Patterns in Nature Philip Ball, 2020-03-04 The acclaimed science writer curates a visually striking riotously colorful photographic display of physical patterns in the natural world Publishers Weekly starred review Though at first glance the natural world may appear overwhelming in its diversity and complexity there are regularities running through it from the hexagons of a honeycomb to the spirals of a seashell and the branching veins of a leaf Revealing the order at the foundation of the seemingly chaotic natural world Patterns in Nature explores not only the math and science but also the beauty and artistry behind nature s awe inspiring designs Unlike the patterns we create natural patterns are formed spontaneously from the forces that act in the physical world Very often the same types of pattern and form such as spirals stripes branches and fractals recur in places that seem to have nothing in common as when the markings of a zebra mimic the ripples in windblown sand But many of these patterns can be described using the same mathematical and physical principles giving a surprising unity to the kaleidoscope of the natural world Richly illustrated with 250 color photographs and anchored by accessible and insightful chapters by esteemed science writer Philip Ball Patterns in Nature reveals the organization at work in vast and ancient forests powerful rivers massing clouds and coastlines carved out by the sea By exploring similarities such as the branches of a tree and those of a river network this spectacular visual tour conveys the wonder beauty and richness of natural pattern formation

,2025-09-26 Regenerative-Adaptive Design for Sustainable Development Phillip B. Roös,2020-09-15 In this book the author tests a regenerative adaptive pattern language theory towards investigating the possibilities of a holistic integrated design and planning method for sustainable development that incorporates the principles of regenerative design as well as an adaptive pattern language that re establishes our wholeness with nature and considers the vulnerabilities of a changing landscape The book examines an integral approach to contemporary theories of planning and design that explores the human nature relationship patterns in social and spatial interconnections between people and their natural environments The interconnectedness of human and natural systems is used to scaffold possible solutions to address key environmental and sustainability issues that specifically address the need for patterns of behaviour that acknowledge the duality of man and nature In 12 chapters the book presents a holistic regenerative adaptive pattern language that encapsulates how communities can better appreciate landscape change under future climate effects and acknowledges the importance to adapt to patterns of change of place and the environment and therefore inform the communities responses for sustainable development The application of the regenerative adaptive pattern language was tested along the Great Ocean Road region of the Victorian coast in Australia The concluding chapters argues that for human settlements and cities to be resilient and sustainable we must understand the interconnected patterns of human built environments and natural systems and how we function in a social spatial dimension with these The book is intended for practitioners and academic scholars with interest in sustainable development regenerative design pattern languages biophilia settlement planning and climate change adaptation
