Countries around the globe are developing emissions markets as a response to it. This book examines the cultures of these markets, arguing policy makers must include more flexibility in climate policy to allow emissions markets to be translated and transferred across regions. The Future of Sustainability Ray C. Florkowski, 2006-09-27 Presenting a framework for understanding the corporate strategy/public policy interface as it relates to human capital management, this unique text treats legal systems as factors that must be actively managed in the firm's larger pursuit of international competitive advantage. It provides readers with the most comprehensive description to date of the role that transnational, regional, and national institutions play in the evolution of domestic employment regulation and international labour standards, and discusses the opportunities that employers have to influence their form and application. High-profile news events from around the world are utilized to illustrate key concepts, offering unique insights into the regulatory environment that MNEs face when managing an international workforce. Taking an applied approach to the subject of labour market regulation on six continents, this book is a valuable reference for students and practitioners alike in the fields of HRM, business management, and law. Singapore Major Manufacturers , Managing Conflicts in a Globalizing ASEAN Mikio Oishi, 2019-11-11 This book investigates the patterns of conflict management in contemporary Southeast Asia. The region has long been characterized by the twin process of state formation and nation building, which has been responsible for most of the region's intrastate and interstate conflicts. While this process is still ongoing, regional conflicts and their management are increasingly affected by globalisation, which not only serves as a new source of or exacerbating factor to conflict but also makes new instruments available for conflict management. Employing the concepts of incompatibility management and mediation regime, the book analyses the management of seven conflicts in the region: the Rohingya crisis and the Kachin conflict in Myanmar, the Khmer Krom conflict in Vietnam, the West Papua conflict in Indonesia, the political conflict in Thailand, the Mekong River conflicts involving five Southeast Asian countries and China, and the transboundary haze problem emanating from Indonesia. The efforts to manage each of them are imagined as constituting a mediation regime, and its effectiveness is assessed in terms of good governance. Among the findings of the book is that the measures of manoeuvring around incompatibilities are employed predominantly in managing regional conflicts In intrastate conflicts which mostly involve ethnic minorities the authorities first aim to eliminate or impose its own position on ethnic parties When this strategy proves unsuccessful they have no choice but manoeuvre around incompatibilities which may eventually open up a space for mutual learning In interstate conflicts the manoeuvring around strategy works in a more straightforward manner contributing to regional stability However the stability is achieved at the cost of local communities and the natural environment which absorb the incompatibilities in conflict

Legal Methods of Mainstreaming Climate Change Adaptation in Chinese Water Management Xiangbai He, 2016-01-29 This book addresses why whether and how the existing legal framework on water management in China could make climate change adaptation a mainstream issue The book uses a table to illustrate the distinctions and similarities between IWRM and water centered adaptation to analyze the possibilities of mainstreaming adaptation The new water planning processes and EIA are also illustrated in the form of figures showing the differences after factoring in adaptation considerations Interviews with water managers to obtain their perception and attitudes towards climate change adaptation offer new perspectives for readers The adaptation mainstreaming approach which finds a way to balance various interests and tasks will arouse the interests of those readers who argue that climate change is only one of the issues challenging water management and that poverty reduction environmental protection and living standard improvement are even more important Readers will also be interested to discover that the adaptation mainstreaming approach could be applied in water management institutions such as water planning and EIA In addition the book offers a clear explanation of the challenges of adaptation to the existing water related legal framework from a theoretical perspective and provides theoretical and practical recommendations
