The Fate of Third Worldism in the Middle East Rasmus C. Elling, Sune Haugbolle, 2024-01-04 In the latter half of the twentieth century a revolutionary idea promised to upend the global order Anti imperialist militancy bolstered by international solidarity would lead to not only the national liberation of oppressed peoples but universal emancipation shattering the division between the prosperous nations of the capitalist West and the poorer countries of the Global South The idea was Third Worldism and among others it inspired struggles in Iran and Palestine By the early 1980s however progressive visions of independence and freedom had fallen to the reality of an oppressive Islamic theocracy in Iran while the Palestinian Revolution had been eclipsed by civil war in Lebanon Israeli aggression and intra Arab conflict This thought provoking volume explores the dramatic decline of Third Worldism in the Middle East It reveals the lived realities of the time by focusing on the key protagonists from student activists to guerrilla fighters and from volunteer women's participation in the various Lebanese and Palestinian militias involved in the Lebanese Civil War 1975-1990. Whilst most existing accounts of the Civil War in Lebanon either overlook the roles and experiences of women entirely or focus on women as victims or peacemakers only, Women and the Lebanese Civil War highlights that women were involved as militants and often also as fighters in all of the militias partaking in the war. Analysing individual motivations, organisational characteristics, security-related aspects and societal factors, the book explains why women were included as fighters in some of the militias but not in others. Based on extensive fieldwork in Lebanon, the book is the first comprehensive study of female perpetrators and supporters of political violence during the Lebanese Civil War. Beyond the case of Lebanon, it questions widespread assumptions about the roles of women at times of violent conflict and war.

War Is Coming Sami Hermiz, 2017-02-20. War Is Coming is an ethnographic study that sheds light on the everyday conversations, practices and experiences of people in Lebanon who live in between moments of political violence: remember past wars and anticipate future turmoil.

Global Education in Bioethics Henk ten Have, 2018-06-14. This book presents and elaborates on how the teaching of global ethics in healthcare contributes to furthering ideals of cosmopolitanism, solidarity, equality, respect for differences and concern with what human beings and specifically patients have in common regardless of where they live and who they are. Global problems such as pandemic diseases, disasters, lack of care and medication, homelessness and displacement call for global responses. The new area of global bioethics is providing answers by arguing that ethical discourse should first of all criticize the structures of violence and injustice that underlie many threats to global health. Education of health professionals should articulate that they are citizens of the world like their patients. This book first demonstrates that a moral vision of global education is necessary to gain a global dimension. It is argued that a global framework of ethical principles is available; the challenge is to elaborate and specify that framework into specific educational approaches and models. The book subsequently analyzes goals and challenges of global education in biomedicine and healthcare. It is shown how such challenges, e.g. inequities and cultural differences, can be overcome. Finally, the book presents concrete examples, cases, methods and practices of global education in bioethics. The unique feature of the book is that it addresses global education challenges specifically in the area of healthcare, medicine and medical science. It combines two areas of research and experience that are usually not connected: global bioethics and global education. This book is written for all those involved in global ethics teaching in medicine, nursing, ethics, philosophy, law and theology courses.

Picturing the (Un)Dead in Beirut Agnes Rameder, 2024-12-14. Martyr posters are more than obituary images; they can act as visual politics. Focusing on Rabih Mrou's play How Nancy Wished That Everything Was an April Fool's Joke (2007), Agnes Rameder analyses how contemporary artists question and appropriate Lebanese martyr posters. By linking the posters from the Wars in Lebanon (1975-1990) to contemporary posters, she shows that these images continue to the present day: that martyrs are still created and that deaths such as those who were killed in the explosion on 4 August 2020 are still visually remembered.

This study does not focus on how such pictures are perceived by a Western audience but delves into the use and abuse of martyr posters that were intended to be shown to the Lebanese

Posthumous Images Chad Elias, 2018-09-07 For almost two decades of its history 1975-90 Lebanon was besieged by sectarian fighting foreign invasions and complicated proxy wars In Posthumous Images Chad Elias analyzes a generation of contemporary artists who have sought in different ways to interrogate the contested memory of those years of civil strife and political upheaval In their films photography architectural projects and multimedia performances these artists appropriate existing images to challenge divisive and violent political discourses They also create new images that make visible individuals and communities that have been effectively silenced rendered invisible or denied political representation As Elias demonstrates these practices serve to productively unsettle the distinctions between past and present the dead and the living official history and popular memory In Lebanon the field of contemporary art is shown to be critical to remembering the past and reimagining the future in a nation haunted by a violent and unresolved war

Time in the Shadows Laleh Khalili, 2012-11-21 Detention and confinement of both combatants and large groups of civilians have become fixtures of asymmetric wars over the course of the last century Counterinsurgency theoreticians and practitioners explain this dizzying rise of detention camps internment centers and enclavisation by arguing that such actions protect populations In this book Laleh Khalili counters these arguments telling the story of how this proliferation of concentration camps strategic hamlets security walls and offshore prisons has come to be

Time in the Shadows investigates the two major liberal counterinsurgencies of our day Israeli occupation of Palestine and the U S War on Terror In rich detail the book investigates Abu Ghraib Guantanamo Bay CIA black sites the Khiam Prison and Gaza among others and links them to a history of colonial counterinsurgencies from the Boer War and the U S Indian wars to Vietnam the British small wars in Malaya Kenya Aden and Cyprus and the French pacification of Indochina and Algeria Khalili deftly demonstrates that whatever the form of incarceration visible or invisible offshore or inland containing combatants or civilians liberal states have consistently acted illiberally in their counterinsurgency confinements As our tactics of war have shifted beyond slaughter to elaborate systems of detention liberal states have warmed to the pursuit of asymmetric wars Ultimately Khalili confirms that as tactics of counterinsurgency have been rendered more humane they have also increasingly encouraged policymakers to willingly choose to wage wars

Arab Liberal Thought after 1967 Meir Hatina, Christoph Schumann, 2016-04-29 This volume aims at confronting the image of the Middle East as a region that is fraught with totalitarian ideologies authoritarianism and conflict It gives voice and space to other more liberal and adaptive narratives and discourses that endorse the right to dissent question the status quo and offer alternative visions for society

My Life Is a Weapon Christoph Reuter, 2006-04-24 What kind of people are suicide bombers How do they justify their actions In this meticulously researched and sensitively written book journalist Christoph Reuter argues that popular views of these young men and women as crazed fanatics or brainwashed automatons fall short of the mark In many cases these modern day martyrs are well educated young adults who turn themselves into human bombs willingly and eagerly to exact revenge on a more powerful enemy perceived as both unjust and oppressive Suicide assassins are determined to make a difference for once in their lives no matter what the cost As Reuter's many interviews with would be martyrs their trainers friends and relatives reveal the bombers are motivated more by how they expect to be remembered as heroic figures than by religion infused visions of a blissful life to come Reuter who spent eight years researching the book moves from the broken survivors of the childrens suicide brigades in the Iran Iraq war of the 1980s to the war torn Lebanon of Hezbollah to Israeli occupied Palestinian land and to regions as disparate as Sri Lanka Chechnya and Kurdistan He tells a disturbing story of the modern globalization of suicide bombing orchestrated as his own investigations have helped to establish by the shadowy Al Qaeda network and unintentionally enabled by wrong headed policies of Western governments In a final hopeful chapter Reuter points to today's postrevolutionary post Khomeini Iran where a new social environment renounces the horrific practice in the very place where it was enthusiastically embraced just decades ago

The Politics of Crisis-Making Estella Carpi, 2023-05-23 Traditionally humanitarianism is considered a nonpolitical urgent response to human suffering However this characterization ignores the politics that create and are created by the crises and the increasingly long term dimension of relief In The Politics of Crisis Making by shedding light on how humanitarian practice becomes enmeshed with diverse forms of welfare and development Estella Carpi exposes how the politics of defining crises affect the social identity and membership of the displaced Her ethnographic research in Lebanon brings to light interactions among aid workers government officials internally displaced citizens migrants and refugees after the 2006 war in Beirut's southern suburbs and during the 2011-2013 arrival of refugees from Syria to the Akkar District northern Lebanon By documenting different cultures modalities and traditions of assistance Carpi offers a full account of how the politics of crisis making play out in Lebanon An important read The Politics of Crisis Making shows that it is not crisis per se but rather the crisis as official discourse and management that are able to reshuffle societies while engendering unequal political moral and nationality based economies Philosophy of Expressive Arts Therapy Stephen K.
