Blustein, 2014-05-01

Forgiveness and Remembrance examines the complex moral psychology of forgiving remembering and forgetting in personal and political contexts It challenges a number of entrenched ideas that pervade standard philosophical approaches to interpersonal forgiveness and offers an original account of its moral psychology and the emotions involved in it The volume also uses this account to illuminate the relationship of forgiveness to political reconciliation and restorative political practices in post conflict societies Memory is another central concern that flows from this since forgiveness is tied to memory and to emotions associated with the memory of injury and injustice In its political function memory of wrongdoing and of its victims is embodied in processes of memorialization such as the creation of monuments commemorative ceremonies and museums The book casts light on the underexplored relationship of memorialization to transitional justice and politically consequential interpersonal forgiveness It examines the symbolism and the symbolic moral significance of memorialization as a political practice reflects on its relationship to forgiveness and finally argues that there are moral responsibilities associated with memorialization that belong to international actors as well as to states      Breaking the Cycle of Mass Atrocities Marina

Aksenova, Elies van Sliedregt, Stephan Parmentier, 2019-05-02 Breaking the Cycle of Mass Atrocities investigates the role of international criminal law at different stages of mass atrocities shifting away from its narrow understanding solely as an instrument of punishment of those most responsible The book is premised on the idea that there are distinct phases of collective violence and international criminal law contributes in one way or another to each phase The authors therefore explore various possibilities for international criminal law to be of assistance in breaking the vicious cycle at its different junctures      Making Amends Linda Radzik, 2011-04-07 It is often assumed that wrongdoing can only be resolved through punishment or forgiveness But this book explores the responses that wrongdoers can and should make to their own misdeeds responses such as apology repentance reparations and self punishment It examines the possibility of atonement in a broad spectrum of contexts from cases of relatively minor wrongs in personal relationships to crimes to the historical injustices of our political and religious communities It argues that wrongdoers often have the ability to earn redemption within the moral community that respect and trust among victims communities and wrongdoers can be rebuilt and that the moral responsibility of wrongdoing groups can be addressed without treating their members unfairly
