Political Economy of Human Rights Bas de Gaay Fortman, 2011-06-15 The plethora of literature produced over the past decade in response to the perceived failure of the human rights project to deliver results for billions of people living in adverse environments has usually focused on international legal standards and mechanisms with little regard for the root structural realities that constrain their implementation Hence a text that primarily focuses on the major challenge of realisation of human rights in the context of diverse realities is urgently needed This book then provides an analytical as well as inspirational text on human rights from a contextual perspective it offers a reconceptualisation of human rights as not merely legal resources but political tools as well After an introduction that familiarizes the reader with some of the key concepts used throughout the book is divided into six chapters The first two combine a critique of the overly legal use of human rights with a reconceptualisation of their potential as powerful tools outside of the legal context The next two chapters examine the nature of the structural challenges that face realisation both on the global and on the local level The last two chapters analyse two major areas of the human rights deficit

the structural non implementation of the rights of the poor and the failing protection of non dominant collectivities Finally a concluding chapter elaborates on the main findings and insights gained The book combines rigorous juridical study with a focus on political economic analysis of rights in context Hence it aims at an interdisciplinary treatment of human rights as opposed to current texts that have a tendency to be monodisciplinary The book should be of interest to students of human rights political economy law and conflict studies as well as those who work or research in these areas Human Rights

Albert A. Zinnos,2007 Human rights refers to the concept of human beings as having universal rights or status regardless of legal jurisdiction and likewise other localising factors such as ethnicity and nationality For many the concept of human rights is based in religious principles However because a formal concept of human rights has not been universally accepted the term has some degree of variance between its use in different local jurisdictions difference in both meaningful substance as well as in protocols for and styles of application Ultimately the most general meaning of the term is one which can only apply universally and hence the term human rights is often itself an appeal to such transcended principles without basing such on existing legal concepts The term humanism refers to the developing doctrine of such universally applicable values and it is on the basic concept that human beings have innate rights that more specific local legal concepts are often based Within particular societies human rights refers to standards of behaviour as accepted within their respective legal systems regarding 1 the well being of individuals 2 the freedom and autonomy of individuals and 3 the representation of the human interest in government These rights commonly include the right to life the right to an adequate standard of living the prohibition of genocide freedom from torture and other mistreatment freedom of expression freedom of movement the right to self determination the right to education and the right to participation in cultural and political life These norms are based on the legal and political traditions of United Nations member states and are incorporated into international human rights instruments This new book brings together the latest book literature centred on this crucial topic Foreign Investment, Human Rights and the Environment Shyami Puvimanasinghe,2007-06-30 Events like the Bhopal disaster the sale of products harmful to human health and safety and child labour especially in resource scarce settings raise fundamental issues of human dignity and ecological integrity From a legal perspective and in the context of Foreign Direct Investment by Transnational Corporations in developing countries they highlight the lacuna of a holistic international legal framework and its implementation This book embodies a critique of the complex web of public international law principles on economics human rights and the environment and their convergence or lack thereof related regional South Asian and domestic Sri Lankan legal arrangements interventions of states and non state actors towards just equitable and sustainable development It is a quest for a middle path in the multidisciplinary landscape of international law development and North South power dynamics globalization of free trade and investment and of social and environmental interests and salient aspects of the philosophical socio economic and legal fabric of South Asia viewed against the evolving controversial and elastic sphere of international relations and law where consensus has hitherto been an elusive dream Non-Governmental Human Rights Organizations in International Relations P. Baehr, 2009-04-28 Human rights play a crucial role in today's international relations. They provide standards to which states must conform when dealing with their own citizens. Non-governmental human rights organizations remind states of their obligations in that field. Without these human rights would have drifted to the bottom of the international agenda Can Globalization Promote Human Rights? Rhoda E.

Howard-Hassmann, 2015-09-10 Globalization has affected everyone's lives and the reactions to it have been mixed. Legal scholars and political scientists tend to emphasize its harmful aspects while economists tend to emphasize its benefits. Those concerned about human rights have more often been among the critics than among the supporters of globalization. In Can Globalization Promote Human Rights Rhoda Howard-Hassmann presents a balanced account of the negative and positive features of globalization in relation to human rights in both their economic and civil political dimensions. On the positive side she draws on substantial empirical work to show that globalization has significantly reduced world poverty levels even while on the negative side it has exacerbated economic inequality across and within countries. Ultimately she argues social action and political decision making will determine whether the positive effects of globalization outweigh the negatives. And in contrast to those who prefer either schemes for redistributing wealth on moral grounds or authoritarian socialist approaches she makes the case for social democracy as the best political system for the protection of all human rights civil and political as well as economic New Directions in the Sociology of Human Rights Patricia Hynes, Michele Lamb, Damien

Short, Matthew Waites, 2016-03-23 New Directions in the Sociology of Human Rights is a contribution to both sociology and to human rights research particularly where these are directed towards challenging power relations and inequalities in contemporary societies. It expands and develops the sociology of human rights as a sub-field of sociology and interdisciplinary human rights scholarship. The volume suggests new directions for the use of social and sociological theories in the analysis of issues such as torture and genocide and addresses a number of themes which have not previously been a sustained focus in the sociology of human rights literature. These range from climate change and the human rights of soldiers to corporate social responsibility and children's rights in relation to residential care. The collection is thus multi-dimensional examining a range of specific empirical contexts and also considering relationships between sociological analysis and human rights scholarship and activism. Hence in a variety of ways it points the way for future analyses and also for human rights activism and practices. It is intended to widen our field of vision in the sociology of human rights and to spark both new ideas and new forms of political engagement. This book was published as a special issue of The International Journal of Human Rights.

Capabilities, Power, and Institutions Stephen Lawrence Esquith, Fred Gifford, 2010 The essays in Capabilities, Power and Institutions extend, criticize and reformulate the capabilities approach to development to better understand the importance of power especially institutional power Human Trafficking and Security in Southern Africa Richard Obinna

Iroanya, 2018-01-17 This book investigates the links between human trafficking and national security in Southern Africa. Human trafficking violates borders, supports organised crime and corrupts border officials, and yet policymakers rarely view the persistence of human trafficking as a security issue. Adopting an expanded conceptualisation of security to encompass the individual as well as the state, Richard Obinna Iroanya lays the groundwork for understanding human trafficking as a security threat. He outlines the conditions and patterns of human trafficking globally before moving into detailed case studies of South Africa and Mozambique. Together, these case studies bring into focus the lives of the hidden population in the region with analysis and policy recommendations for combating a global phenomenon. Chinese Contemporary Perspectives on International Law Xue Hanqin, 2012-12-03 Built on the theme history, culture, and international law, this special course gives a comprehensive review of China's contemporary perspective and practice of international law in the past 60 years, with its focus on the recent 30 years when China is gradually integrated into the international legal system through its opening up and economic reform process. People, Places, and Practices in the Arctic Cunera Buijs, Kim van Dam, Frédéric Laugrand, 2022-11-30 This collection follows anthropological perspectives on peoples: Canadian Inuit, Norwegian Sami, Yupiit from Alaska, and Inuit from Greenland. Places and practices in the Circumpolar North from colonial times to our post-modern era. This volume brings together fresh perspectives on theoretical concepts, colonial/imperial descriptions, collaborative work of non-Indigenous and Indigenous researchers, as well as articles written by representatives of Indigenous cultures from an inside perspective. The scope of the book ranges from contributions based on unpublished primary sources, missionary journals, and fairly unknown early Indigenous sources and publications to those based on more recent Indigenous testimonies and anthropological fieldwork, museum exhibitions, and self-representations in the fields of fashion, marketing, and the arts. The aim of this volume is to explore the making of representations for and/or by Circumpolar North peoples. The authors follow what representations have been created in the past and in some cases continue to be created in the present, and the Indigenous employment of representations that has continuity with the past and also goes beyond traditional utilization. By studying these representations, we gain a better understanding of the dynamics of a society and its interaction with other cultures, notably in the context of the dominant culture's efforts to assimilate Indigenous people and erase their story. People's ideas about themselves and of the Other are never static, not even if they share the same cultural background. This is even more the case in the contact zone of the intercultural arena. Images of the Other vary according to time and place, and perceptions of others are continuously readjusted from both sides in intercultural encounters. This volume has been prepared by the Research Group Circumpolar Cultures (RGCC), which is based in the Netherlands. Its members conduct research on social and cultural change, focusing on topics that are of interest to the Indigenous peoples of the Arctic. The RGCC builds on a long tradition in Arctic studies in the Netherlands. Nico Tinbergen, Geert van den Steenhoven, Gerti Nooter, and Jarich Oosten can rely on rich Arctic collections of artefacts and photographs in anthropological museums and extensive library.

collections The expertise of the RGCC in Arctic studies is internationally acknowledged by academics as well as circumpolar peoples

Climate Change and Sustainable Development Mohamed Abdel Rahim M. Salih, 2009-01-01 this book gives a good overview of major challenges facing policy makers researchers and ultimately humankind in dealing with climate change The reader also gets a good understanding of how fragmented and transversal the issues of climate change and sustainable development are Quarterly Journal of International Agriculture a unified useful and stimulating book which should act as a springboard for further work into what is a very topical and extremely important issue for everyone in the world not just academics and policymakers This book serves its intended audience but also deserves to be more widely read World Entrepreneurship Society Too often writings on climate change are placed into two categories climate change deniers and climate change supporters What this timely and insightful collection of Mohamed Salih s does is to problematise the issue taking the debate to a level where it desperately needs to be asking the thorny questions of how do the politics and international relations of climate impact upon the most vulnerable the least affluent the dwellers of the majority world In short Salih challenges us How did the climate change about climate change The responses of his contributors are salient to the point sometimes disturbing but always thought provoking Timothy Doyle Keele University UK Editing the proceedings of a symposium into a cogent and coherent book is no easy task This book a tribute to Professor Opschoor is no exception with disperse contributions of some highly acclaimed authors covering a wide spectrum of themes It is a credit to Professor Salih s insight to string them together in the introductory chapter and entice the reader to read on This book has food for thought on many fronts reaching far beyond climate change as did the oeuvre of Hans Opschoor an instructive read Paul Vlek Center for Development Research ZEF Bonn Germany It is difficult if not impossible to formulate and implement sustainable policy without first understanding the dynamic relationships between nature society economics and technology and research plays a pivotal role in this regard Climate Change and Sustainable Development is an important book which deals with these issues in the context of climate change and the changing global context of development It alerts us to the relationship climate change has with two urgent tasks poverty reduction and sustainable development which require efforts that span countries regions and communities In this interdependent world argue the authors a shared vision and common effort are vital to sustaining our life support system It is a must read Jacqueline Cramer The Netherlands Minister for Spatial Planning and the Environment This unique book provides cutting edge knowledge and analyses of the consequences that climate change will have for sustainable development and poverty reduction within the context of global development Exploring alternative resource management approaches including federal resource management governance ecosystem services digital dematerialization ecological cities biofuels versus food and children and climate change this innovative volume provides fresh insights on the human condition with regards to the current debates on climate change The distinguished contributors examine climate change induced processes that present profound challenges to sustainable development and poverty

Facing Global Environmental Change Hans Günter Brauch, Navnita Chadha Behera, Patricia Kameri-Mbote, John Grin, Úrsula Oswald Spring, Béchir Chourou, Czeslaw Mesjasz, Heinz Krummenacher, 2009-06-04 The year 2007 could perhaps accurately be described as the year when climate change finally received the attention that this challenge deserves globally Much of the information and knowledge that was created in this field during the year was the result of the findings of the Fourth sessment Report AR4 of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change IPCC which were disseminated on a large scale and reported extensively by the media This was the result not only of a heightened interest on the part of the public on various aspects of climate change but also because the IPCC itself proactively attempted to spread the findings of its AR4 to the public at large The interest generated on the scientific realities of climate change was further enhanced by the award of the Nobel Peace Prize to the IPCC and former Vice President of the US Al Gore By taking this decision in favour of a leader who has done a great deal to create awareness on c mate change and a body that assesses all scientific aspects of climate change and disseminates the result of its findings the Norwegian Nobel Committee has clearly drawn the link between climate change and peace in the world
