Individuality in music performance Bruno Gingras, 2014-10-22 Humans are remarkably adept at identifying individuals on the basis of their facial features or other traits such as gait or vocal timbre Besides voice another auditory medium capable of carrying identity information is music Indeed certain famous musicians such as John Coltrane or Sonny Rollins need only to play a few notes to be unequivocally recognized Along with emotion and structural cues artistic individuality seems to be a key element communicated in music performance Yet the means by which individuality is expressed in performance as well as the cognitive processes employed by listeners to perceive identity cues remain poorly elucidated Other pertinent issues including the connection between a performer s technical competence and ability to convey a specific musical identity as well as potential links between individuality and career defining outcomes such as critical recognition and aesthetic appraisal warrant further exploration Quantitative approaches to the study of music performance have benefited greatly from MIDI technology and the application of computational methods leading to the flourishing of empirical music performance research over the last few decades More recently neuroimaging techniques have provided valuable insights into the neural mechanisms involved in the cognitive processes of performing music Nevertheless this field continues to benefit greatly from qualitative approaches given that the communication of affect and identity cues in music performance leads to a rich subjectivity of impressions that must be accounted for in order to lead to a greater understanding of this multifaceted phenomenon The aim of this Research Topic is to provide a forum for interdisciplinary research broadly related to the expression and perception of individuality in music performance Research methodology includes behavioral psychophysiological and neuroimaging techniques Both quantitative and qualitative approaches are presented The scope of this Research Topic includes laboratory studies as well as studies in real life performance settings and longitudinal studies on performers Patterns of Intuition Gerhard Nierhaus, 2015-01-11 The present book is the result of a three year research project which investigated the creative act of composing by means of algorithmic composition Central to the investigation are the compositional strategies of 12 composers which were documented through a dialogic and cyclic process of modelling and evaluating musical materials The aesthetic premises and compositional approaches configure a rich spectrum of diverse positions which is reflected also in the kinds of approaches and methods used These approaches and methods include the generation and evaluation of chord sequences using genetic algorithms the application of morphing strategies to research

harmonic transformations an automatic classification of personal preferences via machine learning and an application of mathematical music theory to the analysis and resynthesis of musical material The second part of the book features contributions by Sandeep Bhagwati William Brooks David Cope Darla Crispin Nicolas Donin and Guerino Mazzola These authors variously consider the project from different perspectives offer independent approaches or provide more general reflections from their respective research fields

Focal Impulse Theory John Paul Ito,2021-01-05 Music is surrounded by movement from the arching back of the guitarist to the violinist swaying with each bow stroke To John Paul Ito these actions are not just a visual display rather they reveal what it really means for musicians to move with the beat organizing the flow of notes from beat to beat and shaping the sound produced By developing focal impulse theory Ito shows how a performer s choices of how to move with the meter can transform the music s expressive contours Change the dance of the performer s body and you change the dance of the notes As Focal Impulse Theory deftly illustrates bodily movements carry musical meaning and in a very real sense are meaning
