Ferguson, 2013-07-08 The realist novel and the modern criminal trial both came to fruition in the nineteenth century Each places a premium on the author s or trial lawyer s ability to reconstruct reality reflecting modernity s preoccupation with firsthand experience as the basis of epistemological authority But by the early twentieth century experience had as Walter Benjamin put it fallen in value The modernist novel and the criminal trial of the period began taking cues from a kind of nonexperience one that nullifies identity subverts repetition and supplants presence with absence Rex Ferguson examines how such nonexperience colours the overlapping relationship between law and literary modernism Chapters on E M Forster s A Passage to India Ford Madox Ford s The Good Soldier and Marcel Proust s In Search of Lost Time detail the development of a uniquely modern subjectivity offering new critical insight to scholars and students of twentieth century literature cultural studies and the history of law and philosophy Moments of Being by Virginia Woolf - Delphi Classics (Illustrated)

The Observing Self (Routledge Revivals) Graham Good, 2014-08-01 First published in 1988 this title is a study of the essay as a literary genre not just in terms of its general intellectual and literary history but as an exploration of the creative possibilities of the form The rise of the essay is discussed in relation to the rise of the novel and the emergence of empiricism in science but the main focus of Graham Good's study is on the inner workings of the essay itself Drawing on criticism by Adorno and Lukacs Graham Good presents the genre as an expression of individualism freed from tradition and authority in which the self constructs itself and its object through independent observation Through analysis of the work of such essayists as Montaigne Bacon Virginia Woolf T S Eliot and George Orwell the potential of the genre for independence and individualism is illustrated and the essay is resituated as an intellectually challenging form of creative and critical writing

Generation X Professors Speak Elwood Watson, 2013-03-22 While the Baby Boomer generation has consistently commanded widespread attention both scholarly and popular little has been written about Generation X the 46 million Americans born between the mid 1960s and late 1970s But with Baby Boomers now moving into retirement members of Generation X have come to the forefront of American society Consequently understanding Generation X and the potential impact of the independent sometimes rebellious spirit that characterizes it is critical In Generation X Professors Speak Voices from Academia Elwood Watson has assembled a unique collection of thematically arranged essays by academics that offers insights into the issues conflicts and triumphs that epitomize this often overlooked generation One essayist writes about her determination to achieve her career goals without sacrificing time with her family while another speaks about being a stay at home dad and teaching part time at a university Another essay covers disabilities depression and mental illness pointing to the sympathetic approach Gen Xers tend to take toward individuals often marginalized by society The acceptance of interracial marriage on the part of members of Generation X is engagingly presented by an ivy league educated white man married to a woman of African descent And the role religion plays in the lives of Gen Xers is movingly expressed by an essayist whose commitment to his spiritual faith have allowed him to combat racial social family personal and academic issues These and the other essays in this collection passionately and sometime

provocatively cover topics ranging from career class family life health music and physical disabilities to race religion and sexuality Together the essays define the characteristics and demonstrate the diversity of Generation X and will appeal to scholars students and others interested in social history psychology gender studies and popular culture
