Rachael Low's History Of British Film:

History of British Film (Volume 2) Rachael Low, 2013-09-13 This set is one of the cornerstones of film scholarship and one of the most important works on twentieth century British culture. Published between 1948 and 1985, the volumes document all aspects of film making in Britain from its origins in 1896 to 1939. Rachael Low pioneered the interpretation of films in their context, arguing that to understand films it was necessary to establish their context. Her seven volumes are an object lesson in meticulous research, lucid analysis, and accessible style, and have become the benchmark in film history.

The Brighton School and the Birth of British Film Frank Gray, 2019-07-16 This study is devoted to the work of two early British filmmakers, George Albert Smith and James Williamson, and the films that they made around 1900. Internationally, they are known collectively as the Brighton School and are positioned as being at the forefront of Britain's contribution to the birth of film. The book focuses on the years 1896 to 1903, as it was during this short period that film emerged as a new technology, a new enterprise, and a new form of entertainment. Beginning with a historiography of the Brighton School, the study goes on to examine the arrival of the first 35mm films in Britain, the first film exhibitions in Brighton, and the first projection of film in Brighton. Both Smith and Williamson's work features a progression from the production of single-shot, unedited films to multi-shot, edited films. Their subject matter was inspired by a knowledge of contemporary pantomime, humour, literature, theatre, mesmerism, the magic lantern, and current affairs, and their practices were underpinned by active involvement in the new film trade. Through the exploration of how these filmmakers cultivated a new way of understanding film and its commercial potential, this book establishes them as key figures in the development of British film culture.

Rachael Low's History of British Cinema Rachael Low, 1949 Early British Animation Malcolm Cook, 2018-05-04 This book is the first history of British animated cartoons from the earliest period of cinema in the 1890s up to the late 1920s. In this period, cartoonists and performers from earlier traditions of print and stage entertainment came to film to expand their artistic practice, bringing with them a range of techniques and ideas that shaped the development of British animation. These were commercial rather than avant-garde artists, but they nevertheless saw the new medium of cinema as offering the potential to engage with modern concerns of the early 20th century, be it the political and human turmoil of the First World War or new freedoms of the 1920s. Cook's examination and reassessment of these films and their histories reveals their close attention and play with the way audiences saw the world. As such, this book offers new insight into the changing understanding of vision at that time as Britain's place in the world was reshaped in the early 20th century.

The Sounds of the Silents in Britain Julie Brown, Annette Davison, 2013 The Sounds of the Silents in Britain explores the sonic dimension of film exhibition in Britain from the emergence of cinema to the introduction of synchronized sound. Written by experts on British silent film and film music, the chapters provide an introduction to diverse aspects of early film sound: vocal performance from lecturing and reciting to voicing the drama; music from developments in accompanying techniques to the impact of legislation on musical practice overall and performance in cinemas more generally from dancing and singalong films to live stage prologues The book also debunks some of the myths about the sonic dimension of film exhibition it reveals that exhibition practices in London were arguably more sophisticated than those in New York before the onset of World War I for instance and that venue licensing decisions had a profound effect on whether music could even be performed with film in some theatres Based on extensive archival research and musicological analysis The Sounds of the Silents in Britain represents an important addition to early film and film music scholarship Film Histories Paul Grainge, 2007-01-11 An introduction to film history this anthology covers the history of film from 1895 It is arranged chronologically and each chapter contains an introduction on the key developments within the period Various types of film history are undertaken to enable students to become familiar with different types of film historical research Len Lye Roger Horrocks, 2013-11-01 Len Lye A Biography tells for the first time the story of a unique charismatic artist who was an innovator in many areas film kinetic sculpture painting photography and poetry Born in New Zealand in 1901 Len Lye gained an international reputation in the arts and had friendships with many famous people including Dylan Thomas Robert Graves Gertrude Stein John Grierson Norman McLaren Oskar Fischinger John Cage Robert Creeley Laura Riding Stan Brakhage and the artists of the New York School A colorful bohemian Lye lived in London from 1926 to 1944 where he made highly original hand painted films for John Grierson s GPO Film Unit then moved to New York for the last 36 years of his life Describing Len Lye as a trailblazer and a one man modern art movement in Sight Sound Ian Francis also celebrated this superb biography as the definitive piece of Lye scholarship Silent to Sound Geoff Brown, 2024-10-22 Silent cinema was never silent But from the mid 1920s onwards the sound part of the cinema experience was transformed by the arrival of films long and short with clearly audible talk music and sound effects built in It marked the most fundamental shift in cinema technology since cinema s birth The first book devoted to Britain s conversion to talkies and the result of eight years research Silent to Sound British Cinema in Transition takes a lively and comprehensive look at the production side of the British sound revolution stretching from experimental efforts in the late 19th century through the sound shorts of the 1920s to the key year of 1929 the year of Hitchcock s Blackmail Britain s first home grown talkie feature and the industry turmoil that followed The narrative concludes in 1934 when John Grierson s GPO Film Unit finally acquired sound equipment prompting a late burst of experimentation just when commercial feature soundtracks had settled down Films familiar neglected and unknown are examined overripe melodramas the lost Black Waters local versions of Hollywood musicals Harmony Heaven visually elaborate science fiction High Treason plus newsreels documentaries amateur films and the last phase of British silent production The impact of sound on studio technique is examined along with the industry s complex relations with Britain s strong theatre traditions with Europe and above all cinema s superpower America It s also never forgotten that the sound transition was shaped not just by technology but by the talents foibles and follies of individual people Film history with a

Acting for the Silent Screen Chris O'Rourke, 2016-11-30 A shop girl wins a newspaper competition and is transformed overnight into a transatlantic celebrity An aristocrat swaps high society for the film studio when she consents to perform in a series of films thus legitimising acting for what some might have considered a low art. Stories like these were the stuff of newspaper headlines in 1920s and reflected a craze for the cinema. They also demonstrated radical changes in attitudes and values within society in the wake of World War I. Chris O'Rourke investigates the myths and material practices that grew up around film actors during the silent era. The book sheds light on issues such as the social and cultural reception of cinema, the participatory film culture expressed through fan magazines, instructional booklets and movie star competitions, and the working conditions encountered by actors behind the scenes of silent films. Drawing on extensive research and a wealth of archival materials, O'Rourke examines how dreams of stardom were fuelled and exploited in the interwar period and reconstructs the personal narratives and experiences of the first generation to imagine making a living on screen. In doing so, he reveals a missing and much sought after piece of cinematic history to bring to life the developing industries, social attitudes and norms of a period of enormous change.

British art cinema Paul Newland, Brian Hoyle, 2019-07-23 This is the first book to provide a direct and comprehensive account of British art cinema. Film history has tended to view British filmmakers as aesthetically conservative but the truth is they have a long tradition of experiment and artistry both within and beyond the mainstream. Beginning with the silent period and running up to the 2010s, the book draws attention to this tradition while acknowledging that art cinema in Britain is a complex and fluid concept that needs to be considered within broader concerns. It will be of particular interest to scholars and students of British cinema history, film genre, experimental filmmaking and British cultural history.

Film 1900 Annemone Ligensa, Klaus Kreimeier, 2009-10-05 Essays examining the relationships between culture, film and the audience around the turn of the twentieth century. The current digital revolution has sparked a renewed interest in the origins and trajectory of modern media, particularly in the years around 1900 when the technology was rapidly developing. This collection aims to broaden our understanding of early cinema as a significant innovation in media history. Joining traditional scholarship with fresh insights from a variety of disciplines, this book explains the aesthetic and institutional characteristics in early cinema within the context of the contemporary media landscape. It also addresses transcultural developments such as scientific revolutions, industrialization, urbanization and globalization, as well as differing attitudes toward modernization. Film 1900 is an important reassessment of early cinema's position in cultural history. The capable Ligensa and Kreimeier invited a coterie of renowned Continental scholars and thinkers to reflect on issues of modernity and cinema by harking back to the fin de siècle.

Audiences Ian Christie, 2012 This timely volume engages with one of the most important shifts in recent film studies: the turn away from text-based analysis towards the viewer. Historically, this marks a return to early interest in the effect of film on the audience by psychoanalysts and psychologists, which was overtaken by concern with the effects of film linked to calls for censorship and moral panics rather than to understanding the mental and behavioral world of the spectator. Early cinema history has revealed the diversity of film viewing habits while traditional box office studies which treated the audience initially as a homogeneous market have been replaced by the study of individual consumers and their motivations. Latterly there has been a marked turn towards more sophisticated economic and sociological analysis of attendance data. And as the film experience fragments across multiple formats the perceptual and cognitive experience of the individual viewer who is also an auditor has become increasingly accessible. With contributions from Gregory Waller, John Sedgwick and Martin Barker, this work spans the spectrum of contemporary audience studies revealing work being done on local, non-theatrical and live digital transmission audiences and on the relative attraction of large-scale domestic and mobile platforms. Films and British National Identity Jeffrey Richards, 1997-09-15. This book seeks to examine the ways in which the cinema has defined, mythified and disseminated British national identity during the course of the twentieth century. It takes the form of a series of linked essays which examine chronologically, thematically and by specific case studies of films, stars and genres the complexities and ambiguities in the process of evolution and definition of the national identity. It argues for the creation of a distinctive British national identity both in cinema and the wider culture. But it also assesses the creation of alternative identities both ethnic and regional and examines the interaction of cinema and other cultural forms: music, literature and television.

Colour Films in Britain Sarah Street, 2019-07-25. How did the coming of colour change the British film industry? Unlike sound, the arrival of colour did not revolutionise the industry overnight. For British film makers and enthusiasts, colour was a controversial topic. While it was greeted by some as an exciting development with scope for developing a uniquely British aesthetic, others were deeply concerned. How would audiences accustomed to seeing black and white films, which were commonly regarded as being superior to their garish colour counterparts, react? Yet despite this initial trepidation, colour captivated many British inventors and film makers. Using different colour processes, these innovators produced films that demonstrated remarkable experimentation and quality. Sarah Street's illuminating study is the first to trace the history of colour in British cinema and analyses the use of colour in a range of films, both fiction and non-fiction, including The Open Road, The Glorious Adventure, This is Colour, Blithe Spirit, This Happy Breed, Black Narcissus, The Red Shoes, The Tales of Hoffmann and Moulin Rouge. Beautifully illustrated with full-colour film stills, this important study provides fascinating insights into the complex process whereby the challenges and opportunities of new technologies are negotiated within creative practice. The book also includes a Technical Appendix by Simon Brown, Kingston University, UK, which provides further details of the range of colour processes used by British film makers.

Cinema, Censorship and Sexuality 1909-1925 (Routledge Revivals) Annette Kuhn, 2016-04-06. First published in 1988, this book shows how censorship as a set of institutions, practices and discourses was involved in the struggle over the nature of cinema in the early twentieth century. It also reveals the part played in this struggle by other institutions, practices and discourses, for example new knowledge about sexuality and organisations devoted to the promotion of public morality. Instead of censorship simply being an act of prohibition by a special institution this work reveals the issues at work were far more complex and contradictory opening up critical scrutiny and challenging assumptions This title will be of interest to students of media and film studies     Awkward Dominion Frank C. Costigliola, 2018-08-06 In Awkward Dominion Frank Costigliola offers a striking interpretation of the emergence of the United States as a world power in the 1920s a period in which the country faced both burdens and opportunities as a result of the First World War Exploring the key international issues in the interwar period peace treaty revisions Western economic recovery and modernization Costigliola considers American political and economic success in light of Europe's fascination with American technology trade and culture The figures through which he tells this story include Herbert Hoover Calvin Coolidge Henry Stimson Charles Lindberg Ernest Hemingway and Henry Ford
