Understanding the Role of Time-Dimension in the Brain Information Processing Daya Shankar Gupta, Hugo Merchant, 2017-04-13 Optimized interaction of the brain with environment requires the four dimensional representation of space time in the neuronal circuits Information processing is an important part of this interaction which is critically dependent on time dimension Information processing has played an important role in the evolution of mammals and has reached a level of critical importance in the lives of primates particularly the humans The entanglement of time dimension with information processing in the brain is not clearly understood at present Time dimension in physical world the environment of an organism can be represented by the interval of a pendulum swing the cover page depicts temporal unit with the help of a swinging pendulum Temporal units in neural processes are represented by regular activities of pacemaker neurons tonic regular activities of proprioceptors and periodic fluctuations in the excitability of neurons underlying brain oscillations Moreover temporal units may be representationally associated with time bins containing bits of information see the Editorial which may be studied to understand the entanglement of time dimension with neural information processing The optimized interaction of the brain with environment requires the calibration of neural temporal units Neural temporal units are calibrated as a result of feedback processes occurring during the interaction of an organism with environment Understanding the role of time dimension in the brain information processing requires a multidisciplinary approach which would include psychophysics single cell studies and brain recordings Although this Special Issue has helped us move forward on some fronts including theoretical understanding of calibration of time information in neural circuits and the role of brain oscillations in timing functions and integration of asynchronous sensory information further advancements are needed by developing correct computational tools to resolve the relationship between dynamic hierarchical neural oscillatory structures that form during the brain's interaction with environment social learning and collaboration by facilitating access to and the exchange of knowledge and information enhancing stakeholder interactions empowering a wider audience to participate in decision making and providing opportunities to test and analyze the outcomes of policies and management solutions Little is known about how game based approaches can be used in the context of collaborative water governance to maximize their potential for social learning While several studies have reported examples of serious games there is comparably less research about how to assess the impacts of serious games on social learning and transformative change

Towards an embodied science of intersubjectivity: Widening the scope of social understanding research Ezequiel Di Paolo, Hanne De Jaegher, 2015-06-16 An important amount of research effort in psychology and neuroscience over the past decades has focused on the problem of social cognition This problem is understood as how we figure out other minds relying only on indirect manifestations of other people's intentional states which are assumed to be hidden private and internal Research on this question has mostly investigated how individual cognitive mechanisms achieve this task A shift in the internalist assumptions regarding intentional states has expanded the research focus with hypotheses that explore the role of interactive phenomena and interpersonal histories and their implications for understanding individual cognitive processes This interactive expansion of the conceptual and methodological toolkit for investigating social cognition we now propose can be followed by an expansion into wider and deeply related research questions beyond but including that of social cognition narrowly construed Our social lives are populated by different kinds of cognitive and affective phenomena that are related to but not exhausted by the question of how we figure out other minds These phenomena include acting and perceiving together verbal and non verbal engagement experiences of disconnection management of relations in a group joint meaning making intimacy trust conflict negotiation asymmetric relations material mediation of social interaction collective action contextual engagement with socio cultural norms structures and roles etc These phenomena are often characterized by a strong participation by the cognitive agent in contrast with the spectatorial stance typical of social cognition research We use the broader notion of embodied intersubjectivity to refer to this wider set of phenomena This Research Topic aims to investigate relations between these different issues to help lay strong foundations for a science of intersubjectivity the social mind writ large To contribute to this goal we encouraged contributions in psychology neuroscience psychopathology philosophy and cognitive science that address this wider scope of intersubjectivity by extending the range of explanatory factors from purely individual to interactive from observational to participatory
