

Sonnet: To Shakespeare, With Love

O Bard of Avon – Poet Shakespeare!

You shook the world by painting with your words;

What plays, you wrote enacting them well, dear!

The music was echoed by even birds.

‘To be or not to be’, was one question;

How well you wrote the play in acts and scenes!

Yes, drama, poetry was your prime passion;

Your romance spewed forth magic upon teens.

Your sonnet-spree allured most poetic minds;

The structured style with rhyme sequence was great;

Good metre, melody, it always finds;

With ease you made them to appeal till date.

O Bard of fame, who stood the test of time!

You made the world of literature, sublime.

Fondly dedicated to the eminent poet-dramatist of England

This statement made by the male protagonist Lysander in I.1 of A Midsummer Night's Dream is arguably one of the most well-known lines from the play. In a nutshell, it represents the trials and tribulations of love, the obstacles young love has to overcome, the intrinsic complexities of established love, and the victory of true love in the end. This paper aims to take a look at the way how different stages of love and love concepts are represented in AMD. As Shakespeare is said to have written this particular early play between 1594-1596, a closer look will be taken at the conventions of love poetry in the literature of the Elizabethan age. The influence of the Italian Renaissance poet Petrarch's love poetry concept on Elizabethan love poetry conventions will be of special interest at this point. Further on, Shakespeare's very own love concept in his romantic comedies will be compared and contrasted to the love poetry of his age. The late 16th century and early 17th century, from the 1690ies and particularly with the onset of the reign of King James I, brought about a change in the perception and creation of conventional Elizabethan love poetry, from the commonplace Petrarchan conceits to a more individual, realistic yet Puritan depiction of the praised woman. With AMD being conceived in this particular time frame, possible reflections of this literary change of mind in the discussed play will be outlined in the analysis of this play. Scholars argue that AMD originally might have been written by Shakespeare for a noble wedding celebration because of its length, the marriages at the end of the play, and the different aspects of married life the play offers. The aspect of marriage and marital conventions in the Elizabethan age will be another point of analysis in this paper, determining whether Shakespeare stayed true or subverted common assumptions of married life at his age The final analysis will try to apply the aforementioned theoretical points to AMD and take a look at how marriage love and literary love concepts are represented by the respective couples in the play
