Childhood in a Sri Lankan Village Bambi L. Chapin, 2014-06-30 Like toddlers all over the world Sri Lankan children go through a period that in the U S is referred to as the terrible twos Yet once they reach elementary school age they appear uncannily passive compliant and undemanding compared to their Western counterparts Clearly these children have undergone some process of socialization but what Over ten years ago anthropologist Bambi Chapin traveled to a rural Sri Lankan village to begin answering this question getting to know the toddlers in the village then returning to track their development over the course of the following decade Childhood in a Sri Lankan Village offers an intimate look at how these children raised on the tenets of Buddhism are trained to set aside selfish desires for the good of their families and the community Chapin reveals how this cultural conditioning is carried out through small everyday practices including eating and sleeping arrangements yet she also explores how the village's attitudes and customs continue to evolve with each new generation Combining penetrating psychological insights with a rigorous observation of larger social structures Chapin enables us to see the world through the eyes of Sri Lankan children searching for a place within their families and communities Childhood in a Sri Lankan Village offers a fresh global perspective on child development and the transmission of culture

In My Mother's House Sharika Thiranagama, 2011-08-16 In May 2009 the Sri Lankan army overwhelmed the last stronghold of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam better known as the Tamil Tigers officially bringing an end to nearly three decades of civil war Although the war has ended the place of minorities in Sri Lanka remains uncertain not least because the lengthy conflict drove entire populations from their homes The figures are jarring for example all of the roughly 80 000 Muslims in northern Sri Lanka were expelled from the Tamil Tiger controlled north and nearly half of all Sri Lankan Tamils were displaced during the course of the civil war Sharika Thiranagama's In My Mother's House provides ethnographic insight into two important groups of internally displaced people northern Sri Lankan Tamils and Sri Lankan Muslims Through detailed engagement with ordinary people struggling to find a home in the world Thiranagama explores the dynamics within and between these two minority communities describing how these relations were reshaped by violence displacement and authoritarianism In doing so she illuminates an often overlooked intraminority relationship and new social forms created through protracted war In My Mother's House revolves around three major themes ideas of home in the midst of profound displacement transformations of familial experience and the impact of the political violence carried out by both the Tamil Tigers and the Sri Lankan state on ordinary lives and public speech Her rare focus on the effects and responses to LTTE political regulation and violence demonstrates that envisioning a peaceful future for postconflict Sri Lanka requires taking stock of the new Tamil and Muslim identities forged by the civil war These identities cannot simply be cast away with the end of the war but must be negotiated anew
