The Tain of the Mirror
Rodolphe Gasché, 1986. Deconstruction is no game of mirrors revealing the text as a play of surface against surface. Its more radical philosophical effort is to get behind the mirror and question the very nature of reflection. The Tain of the Mirror explores that gritty surface without which no reflection would be possible.

Sites of Dissent Alissa Starodub, 2021-10-27. Contemporary articulations of dissent to social order and its production of truth cannot be ignored any longer. Hamburg during the G20 gathering, Washington D C on the day of Trump's inauguration, the squares and streets of Paris and Tunis at the end of 2018. Public space is temporarily taken by those who rise against the powers that keep structural oppression and social order in its place. Not only riots but collective social centres, protest camps and temporary as well as permanent occupations of lands and buildings are other utopian spatial alternatives created by autonomous social movements to prefigure a horizontal social organization. This book discusses spatial practices of autonomous social movements, the movements who see their everyday experiences and creations as the revolution they are making together with these movements and in taking the diversity of their articulations into account. Sites of Dissent is thus the story of a daring attempt to create research practices for radical transformation which requires a radical transformation of research practices. During this attempt, methodological rules of scientific research are broken and methodological heresy and wild experimentation with research practices take place. Sites of Dissent aims at opening new possibilities of including diverse ways of knowing and speaking into a collective knowledge creation process at overcoming the individualized isolation in which the researcher produces knowledge about the outside world and it aims to create a space for collective learning about spatial practices of autonomous social movements to learn with and from the movements.

Moments of Valuation Ariane Berthoin Antal, Michael Hutter, David Stark, 2015. The outcome of innovation processes are determined by complex historically grown valuation practices. In this book, a wide range of innovations are taken into consideration from small inventions like entertainment novelties to large societal changes through new technologies. The chapters observe the particular local or distributed sites in which their episodes of innovation take place and they identify the initial dissonance among those judging a newly proposed alternative. The emphasis of the inquiry, however, is on the practices of valuation that are at work when something succeeds in being new. The authors represent a wide variety of sub-disciplines and national backgrounds in the social sciences. They share an interest in social valuation and a pragmatist approach. The differences between their empirical evidence reflect the wide variety of appearances that valuation takes in contemporary society They are anthropologists economic or cultural sociologists organization researchers historians or political scientists A number of chapters deals with aesthetic valuation as in the tasting of a new vintage or in the socio technical process that shaped successful synthesizer sounds Other chapters discuss the judgment processes in organizations like architect offices or consultancy firms and processes of evaluation and valorization in larger fields of practice like accounting or mathematics The studies are both of interest in their various professional fields and contribute to a more general understanding of the social and cultural conditions under which innovations fail and succeed

Intentionality in Husserl and Heidegger B.C. Hopkins, 2013-04-17 1 Remarks on the Current Status of the Problematic The literature treating the relationship between the phenomenologies of Husserl and Heidegger has not been kind to Husserl Heidegger's devastating phenomenologically ontological critique of traditional epistemology and ontology advanced under the rubric of fundamental ontology in Being and Time has almost been universally received despite the paucity of its references to Husserl as sounding the death knell for Husserl's original formulation of phenomenology. The recent publication of Heidegger's lectures from the period surrounding his composition of Being and Time lectures that contain detailed references and critical analyses of Husserl's phenomenology and which in the words of one respected commentator Rudolf Bernet offer at long last insight into the principal sources of fundamental ontology will if the conclusions reached by the same commentator are any indication serve only to reinforce the perception of Heidegger's phenomenological superiority over Husserl. This is not to suggest that the tendency toward Heidegger partisan ship in the literature treating the relationship of his phenomenology to Husserl's has its basis in extra philosophical or extra phenomenological concerns and considerations. Rather it is to draw attention to the undeniable fact that Heidegger's reformulation of Husserl's phenomenology has cast a spell over all subsequent discussions of the basic problems and issues involved in what has become known as their controversy.

Researching Experiences Lisa Gjedde, Bruno Ingemann, 2020-12-15 In the beginning was not the word but the experience. This phenomenological approach provides the basis for this book which focuses on how a person in situation experiences and constructs meaning from a variety of cultural visual events. This book presents video based processual methods for researching experiences in a variety of settings ranging from the museum to news photography and interactive media. The research led to the development of a set of methodological tools and approaches we term the reflexivity lab. The interaction in the experimental situation between the media and body dialogue moods values and narratives have been investigated qualitatively with more than sixty informants in a range of projects. The processual methodological insights are put into a theoretical perspective and also presented as pragmatic dilemmas. Researching Experiences is relevant not only for students and researchers in media and communication studies but also for practitioners within the fields of media communication and experience design.

Elements of Rock Physics and Their Application to Inversion and AVO

Studies Robert S. Gullco, Malcolm Anderson, 2022-02-13 The ultimate aim of the oil exploration industry is to determine the distribution of rock types and underground fluids. At this stage we can actually determine the distribution of several underground physical properties with a certain accuracy. The challenge for the rock physicist is to translate those physical properties P velocity S velocity density into rock types and fluids gas or oil or water bearing sand shale. If performed correctly dry holes can be avoided and millions of dollars can be saved. Ultimately an integrated approach is required. This book deals with a series of topics in rock physics including elasticity pore pressure incompressibility of rocks and the Gassmann equation fluid substitution forward modelling and empirical equations rock physics applications to AVO studies and inversion studies and the Differential Effective Medium DEM method. It is generally addressed to the practitioner geophysicist geologist and in some instances detailed instructions are furnished to perform a particular task. Some chapters on the other hand are theoretical and more mathematical and are expected to be of interest to both practitioners and students alike. Other chapters include innovative ideas that could for instance be tested by oil companies that have substantial amounts of data at their disposal This book will serve as a useful guide to practitioners geologists petrophysicists geophysicists and reservoir engineers and students academics Hegel's Critique of Metaphysics Béatrice Longuenesse, 2007-05-03 Hegel's Science of Logic has received less attention than his Phenomenology of Spirit but Hegel himself took it to be his highest philosophical achievement and the backbone of his system The present book focuses on this most difficult of Hegel's published works Béatrice Longuenesse offers a close analysis of core issues including discussions of what Hegel means by dialectical logic the role and meaning of contradiction in Hegel's philosophy and Hegel's justification for the provocative statement that what is real is rational what is rational is real She examines both Hegel's debt and his polemical reaction to Kant and shows in great detail how his project of a dialectical logic can be understood only in light of its relation to Kant's transcendental logic This book will appeal to anyone interested in Hegel's philosophy and its influence on contemporary philosophical discussion
