Response To Student Writing:

Response to Student Writing Dana R. Ferris, 2009      Response to Student Writing Dana Ferris, 2003 This volume synthesizes and critically analyzes the literature on response to the writing of second language students and discusses the implications of the research for teaching practice in the areas of written and oral teacher commentary on student writing error correction and facilitation of peer response The book features numerous examples of student texts and teacher commentary as well as figures and appendices that summarize research findings and present sample lessons and other teaching materials It is thus simultaneously comprehensive in its approach to the existing research and highly practical in showing current and future teachers how this material applies to their everyday endeavors of responding to student writing and teaching composition classes Response to student writing whether it takes the form of teachers written feedback on content error correction teacher student conferences or peer response is an extremely important component of teaching second language writing Probably no single activity takes more teacher time and energy Response to Student Writing is a valuable theoretical and practical resource for those involved in this crucial work including L2 composition researchers in service and preservice teachers of ESOL EFL writers and teacher educators preparing graduate students for the teaching of writing

Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer, 2023-08-07 In Reconstructing Response to Student Writing Dan Melzer makes the argument that writing instructors should shift the construct so that peer response and student self assessment are more central than teacher response Presenting the results of a national study of teacher and peer response and student self assessment at institutions of higher education across the United States Melzer analyzes teacher and peer response to over 1 000 pieces of student writing as well as 128 student portfolio reflection essays He draws on his analysis and on a comprehensive review of the literature on response to introduce a constructivist heuristic for response aimed at both composition instructors and instructors across disciplines Melzer argues that teachers and researchers should focus less on teacher response to individual pieces of student writing and more on engaging in dialogue with student self assessment and peer response focusing on growth and transfer rather than products and grades Reconstructing Response to Student Writing especially when taken together with Melzer's previous book Assignments across the Curriculum provides a comprehensive and large scale view of college writing and responding across the curriculum in the United States

Response to Student Writing Sarah Warshauer Freedman, Cynthia Greenleaf, Melanie Sperling, 1987 Noting that while writing teachers acknowledge that responding to their students writing is central to their teaching they still express frustration about how to make their response effective This book describes a two part study conducted to discover how the nation's most successful writing teachers respond to their students work The first chapter provides background information the rationale behind the study and an elaboration of the research questions The second chapter presents details of the experimental design including procedures for selecting the 560 successful teachers and their 715 students who participated in the first part of the survey This chapter also discusses ethnography observing response practices in the two ninth grade writing classes that participated in the second part of the study The third chapter describes the response practices of the teachers and their range and helpfulness while the fourth chapter analyzes values about writing uncovered in the survey the underpinnings and structuring of response The fifth chapter provides a summary of the research including characteristics of the successful teachers and their response practices while the sixth chapter contemplates what can be learned from the study The book concludes with 83 references and the following appendixes 1 the National Writing Project surveys 2 assignment sequences 3 note taking conventions and procedures for in class data collection 4 criteria for determining what was to be recorded on camera 5 supplementary tables 6 questions for character analysis and 7 student writing samples SKC

A Circle of Response April D. Carothers, 2009 What students need most from instructors written response on their texts is commentary that evokes a sense of exchange Teachers often believe that their job is to point out the deficits in a student's paper and help eliminate those deficits While this is a part of the function of response it should not be the primary goal of feedback rather students need comments that will help them gain a sense of themselves as writers who are accepted into the college writing community Grounding the argument in the scholarship of response this thesis develops an approach to teacher response that narrows the topic into three problem areas the tension between responding to content issues versus responding to the distraction of surface error the tension between promoting mastery of academic language versus encouraging development of student voice and the tension between the reality of teacher authority and the teacher's desire to empower students to take charge of their own learning The author's purpose is to clarify the goals of response as well as the act itself in order to help eliminate the confusion and frustration inexperienced instructors may feel when they respond to student writing New teachers and experienced teachers who are new to writing intensive courses should find this thesis to be a useful guide to responding to student writing

Writing and Response Chris M. Anson, 1989 This book contains 16 articles on how teachers respond to students writing and how they can help students evaluate their own writing and make it more effective It encourages teachers to study their own assumptions and techniques for responding to student work assess whether they are helping students take responsibility and adjust their approaches to meet this goal The articles are 1 Reconceiving Literacy Language Use and Social Relations D Bleich 2 Images of Student Writing The Deep Structure of Teacher Response L Phelps 3 Transactional Theory and Response to Student Writing R Probst 4 A Horse Named Hans a Boy Named Shawn The Herr von Osten Theory of Response to Writing R Hunt 5 Learning to Praise D Daiker 6 The Use of Rogerian Reflection in Small Group Writing Conferences D Thomas and G Thomas 7 Showing Students How to Assess Demonstrating Techniques for Response in the Writing Conference R Beach 8 Responding to Student Journals T Fulwiler 9 The Writer's Memo Collaboration Response and Development J Sommers 10 Response in the Electronic Medium G Sirc 11 Response to Writing as a Context for Learning to Write M Nystrand and D Brandt 12 The Student the Teacher and the Text

Teacher Response to Student Writing Catherine Elizabeth Burleigh, 2008      The Practice of Response Richard Straub, 2000 This text sets out to help teachers gain a practical understanding of response to student writings It displays and analyzes various sets of comments defining the strategies used in each and situating teacher response in the larger context of writing instruction      Flash Feedback [Grades 6-12] Matthew M. Johnson, 2020-03-17 Beat Burnout with Time saving Best Practices for Feedback For ELA teachers the danger of burnout is all too real Inundated with seemingly insurmountable piles of papers to read respond to and grade many teachers often find themselves struggling to balance differentiated individualized feedback with the one resource they are already overextended on time Flash Feedback seeks to alleviate these struggles by taking teachers to the next level of strategic feedback by sharing How to craft effective efficient and more memorable feedback Strategies for scaffolding students through the meta cognitive work necessary for real revision A plan for how to create a culture of feedback including lessons for how to train students in meaningful peer response Downloadable online tools for teacher and student use      Teacher Response to Student Writing Mary Lou Smith, 2003

Key Works on Teacher Response Richard Straub, Ronald Lunsford, 2006 There s a special three way balance in responding to student writing you ve got to be compassionate have a vision for improvement and be capable of confronting and cajoling students to help them maximize the possibilities of revision Key Works on Teacher Response presents some of the best examples of how writing teachers approach the delicate equilibrium of student need and instructional imperative as well as how they learn from the awkwardness and missteps sometimes associated with responding to students written work Key Works on Teacher Response brings together twenty three of the most important articles published during the last thirty years concerning teacher response to student writing You ll understand the scope and history of teacher response through pieces by new thinkers and trusted voices from the past including George Hillocks Jr Andrea Lunsford Lil Brannon Peter Elbow and Chris Anson Together they cover the gamut of practical and theoretical teacher response topics from the impact of corrective markings and the importance of teacher praise to the rhetoric of teacher commentary and what contemporary trends in marking and grading say about the state of the process No matter whether you ve graded your first thirty papers or your first three thousand Key Works on Teacher Response offers you a variety of entry points into the ongoing discussion of how best to interact with student writers Read it find that you re not alone in seeking answers to the mysteries of responding to student writing and discover new thoughtful ways to read and respond that help balance what the process encourages students to do with your interest in encouraging them to write more effectively      Effective Motivation , 2016 In recent years research on response to student writing within the field of composition studies has waned and given way to scholarship in Second Language Writing This lull in the research has also contributed to a gap in the research pertaining to Teaching Associates responses to student writing While all teachers of writing stand to gain from a revival of this issue Teaching Associates are perhaps the most in need of renewed interest This study analyzes the responses to student writing by two Teaching Associates Using the sample responses as a guide this paper examines issues of motivation effectiveness and practical concerns expressed by Teaching Associates tasked with teaching student writers Ultimately this paper argues that if responses on student writing are to have the desired effect the field needs to reexamine and reevaluate the ways that new teachers are taught to interact with student writers

Teacher Response to Student Writing Abra Bertman, 1996

Initial Gestures Wendell Mayo, 1992 The point of view that teachers use in responding to students writing affects the kinds of dramatized presences that teacher responses create Such presences make available a range of reading and writing roles that students may adopt or reject For a dramatic presence to be felt by a reader a writer must select and sustain a clear means of perception of the text a point of view persona separate from the reader from whose vantage point the text is viewed In one context a teacher may assume the role of evaluator Criticism may come from a third person omniscient objective point of view this paper fails to support its thesis a second person persona you fail to support your thesis or a more personal first person source I feel your paper does not support its thesis In another context the teacher might take on a writerly role and respond to student writing descriptively from either a first second or third person perspective The best teachers can possibly do is to make the presences or roles clear and ask themselves if the roles would be as clear and useful to the teachers as writers if they were asked to negotiate them SG
