The Pathfinder James Fenimore Cooper, 2021-02-19 The Mohican continued to eat though the second white man rose and courteously took off his cap to Mabel Dunham He was young healthful and manly in appearance and he wore a dress which while it was less rigidly professional than that of the uncle also denoted one accustomed to the water In that age real seamen were a class entirely apart from the rest of mankind their ideas ordinary language and attire being as strongly indicative of their calling as the opinions speech and address of a Turk denote a Mussulman Although The Pathfinder was scarcely in the prime of life Mabel had met him with a steadiness that may have been the consequence of having braced her nerves for the interview but when her eyes encountered those of the young man at the fire they fell before the gaze of admiration with which she saw or fancied she saw he greeted her Each in truth felt that interest in the other which similarity of age condition mutual comeliness and their novel situation would be likely to inspire in the young and ingenuous Here said Pathfinder with an honest smile bestowed on Mabel are the friends your worthy father has sent to meet you This is a great Delaware and one who has had honors as well as troubles in his day He has an Indian name fit for a chief but as the language is not always easy for the inexperienced to pronounce we naturally turn it into English and call him the Big Serpent You are not to suppose however that by this name we wish to say that he is treacherous beyond what is lawful in a red skin but that he is wise and has the cunning which becomes a warrior Arrowhead there knows what I mean While the Pathfinder was delivering this address the two Indians gazed on each other steadily and the Tuscarora advanced and spoke to the other in an apparently friendly manner I like to see this continued Pathfinder the salutes of two red skins in the woods Master Cap are like the hailing of friendly vessels on the ocean But speaking of water it reminds me of my young friend Jasper Western here who can claim to know something of these matters seeing that he has passed his days on Ontario
