

Sufficiency's integration into climate and energy strategies

Briefing note

October 2022

Energy and climate transition scenarios are crucial tools to anticipate and plan the necessary transition towards climate neutral, environmentally compatible, and resilient economies.

However, most scenarios published to date have sought to achieve the transition through ambitious technological changes, despite the potentially related investments and environmental risks. Sufficiency, which is about redesigning our societies and needs to rely less on resource intensive services (energy, material, land) to achieve well-being, has been underrepresented in that regard. It has recently gained prominence in Europe in the context of the energy crisis, calling for rapid energy saving measures, but is still a taboo word in most public policies and political discourse.

This briefing note aims to demonstrate the potential of sufficiency as a key lever for making economies climate neutral and resilient, as illustrated by the CLEVER scenario, a collaborative Low Energy Vision for Europe towards net zero emissions by 2050 at the latest.

Ó Gallachóir, 2018-03-31 This book presents the energy system roadmaps necessary to limit global temperature increase to below 2 °C in order to avoid the catastrophic impacts of climate change. It provides a unique perspective on and critical understanding of the feasibility of a well below 2 °C world by exploring energy system pathways, technology innovations, behaviour change and the macro economic impacts of achieving carbon neutrality by mid century. The transformative changes in the energy transition are explored using energy systems models and scenario analyses that are applied to various cities, countries and at a global scale to offer scientific evidence to underpin complex policy decisions relating to climate change mitigation and interrelated issues like energy security and the energy water nexus. It includes several chapters directly related to the Nationally Determined Contributions proposed in the context of the recent Paris Agreement on Climate Change. In summary, the book collates a range of concrete analyses at different scales from around the globe, revisiting the roles of countries, cities and local communities in pathways to significantly reduce greenhouse gas emissions and make a well below 2 °C world a reality. A valuable source of information for energy modellers in both the industry and public sectors, it provides a critical understanding of both the feasibility of roadmaps to achieve a well below 2 °C world and the diversity and wide applications of energy systems models. Encompassing behaviour changes, technology innovations, macro economic impacts and other environmental challenges such as water, it is also of interest to energy economists and engineers as well as economic modellers working in the field of climate change mitigation.
