Making Of Modern Uganda:

The Making of Modern Uganda Kenneth Ingham, 2023-10-13 First published in 1958 The Making of Modern Uganda is concerned with the formation of modern Uganda in the sixty years since the 1890s when the foundations of the British administration were laid In the first decade of the 20th century Sir Hesketh Bell Uganda's Governor decided that Uganda should be built up by Africans under the disinterested guidance of Europeans The book therefore traces the emergence of a territory whose material prosperity is mainly based upon peasant agriculture guided by the advice of British agricultural officers It describes the development from an era of tribal clan and even village organisation to the system of centralised government along semi parliamentary lines but notes the disagreement as to whether Uganda's future should lie as a unitary or a federal state The controversial issue of closer union with the other East African territories is studied at some length as also is the growth of the politically active minority which plays so important a part in the modern Protectorate The author believes that the years of happy Uganda the years before the Second World War were a period in which hard work coupled with peace and obvious progress tended to conceal for many the growth of new forces which needed an outlet and only found one in the political and constitutional developments of the post war age This book will be of interest to students of history African studies ethnic studies and political science

The Making of Modern Uganda Kenneth Ingham, 1958 A History of Modern Uganda Richard J. Reid, 2017-02-17 This book is the first major study in several decades to consider Uganda as a nation from its precolonial roots to the present day Here Richard J Reid examines the political economic and social history of Uganda providing a unique and wide ranging examination of its turbulent and dynamic past for all those studying Uganda's place in African history and African politics Reid identifies and examines key points of rupture and transition in Uganda's history emphasising dramatic political and social change in the precolonial era especially during the nineteenth century and he also examines the continuing repercussions of these developments in the colonial and postcolonial periods By considering the ways in which historical culture and consciousness has been ever present in political discourse art and literature and social relationships Reid defines the true extent of Uganda's viable national history

The Making of Modern Africa: The nineteenth century to the partition John D. Omer-Cooper, 1968 Making the Modern Middle East T. G. Fraser, Andrew Mango, Robert McNamara, 2014-07-15 A century ago as World War I got underway the Middle East was dominated as it had been for centuries by the Ottoman Empire But by 1923 its political shape had changed beyond recognition as the collapse of the Ottoman Empire and the insistent claims of Arab and Turkish nationalism and Zionism led to a redrawing of borders and shuffling of alliances a transformation whose consequences are still felt today This fully revised and updated second edition of The Makers of the Modern Middle East traces those changes and the ensuing history of the region through the rest of the twentieth century and on to the present Focusing in particular on three leaders Emir Feisal Mustafa Kemal and Chaim Weizmann the book offers a clear authoritative account of the region seen from a transnational perspective one that enables readers to understand its complex history and the way it affects present day events

The 1964 Army Mutinies and the Making of Modern East Africa Timothy Parsons, 2003-03-30 This book provides a new concept framework for understanding the factors that lead soldiers to challenge civil authority in developing nations By exploring the causes and effects of the 1964 East African army mutinies it provides novel insights into the nature of institutional violence aggression and military unrest in former colonial societies The study integrates history and the social sciences by using detailed empirical data on the soldiers protests in Tanganyika Uganda and Kenya The roots of the 1964 army mutinies in Tanganyika Uganda and Kenya were firmly rooted in the colonial past when economic and strategic necessity forced the former British territorial governments to rely on Africans for defense and internal security As the only group in colonial society with access to weapons and military training the African soldiery was a potential threat to the security of British rule Colonial authorities maintained control over African soldiers by balancing the significant rewards of military service with social isolation harsh discipline and close political surveillance After independence civilian pay levels out paced army wages thereby tarnishing the prestige of military service As compensation veteran African soldiers expected commissions and improved terms of service when the new governments Africanized the civil service They grew increasingly upset when African politicians proved unwilling and unable to meet their demands Yet the creation of new democratic societies removed most of the restrictive regulations that had disciplined colonial African soldiers Lacking the financial resources and military expertise to create new armies the independent African governments had to retain the basic structure and character of the inherited armies Soldiers in Tanganyika Uganda and Kenya mutinied in rapid succession during the last week of January 1964 because their governments could no longer maintain the delicate balance of coercion and concessions that had kept the colonial soldiery in check The East African mutinies demonstrate that the propensity of an African army to challenge civil authority was directly tied to its degree of integration into postcolonial society Subject Index of the Modern Works Added to the British Museum Library British Museum.
