Situated Listening Giorgio Biancorosso, 2016-09-01 Screenwriters and film directors have long been fascinated by the challenges of representing the listening experience on screen While music has played a central role in film narrative since the conception of moving pictures the representation of music listening has remained a special occurrence In Situated Listening The Sound of Absorption in Classical Cinema author Giorgio Biancorosso argues for a redefinition of the music listener as represented in film. Rather than construct the listener as a reverential concertgoer, music analyst, or gallery dweller, this book instead shows how films offer a new way of thinking about listening as distributed experience, an activity made public and shareable across vast cultural spaces rather than an insular motion. It shows how cinema functions as not only a reservoir of established modes of listening but also an agent in the development of new listening practices. As Biancorosso argues, many films have perpetuated a long-existing paradox of music as a means of silencing. Consider an aggressive score overlaying battle scenes or a romantic scene conveying unspoken intimacy. In the place of conversational exchange exists a veil of sound in the form of music. Situated Listening explains why this function influences both the course of interpretation and empathy experienced by film spectators. By focusing on cinematic physical and emotional scenery surrounding a character, viewers can recognize aspects of their own lives, developing a deeper empathy for each fictional character through real and shared listening practices.

Film And Television In Education Robert Watson, 2003-09-02. First published in 1990. The aim of the series is to define and defend a comprehensive aesthetic, both theoretical and practical, for the teaching of the arts. There can be little doubt that of the six great arts, which the Library of Aesthetic Education is committed to defending and defining, film has been the most ignored in the curriculum of our schools. There is a grand irony in this: for film is not only the one unique art form developed in our own century but also the most unequivocally popular. Film was envisaged as part of a system of communications which had to be decoded in terms of ideology and contextualized in terms of power and control. Robert Watson's Film and Television in Education with its telling subtitle An Aesthetic Approach to the Moving Image sets out to remedy the neglect.

Opera as Soundtrack Dr Jeongwon Joe, 2013-10-28. Filmmakers' fascination with opera dates back to the silent era, but it was not until the late 1980s that critical enquiries into the intersection of opera and cinema began to emerge. Jeongwon Joe focusses primarily on the role of opera as soundtrack, by exploring the distinct effects opera produces in film effects which differ from other types of soundtrack music such as jazz or symphony. These effects are examined from three perspectives: peculiar qualities of the operatic voice; various properties commonly associated with opera such as excess, otherness, or death; and multifaceted tensions between opera and cinema. For instance, opera as live embodied high art and cinema as technologically mediated popular entertainment. Joe argues that when opera excerpts are employed on soundtracks, they tend to appear at critical moments of the film, usually associated with the protagonists, and the author explores why it is opera, not symphony or jazz, that accompanies poignant scenes like these. Joe's film analysis focuses on the time period of the post-1970s, which is distinguished by an increase of opera excerpts on soundtracks to blockbuster titles, the commercial recognition of which promoted the production of numerous opera soundtrack CDs in the following years. Joe incorporates an empirical methodology by examining primary sources such as production files, cue sheets, and unpublished interviews with film directors and composers to enhance the traditional hermeneutic approach. The films analysed in her book
