Seydou Keita, Photographer, 1996 You Look Beautiful Like that Michelle Lamunière, 2001 Seydou Keita and Malick Sidibé two important and widely known commercial photographers from Mali took mesmerizing photographs of members of their communities during the decades before and after the country's independence from France in 1960 This book presents a range of these portraits as well as excerpts of recent interviews with the artists and an essay placing the photographers within the context of the history of portrait photography in West Africa since its beginnings in the 1840s In contrast to the early photographs of Africans produced by Western colonial powers Keita and Sidibé's photographs represent the work of Africans controlling the camera to create images of African subjects for an African audience Keita combined formulas of Western portrait photography with local aesthetics to create images that reflect both his clients social identity and status within the community and an enthusiastic embrace of modernity Later as portrait conventions and societal roles became more flexible Sidibé's subjects took a more active part in constructing the images of themselves that they wanted to convey Africans have valued photography for its unique ability to capture a person's likeness which says Sidibé was regarded as more eternal than the subjects themselves This book is a striking collection of such likenesses Publisher's website viewed August 23 2018 The African Photographic Archive Christopher Morton, Darren Newbury, 2020-10-15 African photography has emerged as a significant focus of research and scholarship over the last twenty years the result of a growing interest in postcolonial societies and cultures and a turn towards visual evidence across the humanities and social sciences At the same time many rich and fascinating photographic collections have come to light This volume explores the complex theoretical and practical issues involved in the study of African photographic archives based on case studies drawn from
