Natural Law Science And The Social Construction Of Reality:

Natural Law, Science, and the Social Construction of Reality Bernie Koenig, 2004 Natural Law Science and the Social Construction of Reality looks at changes in knowledge and the relationship to values from the modern era to today Author Bernie Koenig examines Newton's influence on Locke and Kant how Kant influenced Darwin and Freud and the implications of their work for both anthropology and moral theory

Thinking About Morality Bernie Koenig, 2021-02-23 Thinking about Morality addresses the processes behind how we resolve moral issues and the factors that can impact that such as differing values and cultures Moral disagreements are primarily due to differing values or the clash of new knowledge with old values When trying to resolve a moral dispute we must carefully define the issue We must bring to bear relevant knowledge which can be used to resolve the issue but sometimes the value structures are so different that an issue cannot be resolved This book provides an examination of how values operate and how one's obligations will differ in different cultures This book addresses topics such as multiculturalism along with immigration and migration sex and gender abortion and euthanasia environmental issues guns and drugs

On Crimes and Punishments Cesare Beccaria, 2016-10-31 Cesare Beccaria's influential Treatise on Crimes and Punishments is considered a foundational work in the field of criminology Three major themes of the Enlightenment run through the Treatise the idea that the social contract forms the moral and political basis of the work's reformist zeal the idea that science supports a dispassionate and reasoned appeal for reforms and the belief that progress is inextricably bound to science All three provide the foundation for accepting Beccaria's proposals It is virtually impossible to ascertain which of several versions of the Treatise that appeared during his lifetime best reflected Beccaria's thoughts His use of many Enlightenment ideas also makes it difficult to interpret what he has written While Enlightenment thinkers advocated free men and free minds there was considerable disagreement as to how this might be achieved except in the most general terms The editors have based this translation on the 1984 Francioni text the most exhaustive critical Italian edition of Dei delitti e delle pene This edition is the last that Beccaria personally oversaw and revised This translation includes an outstanding opening essay by the editors and is a welcome introduction to Beccaria and the beginnings of criminology

On Crimes and Punishments Georg Koopmann, 2017-07-12 Beccaria's influential Treatise On Crimes and Punishments is considered a foundation work in the modern field of criminology As Newman and Marongiu note in their introduction to the work three master themes of the Enlightenment run through the Treatise the idea of the social contract the idea of science and the belief in progress The idea of the social contact forms the moral and political basis of the work's reformist zeal The idea of science supports a dispassionate and reasoned appeal for reforms The belief in progress is inextricably bound to the idea of science All three provide the necessary foundation for accepting Beccaria's proposals It is virtually impossible to ascertain which of several versions of the Treatise that appeared during his lifetime best reflected Beccaria's own thought His use of many ideas of Enlightenment thinkers also makes it difficult to interpret what he has written While Enlightenment thinkers wanted to break the chains of religion and advocated free men and free minds there was considerable disagreement as to how this might be achieved except in the most general terms The editors have based this translation on the Francioni 1984 text by far the most exhaustive critical Italian edition of Dei delitti e delle pene This edition is undoubtedly the last that Beccaria personally oversaw and revised This new translation which includes an outstanding opening essay by the editors is a welcome introduction to Beccaria and to the modern beginnings of criminology

The Moral Mosaic Pasquale De Marco, Embark on an intellectual odyssey that explores the intricate relationship between natural law science and the ever shifting landscape of moral values This transformative journey delves into the profound influence of scientific discoveries philosophical revolutions and cultural transformations on our ethical frameworks In this thought provoking exploration we begin by tracing the impact of Isaac Newton s scientific legacy on the moral philosophies of John Locke and Immanuel Kant Witness how Newton s groundbreaking insights into the laws of nature reverberated through the corridors of philosophical thought reshaping our understanding of morality and justice From the Enlightenment s rationalist fervor to the complexities of modern ethics we uncover the enduring legacy of Newton s scientific revolution on the evolution of moral values Next we delve into the intricate interplay between Charles Darwin s theory of evolution and the moral philosophies of Sigmund Freud and Friedrich Nietzsche Discover the profound implications of Darwin s work on the origins of species for our understanding of human nature and morality We explore the depths of Freud s psychoanalytic theories unraveling the unconscious forces that shape our moral decision making And we grapple with Nietzsche s radical critique of traditional morality challenging us to confront the very foundations of our ethical beliefs Venturing into the realm of anthropology we examine the diverse moral values that exist across cultures and societies Explore the intricate ways in which social norms customs and traditions shape our moral judgments and behaviors Discover the profound influence of religion and spirituality on the formation of moral codes and delve into the challenges and opportunities of living in an increasingly interconnected and multicultural world Our journey continues through the labyrinthine corridors of postmodernism where we encounter the profound challenges it poses to traditional notions of morality Confront the deconstruction of moral absolutes the rise of relativism and pluralism and the search for new frameworks for moral decision making in a fragmented and uncertain world Grapple with the implications of postmodernism for our understanding of truth knowledge and the very foundations of ethics In the midst of this philosophical turmoil we find solace in the enduring relevance of natural law theory Trace the evolution of natural law from its ancient roots to its contemporary manifestations exploring the ways in which it can provide a solid foundation for moral reasoning in a world grappling with uncertainty and moral complexity Examine the convergence of feminist postmodernism and natural law revealing the potential for a new moral paradigm that embraces both justice and equality As we near the culmination of this intellectual odyssey we confront the profound impact of technology on moral values Navigate the ethical minefields of artificial intelligence biotechnology and the digital revolution grappling with the challenges and opportunities they present for human morality Envision a future where technology and ethics can coexist harmoniously creating a world where human values flourish alongside technological progress in the sixteenth century Tony Burns focuses on those civil society institutions occupying the intermediate social space which exists between the family or household on the one hand and what Hegel refers to as the strictly political state on the other. Arguing that the internal affairs of social institutions are a legitimate concern for students of politics he focuses on the notion of authority together with that of an individual's station and its duties. Burns discusses the work of such key thinkers as Plato, Aristotle, Cicero, Seneca, Epictetus, Marcus Aurelius, St Paul, St Augustine, St Thomas Aquinas, Marsilius of Padua, Nicholas of Cusa, Jean Bodin, Charles Loyseau, John Calvin, Martin Luther and Gerrard Winstanley. He considers what they have said about the relationship that exists between superiors in positions of authority and their subordinates within hierarchical social institutions. Social Theory and Practice, 2004

Convention, 1500-1750 Lawrence Manley, 1980 A major reinterpretation of the development of European literary theory this wide ranging study offers a new approach to ways of thinking about man's work in general. This book is a history of the idea of convention the roles it played in the formative stages of English and Continental literary theory and in the development of modern thought. Classical Theories of International Relations Ian Clark, Iver B. Neumann, 2016-07-27 Drawing on a tripartite taxonomy first suggested by the so called English School of International Relations of a Hobbesian tradition of power politics a Grotian tradition of concern with the rules that govern relations between states and a Kantian tradition of thinking which transcends the existence of the states system this book discusses the thinking of central political theorists about the modern states system. Thinkers covered are Hobbes, Grotius, Kant, Vitoria, Rousseau, Smith, Burke, Hegel, Gentz and Vattel.

Science and Religious Anthropology Dr Wesley J Wildman, 2013-05-28 Science and Religious Anthropology explores the convergence of the biological sciences, human sciences and humanities around a spiritually evocative naturalistic vision of human life. The disciplinary contributions are at different levels of complexity from evolution of brains to existential longings and from embodied sociality to ecosystem habitat. The resulting interpretation of the human condition supports some aspects of traditional theological thinking in the world's religious traditions while seriously challenging other aspects. Wesley Wildman draws out these implications for philosophical and religious anthropology and argues that the modern secular interpretation of humanity is most compatible with a religious form of naturalistic humanism. This book resists the reduction of meaning and value questions while taking scientific theories about human life with full seriousness. It argues for a religious interpretation of human beings as bodily creatures emerging within a natural environment that permits engagement with the valuational potentials of reality. This engagement promotes socially borne spiritual quests to realize and harmonize values in everything human beings do from the forging of cultures to the crafting of personal convictions.

Art Matters Bernard Koenig, 2009 This is an overview of art criticism as it relates to both the value of art and the aesthetics of art. The author offers a new perspective on how science, philosophy and art overlap each other showing that art can give us knowledge of our world and our place in it the same way that science or philosophy can. Instead of exploring the emotive understanding of the experience of art that such experiences release certain uniquely satisfying feelings within us he argues that art is a deeply significant way of knowing the natural and the human world His discussion incorporates both fiction and music into the notional forms of classical visual art
