Slaves and Other Objects Page duBois,2008-03-15 Page duBois a classicist known for her daring and originality turns in this new book to one of the most troubling subjects in the study of antiquity the indispensability of slaves in ancient Greece

DuBois argues that every object and text in the world of ancient Greece bears the marks of slavery and the need to reiterate the distinction between slave and free And yet the ubiquity of slaves in ancient societies has been overlooked by scholars who idealize antiquity misconstrued by those who view slavery through the lens of race and obscured by the split between historical and philological approaches to the classics DuBois begins her study by exploring the material culture of slavery including how most museum exhibits erase the presence of slaves in the classical world Shifting her focus to literature she considers the place of slaves in Plato s Meno Aristotle s Politics Aesop s Fables Aristophanes Wasps and Euripides Orestes She contends throughout that portraying the difference between slave and free as natural was pivotal to Greek concepts of selfhood and political freedom and that scholars who idealize such concepts too often fail to recognize the role that slavery played in their articulation Opening new lines of inquiry into ancient culture Slaves and Other Objects will enlighten classicists and historians alike

African-Centred Management Education David N. Abdulai, 2016-04-01 In African Centred Management Education Professor Abdulai looks critically at the failings of management education in Africa and how that has impacted growth and development efforts especially at this critical stage in the continent's positive growth and development trajectory He concludes that Africa's current positive economic growth cannot be sustained without a significant contribution from its human capital He adds that the outstanding economic record of Asian economies in recent decades dramatically illustrates how important human capital is to growth These countries lacking natural resources and importing practically all their energy requirements have grown rapidly by relying on a well trained educated and conscientious workforce Professor Abdulai believes that Africa too can sustain its current growth and development by effectively combining its abundant natural resources with its human capital to attain its economic development but this will require an African cadre of well trained managers at the helm of both private and public sector institutions For this to become a reality management education in Africa will have to play a significant role but the author argues that it cannot be effective by continually mimicking the West in the programmes it delivers It must come up with innovative and relevant pedagogy that will address the special challenges that the continent faces and deliver an African centred management education As well as pointing to the failures of management education in Africa Abdulai offers suggestions as to how to make management education really contribute to the education of Africans in order to sustain current and future development

Elderly Slaves of the Plantation South Stacey K. Close, 2015-12-22 Elderly slaves contributed substantially to the creation and perpetuation of the unique African American culture and antebellum plantation society in the South Interwoven with this major argument are two subthemes One centers on the fact that by the late antebellum period elderly slaves were some of the chief transmitters of Africanism the other focuses on how gender based distinctions of the elderly became blurred Although the roles of the elderly often changed elderly slaves contributed to the plantation economy It is also true that those old people who were incapacitated posed serious economic and social concerns for owners although many of the problems of elderly care were solved by the compassion of slave community members Ph D Dissertation The Ohio State University 1992 revised with new preface and index
