Neandertals and Modern Humans in Western Asia Takeru Akazawa, Kenichi Aoki, Ofer Bar-Yosef, 2005-12-27 In this fascinating volume the Middle Paleolithic archaeology of the Middle East is brought to the current debate on the origins of modern humans These collected papers gather the most up to date archaeological discoveries of Western Asia a region that is often overshadowed by African or European findings but the only region in the world where both Neandertal and early modern human fossils have been found The collection includes reports on such well known cave sites as Kebara Hayonim and Qafzeh among others The information and interpretations available here are a must for any serious researcher or student of anthropology or human evolution

Bones, Stones and Molecules David W. Cameron, Colin P. Groves, 2004-07-08 Bones Stones and Molecules provides some of the best evidence for resolving the debate between the two hypotheses of human origins The debate between the Out of Africa model and the Multiregional hypothesis is examined through the functional and developmental processes associated with the evolution of the human skull and face and focuses on the significance of the Australian record The book analyzes important new discoveries that have occurred recently and examines evidence that is not available elsewhere Cameron and Groves argue that the existing evidence supports a recent origin for modern humans from Africa They also specifically relate these two theories to interpretations of the origins of the first Australians The book provides an up to date interpretation of the fossil archaeological and the molecular evidence specifically as it relates to Asia and Australia in particular Readily accessible to the layperson and professional Provides concise coverage of current scientific evidence Presents a robust computer generated model of human speciation over the last 7 million years Well illustrated with figures and photographs of important fossil specimens Presents a synthesis of great ape and human evolution

Dynamics of Learning in Neanderthals and Modern Humans Volume 1 Takeru Akazawa, Yoshihiro Nishiaki, Kenichi Aoki, 2013-12-16 This volume presents the first of two proceedings from the International Conference on the Replacement of Neanderthals by Modern Humans which took place in Tokyo in November 2012 Focussing on a highly innovative working hypothesis called the learning hypothesis which attempts to explain the replacement as a result of differences in the learning abilities of these two hominid populations the conference served as the latest multidisciplinary discussion forum on this intriguing Palaeoanthropological issue The present volume reports on outcomes of the conference in three major sections Part 1 provides an archaeological overview of the processes of replacement assimilation of Neanderthals by modern humans Part 2 consists of archaeological and ethnographic case studies exploring evidence of learning behaviours in prehistoric and modern hunter gatherer societies Part 3 presents a collection of papers that directly contributes to the definition validation and testing of the learning hypothesis in terms of population biology and evolutionary theory A total of 18 papers in this volume make available to readers unique cultural perspectives on mechanisms of the replacement assimilation of Neanderthals by modern humans and suggested relationships between these mechanisms and different learning strategies Biosphere to Lithosphere Terry O'Connor,2016-09-12

Taphonomic studies are a major methodological advance the effects of which have been felt throughout archaeology Zooarchaeologists and archaeobotanists were the first to realise how vital it was to study the entire process of how food enters the archaeological record and taphonomy brought to a close the era when the study of animal bones and plant remains from archaeological sites were regarded mainly as environmental indicators This volume is indicative of recent developments in taphonomic studies hugely diverse research areas are being explored many of which would have been totally unforeseeable only a quarter of a century ago Neanderthals Revisited Katerina Harvati,Terry Harrison,2007-03-14 This volume presents the cutting edge research of leading scientists re examining the major debates in Neanderthal research with the use of innovative methods and exciting new theoretical approaches Coverage includes the re evaluation of Neanderthal anatomy inferred adaptations and habitual activities developmental patterns phylogenetic relationships and the Neanderthal extinction new methods include computer tomography 3D geometric morphometrics ancient DNA and bioenergetics The book offers fresh insight into both Neanderthals and modern humans Origins of Human Innovation and Creativity Scott

A. Elias,2012-08-29 Innovation and creativity are two of the key characteristics that distinguish cultural transmission from biological transmission This book explores a number of questions concerning the nature and timing of the origins of human creativity What were the driving factors in the development of new technologies What caused the stasis in stone tool technological innovation in the Early Pleistocene Were there specific regions and episodes of enhanced technological development or did it occur at a steady pace where ancestral humans lived The authors are archaeologists who address these questions armed with data from ancient artefacts such as shell beads used as jewelry primitive musical instruments and sophisticated techniques required to fashion certain kinds of stone into tools Providing state of art discussions that step back from the usual archaeological publications that focus mainly on individual site discoveries this book presents the full picture on how and why creativity in Middle to Late Pleistocene archeology anthropology evolved Gives a full original and multidisciplinary perspective on how and why creativity evolved in the Middle to Late Pleistocene Enhances our understanding of the big leaps forward in creativity at certain times Assesses the intellectual creativity of Homo erectus H neanderthalensis and H sapiens via their artefacts The Human Career Richard G. Klein,2024-05-31 Since its publication in 1989 The Human Career has proved to be an indispensable tool in teaching human origins. This substantially revised third edition retains Richard G. Klein's innovative approach while showing how cumulative discoveries and analyses over the past ten years have significantly refined our knowledge of human evolution. Klein chronicles the evolution of people from the earliest primates through the emergence of fully modern humans within the past 200,000 years. His comprehensive treatment stresses recent advances in knowledge including for example ever more abundant evidence that fully modern humans originated in Africa and spread from there replacing the Neanderthals in Europe and equally archaic people in Asia. With its coverage of both the fossil record and the archaeological record over the 2.5 million years for which both are available, The Human Career demonstrates that human morphology and behavior evolved together. Throughout the book Klein presents evidence for alternative points of view but does not hesitate to make his own position clear. In addition to outlining the broad pattern of human evolution, The Human Career details the kinds of data that support it. For the third edition Klein has added numerous tables and a fresh citation system designed to enhance readability especially for students. He has also included more than fifty new illustrations to help lay readers grasp the fossils, artifacts and other discoveries on which specialists rely. With abundant references and hundreds of images, charts and diagrams, this new edition is unparalleled in its usefulness for teaching human evolution.

Emergence and Diversity of Modern Human Behavior in Paleolithic Asia Yousuke Kaifu, Masami Izuho, Ted Goebel, Hiroyuki Sato, Akira Ono, 2014-12-19. Despite the obvious geographic importance of eastern Asia in human migration, its discussion in the context of the emergence and dispersal of modern humans has been rare. Emergence and Diversity of Modern Human Behavior in Paleolithic Asia focuses long overdue scholarly attention on this understudied area of the world. Arising from a 2011 symposium sponsored by the National Museum of Nature and Science in Tokyo, this book gathers the work of archaeologists from the Pacific Rim of Asia, Australia and North America to address the relative lack of attention given to the emergence of modern human behavior as manifested in Asia during the worldwide dispersal from Africa.

The Evolution of Hominin Diets Jean-Jacques Hublin, Michael P. Richards, 2009-05-15. Michael P. Richards and Jean Jacques Hublin. The study of hominin diets and especially how they have primates, modern humans, 2 faunal and plant studies, 3 evolved throughout time, has long been a core research area in archaeology and paleoanthropology, and 4 isotopic studies area in archaeology and paleoanthropology, but it is also. This volume therefore presents research articles by most of the participants that are mainly based on their presentations at the symposium. As can hopefully be seen in the volume, although this is a fundamental research topic, much of these papers provide important reviews of the current research. Research continues to be undertaken by specialists and there in these areas as well as often present new research on dietary is with some notable exceptions, e.g. Stanford and Bunn 2001, Ungar and Teaford 2002, Ungar 2007. In the section on modern studies, Hohmann provides a tle interaction with other researchers in other fields. This is review of the diets of non human primates including an unfortunate as recently it has appeared that different lines interesting discussion of the role of food sharing amongst of evidence are causing similar conclusions about the major these primates Snodgrass Leonard and Roberston provide issues of hominid dietary evolution i e
