are conducting research on producing jet fuel by coprocessing coal or coal derived products with low value liquid intermediates produced during petroleum refining To date most of this research effort has focused on a coal tar blending process Penn State currently plans to build a one barrel per day pilot plant and produce 100 barrels of product to be delivered to and tested by the Air Force

Research Laboratory Recognizing the limited availability of the coal tar derived liquids used in the coal tar blending process the Penn State research team has recently shifted its attention to a co coking process in which a mixture of solid coal and a refinery intermediate decant oil is used to produce a combination of liquid fuels and coke

New Developments in Competition Law and Economics Klaus Mathis, Avishalom Tor, 2019-03-18 This book further develops both the traditional and the behavioural approach to competition law and applies these approaches to a variety of timely issues It discusses several fundamental questions regarding competition law and economics and explores the applications of competition law and economics In turn the book analyses the interplay of intellectual property rights and patents in various aspects of competition law and investigates the impacts that developments in information technology such as big data analytics have on competition law The book also discusses the impact of energy law reforms on energy markets from a competition law perspective Competition law is a classic field of economic analysis This is largely due to the fact that competition law uses terms such as market price and competition and must therefore rely on economic know how and analyses In the United States economic analysis has greatly influenced not just the scholarship on antitrust law but also judicial decisions and agency enforcement Antitrust law and economics are based on the traditional paradigm of neoclassical economics which relies on the assumption that the market players i e consumers and producers are rational This approach to competition law was later received in Europe under the banner of a more economic approach For the past two decades behavioural law and economics which seeks to generate better insights into legal phenomena by providing more realistic psychological foundations for economic models and to offer a multitude of applications in legislation and legal adjudication has challenged the traditional economic approach to law in general and more recently to competition law specifically American Book Publishing Record ,2004 The Status of the U.S. Refining Industry United States.
